Whole Smith Ticket May Not Be Elected—Vote for the Socialist Nominee, Thomas, Is Small.

Overcoming a Republican Presidential sweep that reached nearly a million plurality, Alfred E. Smith was re-elected Governor of New York in yesterday's election, defeating his Republican opponent, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, by an estimated plurality of 140,000.

As a vote-getter the Governor surpassed his performance of four years ago when, in the Harding landslide, he went down to defeat, although running more than a million votes ahead of his ticket.

By an enormous city vote the Governor overcame a heavy handicap, for Colonel Roosevelt captured the rock-ribbed Republican counties upstate. The Colonel reversing the record of Nathan L. Miller, also carried Democratic city strongholds above the Bronx which Governor Smith easily carried two and four years ago.

At 1:20 o'clock this morning Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay issued a statement conceding the election of Governor Smith. He said he congratulated the Governor and also expressed satisfaction over the election of President Coolidge.

While the Governor was taking the measure of his Republican opponent, President Calvin Coolidge carried the State by 500,000 plurality. His vote upstate not only matched 800,000 but he carried every borough in the City of New York with a plurality over John W. Davis, his Democratic opponent, of 250,000.

La Follette Polls 600,000.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, running for President on a Third Party ticket, polled 600,000 votes in the State but ran third.

While Governor Smith was elected by a safe margin there was considerable uncertainty up to the time of the rout of the State Democratic ticket. Lieutenant Governor George R. Lunn appeared to be safe although he ran fully 300,000 votes behind the Governor in the city. The rest of the ticket was lost in the count of votes for the Governorship.

The Governor's triumph was marred somewhat by the Republican gains in the Legislature. It was admitted by the Democrats that the Republicans stood enough State Senators to take control of that body from the Democrats and had materially increased their majority in the Assembly.

George K. Morris, Republican State chairman, made the following statement at 7:00 o'clock this morning:

"Indications are that Governor Smith has been re-elected by between 60,000 and 80,000. Also we have made substantial gains in the Assembly and have re-elected almost all of the State Senators, which will now be 31 or 32 to 25 in favor of the Republicans instead of 29 to 27 in favor of the Democrats. We gained two Senators in Erie County, one in Monroe County, one in Oneida and one in Westchester. We have also gained in the Assembly districts, but I am not definitely elected the entire State ticket with the exception of Governor Smith."

COOLIDGE AND SMITH CARRY THIS CITY

LA FOLLETTE VOTE 250,000

Coolidge Wins in Every Borough —Democrats Elect All Local Officers.

New York City gave its vote at yesterday's election to Calvin Coolidge, Republican nominee for President, and Charles G. Dawes, Republican nominee for Vice President, and at the same time rolled up a record plurality for Governor Alfred E. Smith, electing him Chief Executive of New York State for the third time.

As in the Presidential election of 1920, Governor Smith's personal popularity, apparent satisfaction with his administration and possibly some weakness of his opponent, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, combined to give the Governor a lead never before obtained by any candidate for any office in this city.

President Coolidge obtained a total of approximately 130,000 plurality in New York City and carried every borough, according to fairly complete returns.

The indications were that he would have a plurality of about 5,000 in Manhattan, 4,500 in the Bronx, 73,000 in Brooklyn, 20,000 in Queens and 2,200 in Richmond.

250,000 Plurality for Smith.

Governor Smith, however, carried the city by about 500,000, the "spread between his vote and that for Davis, the Democratic Presidential candidate, being about 250,000, or nearly equal to the difference between his vote and that for Cox four years ago. Governor Smith carried every borough heartily.

The indications on incomplete returns were that he had carried Manhattan by more than 200,000, Brooklyn by approximately 150,000, the Bronx by 100,000, Queens by 42,000 and Richmond by 8,000.

Governor Smith apparently carried every Assembly district in the city but one, the Twenty-first District, in Manhattan. La Follette showed his greatest proportionate strength in the Bronx, where he led in the Third, Fourth and Fifth Assembly Districts and was running close in the Seventh.

The vote in the Nineteenth, Manhattan, Lower East Side district, which includes a large part of Harlem, is reported to have shown that the Socialist vote returned to the Republican Party's national candidate, but voted for Governor Smith. On the Lower East Side, where the Socialist vote is normally cast by Jewish voters, the Democratic majority was over four-fold, the

But the Big Majorities in the Rural Districts Carry Her to Victory.

LARGE KLAN VOTE IS CAST

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 4.—Returns from the rural districts of Texas coming in late this evening show that Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson will probably receive a majority of about 225,000 votes over Dr. George C. Butte, Republican, for Governor.

Of a total of about 700,000 votes cast about 212,000 have been counted, giving Mrs. Ferguson a lead of 43,000 votes. According to unofficial returns, the lead which Dr. Butte started with by returns from the larger cities was quickly overcome by the rural returns.

At 10 o'clock, the vote for Governor, including returns from 810 towns and cities, stood:

Mrs. Ferguson, 117,385.

Dr. Butte, 68,145.

Interest in the election was intensified by the prominence of the Ku Klux Klan issue in the campaign and it caused an outpouring of people at the polls. It is estimated that nearly 800,000 votes were cast. This is only a few thousand less than the total number polled in the run-off primary. Perfect weather prevailed all over the State, and this was a factor in favor of Mrs. Ferguson, as it meant passable roads for the farmer to travel to the precinct voting boxes.

The early returns show that Mrs. Ferguson's principal strength was in the rural districts. The count in the larger cities is progressing slowly. It shows that Dr. George C. Butte, the Republican candidate for Governor, is running well ahead of Mrs. Ferguson in Dallas, Austin, Houston, Beaumont and other of the larger cities.

Butte is also running ahead of Mrs. Ferguson in a number of the populous counties of North Texas and is making a strong showing in parts of Central Texas. The rural districts, however, are piling up in the early count an almost solid vote for Mrs. Ferguson.

According to these returns, she sweeps East Texas and the territory south of San Antonio and more than broke even with Butte in other rural districts. It is practically conceded by the Republican leaders that if the estimate that 850,000 votes were polled is correct Mrs. Ferguson's election by the usual big Democratic majority is assured. These leaders contend, however, that the total vote will not show more than 800,000 and that their hopes that Butte has a chance of winning.

The Ku Klux Klan strongholds gave a surprisingly large vote for Butte. It is apparent that he received the bulk of the Klan vote. Party lines were largely lost sight of and thousands of voters Democratic today cast their first vote for a Republican candidate for office. The election marked the greatest political revolution that ever took place in Texas. Irrespective of the indications that Butte was not elected, Presbyterian, all of the German vote, more than 50,000 in all, which is normally Republican, went to Mrs. Ferguson because of the Klan issue. The same is true of the negro vote which went solid for the woman candidate.

LEGISLATURE AGAIN SOLIDLY REPUBLICAN

STRONGER IN THE ASSEMBLY

J. A. McGinnies of Chautauqua Is Slated for Speaker—One Woman Elected.

Returns from the legislative elections throughout New York State yesterday showed that the Republicans had recaptured control of the State Senate, which during the last two years has been Democratic by the slender majority of one vote. The returns indicated also that the Republicans had increased their lead in the Assembly, which remained Republican during the two years of Governor Smith's present Administration.

Figures, which in some instances have been estimated, give the Republicans a working majority of four in the upper house of the Legislature, with the possibility that this may be increased through changes based on more complete returns.

In the normally Republican Fifteenth Senate District on the upper west side in Manhattan, Senator Nathan Straus won a signal victory, which will return him to the Senate for a third term. He defeated Assemblyman Victor E. Kaufman, whom the Republicans had nominated.

The latest figures received indicate that the Republicans, who have twenty-five members in the present Senate, will have at least twenty-nine in the body elected yesterday.

They gained one Senator in the Seventeenth District, located on the upper west side in Manhattan, where, on partial returns, the election of Courtland Nicoll, the Republican candidate, appeared assured. His Democratic opponent was the present incumbent, Senator Meyer Levy.

Gains by Republicans.

Other gains by the Republicans included the Thirty-first Senate District, which takes in Rensselaer County, where Senator John P. Williams, the Democratic incumbent, was defeated by John R. Williams, a Republican newcomer in the Legislature. In the Forty-ninth, which takes in part of Erie County, Robert C. Lacey, the present Democratic Senator, who enjoyed wide popularity in labor circles and has served two years in the Senate, will be replaced by L. R. Lipowicz, his Republican opponent.

Returns from the Assembly elections showed an increased Republican majority in the lower house of next year's Legislature, where the Republicans this year have a working majority of twelve. In the table a number of the districts within the city were estimated on partial returns from a small number of election districts and the result was subject to change on more complete returns.

Despite the huge pluralities run up by the Republicans for Coolidge and Dawes in New York City, the Democrats retained their hold, with few exceptions, on Senate and Assembly districts in the city which are represented by Democrats in the present Legislature.

The Republican Assembly gains were made upstate for the most part. There they won in Sullivan County, in the First District of Rensselaer, in the First and Third Albany Districts, in the Second Assembly District and the First District in Schenectady County, all of which sent Democrats to the present Legislature in the election a year ago.

Republican Gain in Kings.

About the only gain made by the Republicans in this city was in the Seventeenth Assembly District in Kings, normally Republican, but for the last two or three years represented by a Demo-

COOLIDGE AND EDGE WINNERS IN JERSEY

MRS. NORTON IS ELECTED

First Woman in Congress From the East—Tunnel Bond Issue Adopted.

New Jersey, breaking all previous records in the size of its vote, gave large pluralities to Coolidge and Senator Edge, and increased the Republican majorities in both branches of the State Legislature. The proposed $6,000,000 bond issue for finishing the Hudson vehicular tunnels and the Camden Bridge was receiving large majorities.

The polls were closed at 7 o'clock and the size of the vote was so unprecedented that the first returns were made long after the customary time for reporting them. At 5 o'clock this morning Coolidge had a lead of 107,680 in 1,188 of the 2,559 election districts in New Jersey. On the basis of these figures his estimated plurality reached 350,000 for all the districts.

In the Senatorial contest Edge was leading Donnelly by 27,563 in 824 of the 2,559 districts. Senator Edge declared last night that the Coolidge-Dawes plurality as well as his own would reach 200,000.

The Republicans elected ten members of Congress and the Democrats only two, including Mrs. Mary T. Norton of Jersey City, who won a sweeping victory in the Twelfth District in Hudson County, a Democratic stronghold. Mrs. Norton ran against Douglas D. T. Storey, Republican, and she will be the first woman to go to Congress to represent an Eastern State.

She Thanks the Voters.

When her election was assured Mrs. Norton, in an interview, expressed her gratitude to Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City for having placed her in nomination in the Twelfth District, which is a Democratic stronghold.

"I congratulate Mayor Hague," she said, "on his foresight and justice in placing New Jersey among the first States of the Union to send a woman to Congress. I thank the organization and I thank the voters. I shall do everything in my power for the people of New Jersey and for the nation."

The success of the Democratic candidate in the Twelfth District of New Jersey was a foregone conclusion. Mrs. Norton was nominated by Mayor Hague with the full approval of other Democratic leaders. Her nomination was hailed at the time as a tribute to her years of work in the interests of the party.

Mrs. Norton cast her ballot in the Twenty-first Election District, in the Eleventh Ward, Jersey City. She was accompanied by her husband when she went to the polling place in a small candy store. Her husband is Robert R. Norton, who is in the cooperage business in Jersey City.

Five election districts in Camden County gave Coolidge 705 votes, Davis 666 and La Follette 80. One election district in Morris County gave Coolidge 118, Davis 25 and La Follette 4. Twenty of the 2,559 election districts in

THIRD PARTY POLLS 4,000,000 VOTES IN WHOLE COUNTRY

CARRIED ONLY WISCONSIN

COLLAPSE IN CALIFORNIA

But the Senator Ran Second in That State, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Montana and Nevada.

Returns from the Eastern and Southern States, and a few States in the West, showed that the Progressive Party movement, headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, fell far short of the expectations of its leaders. Senator La Follette, apparently, has run a poor third in all States east of the Mississippi River, except his own State of Wisconsin, which he carried and Minnesota, where he is running second. He is running second in Montana, Nevada, California, Iowa and the two Dakotas. Apparently his total vote in the country is about 4,000,000.

La Follette's greatest collapse was in California, where, so far from his carrying the State, as he expected, the Republicans have it by a great majority.

California	300,000
Illinois	350,000
Iowa	375,000
Indiana	60,000
Kansas	90,000
Michigan	125,000
Minnesota	450,000
New York	610,000
Montana	60,000
Nebraska	90,000
North Dakota	100,000
New Jersey	60,000
Ohio	200,000
South Dakota	90,000
Washington	120,000
Wisconsin	370,000

His vote in other States varied from 1,000 or less in Arizona to about 45,000 in Maryland.

The forecasts by the Progressive Party leaders that La Follette and Wheeler would carry Illinois, Ohio and probably a few Eastern States were not made good. In both Illinois and Ohio Senator La Follette was many thousand votes behind John W. Davis, Democratic nominee, and the Wisconsin Senator received only a fraction of the total vote given to President Coolidge.

In New York State, where the backers of La Follette had predicted that the Progressive ticket would carry New York City, La Follette was a bad third. La Follette received fewer than half the votes recorded for Mr. Davis, and President Coolidge beat the Third Party candidate in New York five or six to one. Most of the La Follette strength in New York, as in other Eastern States, was concentrated in a few industrial centres.

In Massachusetts, where President Coolidge beat Mr. Davis six or seven to one, Mr. Davis beat La Follette more than two to one. Even in Boston, a city which La Follette leaders had professed confidence of carrying, Senator La Follette received but a negligible vote.

In Connecticut, another State where the Progressive Party leaders claimed great strength, early returns showed that President Coolidge was getting more than six votes for each given La Follette and that Mr. Davis was leading La Follette about two to one.

Poor Showing in South and West.

The Progressive Party had expected to run first or second in New Hampshire, according to the predictions made, but the returns indicated that President Coolidge would beat Senator La Follette by fifteen to one or better, and that Davis was running ahead of La Follette at the rate of eight votes to one.

REPUBLICANS MAKE GAINS IN CONGRESS

Retain Control of Senate and May Increase House Majority to 50.

While the returns on the elections of United States Senators and members of the House of Representatives are incomplete, the indications early this morning were that the Republican Party would retain majorities in both houses of Congress for the two-year period beginning March 4, 1925, the first half of President Coolidge's new administration.

There have been Republican gains in the House sufficiently large to make it apparent that the present majority in that body, which was fifteen when the Congress adjourned in June and has been reduced to ten by resignations and deaths of Republican members, will be considerably extended. As yet the Senate Republican candidates have very generally held their own in States from which complete or fairly complete returns have been received.

Republicans, 52; Democrats, 43; Farmer-Labor, 1; four in doubt, with one vacancy not filled yesterday.

The majority the Republicans will have in the House is uncertain, but that it will be much larger than the mere potential majority obtained by the Republicans in the Congressional elections of two years ago is indicated by the following political changes, based on returns up to an early hour this morning: Republicans, 201; Democrats, 201; Farmer-Labor, 1; Socialist, 1; Progressive, 1; vacancies, 10. BRYAN'S STATE TO COOLIDGE

Plurality of 50,000 in Nebraska for the President Indicated in Latest Dispatches.

Calvin Coolidge has been elected President of the United States by a victory of impressive proportions.

At 5 o'clock this morning the returns indicated that President Coolidge had secured 357 electoral votes, Davis 136 and La Follette 13, and that 25 votes in five Western States were still in doubt. The principal overturns in the late returns were in Kentucky and Missouri. In Kentucky, in 2,631 out of 2,651 precincts, seven-eighths of the State, Coolidge had 537,856, against 521,244 for Davis. It was the opinion of the most competent observers in the State that a later returns would not take the State away from the President.

In Missouri Coolidge has 691,809, against Davis's 683,999 in 3,864 out of 4,080 precincts. Correspondents in the State believed that the Republican rural precincts were sure to give the State to the President. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat estimates that Coolidge will carry the State by 80,000.

The five States remaining in doubt are Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico.

In Montana Coolidge has a slight lead, but the returns are too scant to justify giving the State to him at present. Arizona and New Mexico are close, with indications of going for Davis. In Nevada Coolidge has a lead of 600 votes over La Follette, who is running second, in a little less than one-half the State.

It is not probable that Davis's vote in the Electoral College will exceed 155, which it will be if he carries Arizona and New Mexico. Apparently he has no chance in Minnesota, Montana and Nevada, where he is running third, La Follette being second. On the other hand, it is possible that Coolidge may carry Minnesota, Montana and Nevada, giving him a total of 370, or, with Arizona and New Mexico added, 399 on his present basis.

An extreme possibility, but not a very strong one, for La Follette is the addition of Minnesota, Montana and Nevada, to the one State that he has surely carried, Wisconsin, which would give him a total of 82.

Senator Robert M. La Follette is leading in his home State Wisconsin, and will undoubtedly win there and get its 13 electoral votes.

Mr. Coolidge is the third Vice President to become President through the death of the incumbent and was succeeded by elected President immediately afterward. The other was Theodore Roosevelt.

Coolidge Victory Overwhelming.

The victory which entitles President Coolidge to office next March 4 is overwhelming. Counting 13 votes of Wisconsin, which La Follette will carry, Coolidge has received 370 votes in the Electoral College, or 109 more than the majority of 266 necessary to a choice. Davis has received 136 votes, or 130 less than the majority necessary to a choice. La Follette has received 13 votes, or 253 less than the majority necessary to a choice. Twenty-five votes are in doubt.

La Follette Wins Koenig's Home District; Coolidge Captures Davis's and Olvany's

Senator La Follette carried the home election district of Samuel H. Koenig, Manhattan Republican leader, with a vote of 206 to 202 for Coolidge and 169 for Davis. La Follette received 175 of these votes as the Progressive candidate and 31 as the Socialist candidate. Four years ago the same district gave Cox 40 and Harding 366.

The Vice President Thomas, the Socialist candidate, received 11 votes. Four years ago he received seven votes in the district.

President Coolidge carried the home district of Tammany Leader George W. Olvany, with a vote of 464, Davis had 444 and La Follette 34. Davis in the former Democratic district of Leroy Yeiser, Jr., the vote was: Coolidge 311 and La Follette 31.

The Vice President at Oyster Bay polled only 3 votes in his own voting district, the Second, a smaller vote than President Coolidge, getting 10, La Follette 4, Davis 1. In the home district of Governor Smith on the Lower East Side Governor Smith received 1,200 votes, Davis 1,000 and La Follette 50.

The home city of Louis Governor Lunn gave Governor Smith a majority of 3,000 over Davis, with La Follette running third. Governor Smith carried his home district by a vote of 464 to 40 for Roosevelt and 3 for Thomas. Two years ago the same district gave Smith 464 and Miller 29.

Mr. Davis has entered the records ...ern states, any one of which might ...ce a switch of the ma... would throw the election into the ...ional House of Representatives. Mr. Davis was close to his predecessor at every point.

Mr. Davis has carried the solid South, including Kentucky, winning Tennessee by approximately 50,000.

The Democratic national ticket appears to have made no serious inroads in the border States. West Virginia, apparently is President Coolidge's by 25,000. Mr. Davis's inability to carry his own State is accounted for by defiance to ...e Maryland, where the President seems to have triumphed by a plurality of more than 12,000 votes.

La Follette's Vote Successful.

If the heavy vote rolled up by President Coolidge be taken as an outcome ...ully intended and generally foreseen, the success of the drive to bring the ...ers of the country in the heavy ...ts did not. The estimated totals include 410,... in New York State, nearly two-thirds of which was piled up in New York City.

Senator La Follette's estimated popular vote of 4,000,000 is interesting because of the assertions of himself and his party leaders that the present campaign was waged chiefly in the interest of founding a third party and that the movement would not be abandoned after the present election. The approximate ...ls include votes comparing strikingly with the popular total of the last third party candidate—Theodore Roosevelt—when Bull Moose insurgency swept away from the Republican ranks in 1912 resulted in a ...dential vote for him of 4,126,024.

While Senator La Follette appears to have captured nearly as many votes as had the late Colonel Roosevelt, his Electoral College showing is much poorer than that of the 1912 thirty party. La Follette has carried only one State, his own Wisconsin, with its thirteen electoral votes, whereas Roosevelt carried six States—Pennsylvania, Michigan, Minnesota, South Dakota, California and Washington, with an Electoral College vote of 92.

The vote polled by President Coolidge and his Republican running mate, while naturally falling behind the landslide figures of the 1920 Harding victory, if only because the vote this year was split three ways, is one of huge totals in the East and the Middle West, topped by 920,000 in New York, 750,000 in New Jersey and 1,100,000 in Pennsylvania.

The Republican national figures in other States include Ohio 800,000; Indiana, 225,000; Illinois, 750,000; Kansas, 250,000; Michigan, 400,000; West Virginia, 85,000; Maryland, 10,000, and Delaware, 18,000. The last returns from California indicated a plurality there for Coolidge of 500,000.

Charles G. Dillon, Vice Chairman of the Republican National Committee, at 4 o'clock this morning estimated the popular vote as follows — Coolidge, 15,000,000; Davis, 8,000,000; La Follette, 4,000,000.

City Vote Elected Smith.

Alfred E. Smith has been re-elected Governor of New York, according to all indications, with three-quarters of the vote tabulated. The defeat of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, the Republican candidate, is due to the huge majority piled up by the Democratic Governor in his race in New York City. Indications are that Governor Smith has the State by about 140,000, although Colonel Roosevelt came down to the Bronx with an up-State majority around 365,000. Governor Smith's majority in the Greater City will be about 500,000.

Of outstanding interest in the up-State result is the shift of many cities to the Republican column, although Governor Smith carried them against Nathan L. Miller two years ago, when he was elected for his second term. Of the first eight cities to report, Colonel Roosevelt carried Rome, Poughkeepsie, Buffalo, Newburgh, Binghamton, Gloversville and Syracuse. Of these eight, Governor Smith managed to keep tucked away only Troy, and his majority there dropped about two-thirds.

President Coolidge has carried New York City by probably 350,000, winning every borough, including, apparently, Manhattan, in which, however, the returns were shifting and close. The Coolidge-Smith majority of about 350,000 in New York apparently carried with it the whole Democratic slate.

The effect of the big Republican vote in the State, so far as the early returns showed, has been to make the State Senate safely Republican, changing the complexion from that at the last legislative session. The Republicans also will have an increased lead in the Assembly.

Congress Changes.

In the country at large the Republican sweep brings the party very close to control of both houses of Congress. The apparent complexion of the Senate is: Republicans, 50; Democrats, 36; Farmer-Laborites 1; vacancy to be filled, 1; in doubt, 4. Necessary to a majority, 49, with the Republican showing up to an early hour this morning exceeding that figure.

In the House the Republicans seem to have obtained a fairly good majority. The present tally stands: Republicans, 226; Democrats, 130; Socialists, 2; Farmer-Laborites, 2; in doubt, 10. Necessary to a majority, 218.

This gives the Republicans a present indicated majority of 46 over the Democrats, Socialists and Farmer-Laborites, whose election seem assured, or 36 over the combined opposition, granting it success in all the 10 doubtful districts.

Among the outstanding results indicated in the United States Senate are the election of General T. Coleman du Pont, Republican, in Delaware; the election in Oklahoma of W. B. Pine, Republican, who contested for the seat with ex-Governor Jack Walton.

Klan Defeat and Victories.

The Ku Klux Klan, which figured heavily in the political battles of several States, appears to have won most of its fights and also to have suffered one notable defeat. That defeat brings into office the first woman Governor ever to hold the executive chair of a State. Mrs. Ferguson of Texas. Mrs. Ferguson now won the office lost to her husband by impeachment, overcoming strong Klan opposition.

The second in the other Gubernatorial contest in which the Klan figured still is in doubt. Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, the Democratic candidate, is running a neck-and-neck race in Wyoming with Frank E. Sullivan, the Republican nominee. Mrs. Ross was nominated by the Democrats when her husband, then Governor, died recently in office.

The Klan also would fought altogether on Tom Heflin, who had won a victory in Oklahoma, where, in the primaries, he was elected to the United States Senate over the Democratic opposition of ex-Governor Walton, who made a straight-out anti-Klan fight. Anti-Klan victory has been claimed in Kansas, where the Republican candidate, Ben S. Paulen, has been elected Governor defeating Jonathan M. Davis, the Democratic incumbent, and William Allen White, who made the Klan in the hope of securing the nomination and bolted elsewhere.

Klan is reported to have won in Indiana, resulting in Gubernatorial candidates, Jackson, the Republican candidate, and Governor Charles Jackson, Democrat, in a close contest. The Democratic Chairman of Michigan claims victory for his party's candidate for Governor, but the Republicans claim victory for their candidate, Fred W. Green, by a small majority.

The votes as viewed in official points life probably have been swelled by the election to the national House of Representatives of Mary T. Norton of Jersey City, candidate in the overwhelmingly Democratic Hudson County. The first figures received also show that Nellie Craig, Democrat, of Kansas is endangering the seat in the House now held by Representative Fincher.

Radio Tells the News Early.

A new feature in national elections this year was the broadcasting throughout the country of the returns as fast as they were gathered. Many millions kept in touch in that way with the hour-to-hour tallying of the votes and went to bed knowing the outcome both of the Presidential race and even of the local contests in which they were interested. One result of the broadcasting was to keep down the election crowds on the streets, hordes of people gathering around bulletin boards in homes, clubs and other meeting places.

Almost everywhere the balloting was carried on under favorable skies, although there were some slight showers on the Pacific Coast and in some of the Northwestern States. Early tabulations, taken in connection with the country-wide increase in registration, indicated that a record vote had been cast throughout the country. That result was attributed in part to the weather, but in part to the interest aroused by the lively fight among the three principal parties and in part to campaigns by candidates, civic organizations and the press to persuade the recalcitrant or indifferent citizen to do his duty at the polls.

CITY ELECTS SMITH

Governor Smith's Brooklyn vote exceeded even that of two years ago. When all the districts are heard from it is expected his plurality will reach at least 152,000. It was large enough to carry along to victory all the lesser Democratic candidates. All eight Democratic Representatives were re-elected.

Borough President Edward Riegelmann, running for Supreme Court Justice, had a plurality of about 80,000, while the plurality of Judge Vause reached 100,000. Democratic County leader, John H. McCooey, was jubilant. He pointed out that his prophesy of success had been vindicated, and that the county had remained staunchly Democratic in the face of the Republican sweep of the country.

The size of Roosevelt's vote up-State was a big surprise to the Smith forces. He carried cities which gave Smith a substantial majority two years ago. It was the early returns from these cities which gave the Smith men a scare and indicated that the Governor would have to get a big plurality in New York City in order to overcome the up-State Republican lead.

The indications at 9 o'clock were that the race for Governor would be close, but when the heavily Democratic strongholds in Manhattan and the Bronx began to be heard from the indicated Roosevelt strength began to dwindle and the outlook for a Smith triumph took on tangible form.

Industrial Centres for Roosevelt.

The early returns showed that Roosevelt had carried seven of the first eight up-State cities to report, five of which had been carried by Smith two years ago. The cities carried by Roosevelt were Rome, Poughkeepsie, Buffalo, Newburgh, Binghamton, Gloversville and Syracuse. The turnover from Smith to Roosevelt in the up-State cities was especially noticeable in the industrial centres which gave La Follette a large vote and which were expected to be carried by the Governor. Instead of the La Follette voters also going to Smith, they apparently voted for Roosevelt.

Buffalo, which gave Governor Smith a plurality of 16,463 two years ago, gave Roosevelt a plurality yesterday of 10,709. Binghamton, a strong industrial centre because of the large shoe plants there and which Smith carried by a plurality of 1,189 over Nathan L. Miller two years ago, turned completely over and gave Roosevelt a plurality of 4,011.

Syracuse, which was carried by Smith two years ago by a plurality of 9,280, gave Roosevelt yesterday a plurality of 4,494, an overturn of 10,754 votes. Onandaga County, carried by Smith by a few hundred two years ago, went for Roosevelt by about 10,000. Roosevelt carried the city of Newburgh by 2,200, as compared to Miller's plurality of 206 two years ago. Smith lost Schenectady by about 5,000. The vote was Roosevelt 21,418 and Smith 16,413. The Smith managers expected to carry the city, it being the home of the Governor's running mate, Lieutenant Governor Lunn.

Chautauqua True to Form.

Chautauqua came through with its old time Roosevelt strength. The elder Roosevelt made a special trip there on election eve when he ran for Governor. Yesterday the younger Roosevelt carried it over Smith by over three to one.

Oswego, which has been a Smith stronghold, again gave the Governor a plurality of more than 2,000. Rensselaer County also gave Smith a plurality of nearly 4,000.

It was estimated that President Coolidge's plurality in Suffolk County would be from 12,000 to 15,000, while Roosevelt carried the county by 7,000 or 8,000.

La Follette received from 2,000 to 3,000 votes in Suffolk County.

The first complete county vote for Lieutenant Governor came from Monroe, which gave Lunn 48,807 and Lowman 69,563. In 1922 the county gave Governor Smith a plurality of 315.

Throughout the State there was a small vote cast for Thomas, the Socialist candidate for Governor.

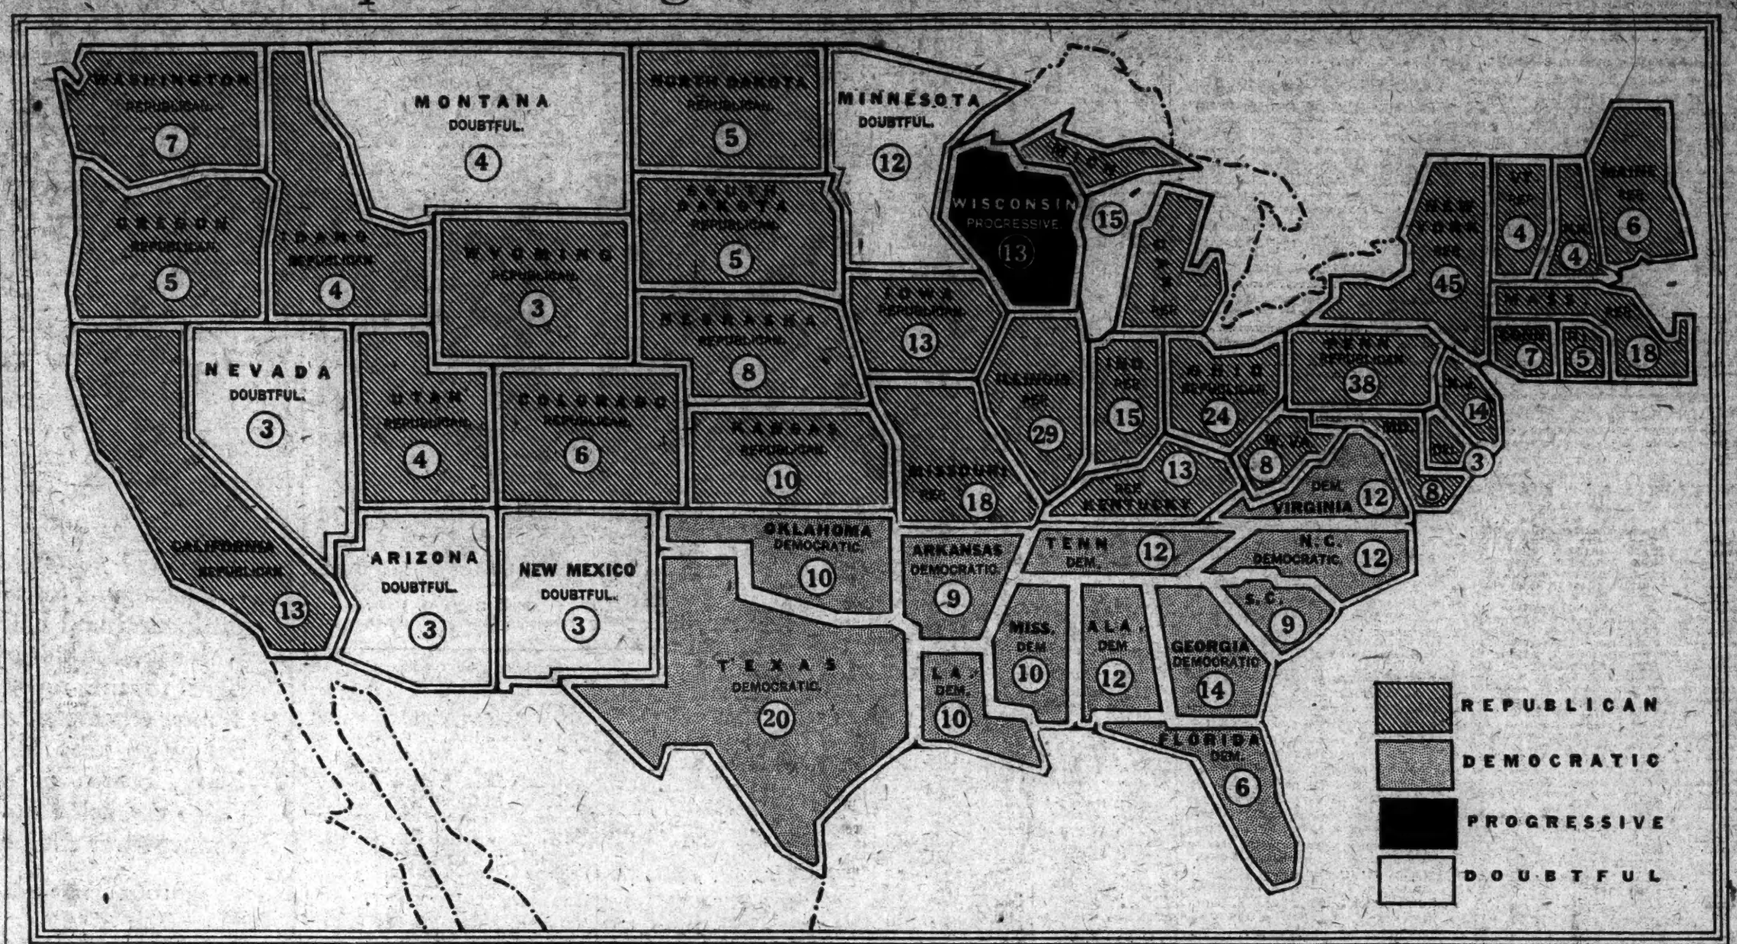
COOLIDGE CARRIES MAJORITY OF STATES

President Wins in All of the East and Makes Big Sweep in the West.

THIRD PARTY'S VOTE SMALL

La Follette Runs Third in the Polls in States He Expected to Carry.

Map Showing How the States Voted



Some of the Far Western States are classed as doubtful only because returns are inadequate, due to the difference in time.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PENNSYLVANIA—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressmen, State Treasurer and Auditor General, and on a referendum measure for a State constitutional convention. Vote in 1920—Republican, 1,218,213; Democratic, 503,202.
Polls closed at 7 P. M.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—Coolidge and Dawes and the entire Republican ticket were carried to victory in Pennsylvania today by an emphatic sweep. The President's plurality in the State, according to estimates based on returns from more than half the State, may exceed 700,000 votes.

Returns from Allegheny County indicate Coolidge is leading Davis of a rate of 13 to 1, with La Follette leading Davis 5 to 1. La Follette developed surprising strength in the residential wards of Pittsburgh. There are indications the La Follette vote will beat that of John W. Davis.

Returns from 400 districts on the question of holding a constitutional convention in 1926 give: Yes, 10,600, and no, 43,610.

The Republican State ticket, with Samuel W. Lewis for State Treasurer, Edward Martin for Auditor General and Judge Frank M. Trexler for re-election to the Superior Court, swamped the Democratic and all other opposition.

The Republican candidates for Congress were successful in thirty or more districts.

Of the 208 members of the State House of Representatives the Republicans elected at least 180, and probably more, members.

OHIO.

OHIO—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials. Vote in 1920—Republican, 1,182,022; Democratic, 780,037.
Polls closed at 5:30 P. M.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 4.—Republican State headquarters at midnight tonight predicted President Coolidge would carry Ohio by 500,000 on the face of returns from one-fifth of the State's 8,460 precincts, which showed Coolidge leading John W. Davis by 121,000 votes.

The tabulation showed Coolidge, 231,-153; Davis, 110,011; La Follette, 44,482.

La Follette was showing his greatest strength in Cleveland, which, it was indicated, he would carry. The chief interest was manifested in the Gubernatorial race between Governor Donahey and former Governor Harry L. Davis of Cleveland.

In the early returns they ran neck and neck, but as the night wore on Donahey began to gain and at midnight he had taken what appeared to be a commanding lead.

For Governor 1,768 precincts out of a total of 8,400 gave Davis, Rep., 155,-335; Donahey, Dem., 168,068.

The vote was cast early and was unprecedentedly large, reports received from many sections showed. Some districts reported half of the vote in by noon.

La Follette early in the voting was carrying districts containing many railroad workers by a ratio of 3 to 1, while foreign precincts were being carried by the Independent candidate by more than 6 to 1. In negro neighborhoods La Follette was running neck and neck with Coolidge.

At several precincts men who said they were La Follette watchers appeared at the polls. They presented passes, according to the police, signed with the names of Newton D. Baker and Richard E. Coblins, officers of the Democratic County Executive Committee. Police were called and the men were ejected.

Gilbert Knight, assistant secretary of the La Follette forces, said he had visited every precinct in the Twelfth Ward and found candidates marking ballots for voters. He said he had affidavits and would prefer charges.

Cuyahoga County and this city, home of the Republican candidate, is giving Davis for Governor a large plurality, but rural sections are voting almost as a unit for Donahey.

MISSOURI.

MISSOURI—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on initiative proposals. Vote in 1920—Republican, 727,162; Democratic, 834,709.
Polls closed at 7 P. M. (8 P. M. New York time).

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—President Coolidge went ahead tonight in the counting of Missouri's vote for President.

In 1,954 precincts of the State's 4,069 Coolidge had 251,802 votes, Davis 238,898 and La Follette 18,897.

In thirteen of the sixteen Congressional districts of the State in which contests were held, the Democrats were leading in eight.

In returns from 158 precincts, Mrs. Kate Morrow of Warrensburg, Democrat, the first woman to be nominated for State office in Missouri on a major party ticket, was leading her Republican opponent, Charles U. Becker, Secretary of State, by a plurality of 5,221. The vote was: Mrs. Morrow, 17,207; Becker, 11,986.

INDIANA.

INDIANA—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials. Vote in 1920—Republican, 696,370; Democratic, 511,364.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 4.—As the later votes came in from the rural districts of Indiana the early lead gained by President Coolidge in the municipalities mounted into unprecedented figures for a Republican landslide in the Hoosier State, according to the estimate of The Indianapolis News, in which Coolidge will sweep the State will be at least 200,000, with a possibility of going better than 250,000, thereby setting a new record for Indiana in a Presidential campaign, the best previous plurality being gained by the late President Harding, who carried the State by 185,000 votes.

Coolidge carried along with him the entire State ticket, including Major Ed Jackson for the Governorship, in spite of the fight which was waged against him by the anti-Klan forces. The indications are that Jackson's plurality will be around 100,000 over Dr. Carlton B. McCulloch, the Democratic nominee.

Incomplete returns show that the eight Congressional districts which were represented by Republicans have been retained, and that at least two of the five seats held by Democrats are in jeopardy. In the First District Representative Wilson, Democrat, is running behind Harry Rowbottom. Ralph Updike, Republican, has carried the Seventh District by 20,000 votes. This is the Indianapolis district, which at present is represented by Merrill Moores, who was defeated in the Republican primary by Updike, who gained the support of the Klan.

La Follette's vote in the State ran far below expectations and may not reach 75,000.

MICHIGAN.

MICHIGAN—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on amendments to the State Constitution. Vote in 1920—Republican, 762,865; Democratic, 283,450.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—President Coolidge far as reported in Michigan. In each swept all before him in the election so instance the Coolidge totals equaled or exceeded those rolled up in the Harding landslide of 1920, when the late President received a 500,000 majority over James M. Cox in Michigan.

La Follette had carried only one small precinct in Menominee County, that by one vote.

The school amendment, which would abolish private educational institutions, is apparently overwhelmingly defeated. Returns from 111 precincts in the State give: Yes, 12,447; no, 23,759.

The verdict against the income tax amendment is even more complete. Returns from 111 precincts give: Yes, 6,974; no, 25,025.

The returns from 507 precincts out of 2,775 were: Coolidge, 141,334; Davis, 27,594; La Follette, 21,545.

MASSACHUSETTS.

MASSACHUSETTS—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on referendum questions. Vote in 1920—Republican, 681,153; Democratic, 276,691.
Polls closed at 8 P. M.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 4.—President Coolidge has carried his home State by a margin over Davis of about 400,000 and the entire State ticket has been swept into office by heavy majorities.

Lieut. Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, running for Governor, crushed the aspirations of Mayor James M. Curley, the Democratic candidate. Senator David I. Walsh, running for re-election has evidently been beaten by Speaker Gillett in the face of incomplete returns.

Returns from 645 precincts outside of Boston for Senator give Gillett (R.), 239,539 and Walsh (D.), 174,961. In Boston 224 precincts give Gillett (R.), 53,-404 and Walsh (D.), 115,634. This gives Gillett a net lead of nearly 4,000 with many out of Boston districts to come.

Democratic hopes that the Boston vote would offset Republican strength outside were disappointed. Coolidge proved so strong, even in Boston, that Republicans asserted he would carry the city by a small margin.

The State's vote will run between 1,100,000 and 1,200,000, the largest in its history. Careful observers are giving Coolidge a total of 700,000 votes in the final count, Davis 300,000 and La Follette upward of 100,000.

A heavy "no" vote was returned against the child labor amendment. Daylight saving seemed doomed to defeat and the two cent gasoline tax was smothered both in the city and rural districts.

Returns from 311 districts out of 1,158 in the State outside of Boston give Coolidge 110,653, Davis 27,794 and La Follette 12,900.

Returns from 170 precincts out of 274 in Boston give Coolidge 54,283, Davis 24,899 and La Follette 20,241.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 4.—The ballots of President and Mrs. Coolidge, which were received here Saturday by City Clerk James R. Mansfield, were counted late today in Ward 2, the President's home ward, along with those of other absentee voters. In accordance with the law the votes of absentees were not unsealed until after the polls closed.

GEORGIA.

GEORGIA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on amendments to the State Constitution. Vote in 1920—Republican, 43,720; Democratic, 107,162.
Polls closed at 7 P. M.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 4.—Returns tonight from 600 precincts out of 1,735 in Georgia give John W. Davis 52,560, Calvin Coolidge 27,560 and Senator La Follette 5,160.

Next to the Presidential race, interest centred in amendments to the State Constitution, the principal one, a proposal to change from annual to biennial sessions of the Legislature, being carried, according to early indications.

Governor Clifford Walker, Democrat, was opposed by Bedinger Baylor, independent, who obtained fewer than 1,000 votes.

In several other State races and in two Congressional contests there was opposition, but the Democratic nominees were easy winners in all twelve districts.

IOWA.

IOWA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials. Vote in 1920—Republican, 634,674; Democratic, 227,921.
Polls closed at 7 P. M. (8 P. M. New York time).

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 4.—La Follette headquarters here conceded Iowa for President Coolidge at 10:15 o'clock tonight. At that time the President had a lead of about two to one over the Senator, with approximately one-third of the State's precincts heard from. Coolidge evidently will have a plurality of more than 150,000.

The vote when the concession was made was in 727 out of 2,418 precincts; Coolidge, 167,286; La Follette, 81,885; Davis, 40,729.

Daniel F. Steck, Democrat, continued to hold a lead of around 7,000 over Senator Smith W. Brookhart in the race for Senate, even when the early returns from rural districts, believed to be Brookhart strongholds, began to come in. The vote on Senator in 1,275 of Iowa's 2,418 districts was: Steck 245,-786, Brookhart 237,110.

John Hamill, Republican, had an easy victory for Governor.

KENTUCKY.

KENTUCKY—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator and Congressmen, and on the question of a $75,000,000 bond issue for good roads, &c. Vote in 1920—Republican, 454,480; Democratic, 456,-497.
Polls closed at 4 P. M. (5 P. M. New York time.)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—After running second, at times more than 10,000 votes behind, President Coolidge took the lead in the Presidential race in Kentucky late tonight, with returns from 3,431 precincts out of 3,971 were reported. The vote then stood: Coolidge, 337,838; Davis, 331,244; La Follette, 29,800.

Reports from 3,393 precincts on the Senatorial race put Sackett (Republican) ahead of Stanley (Democrat), the figures being Sackett, 343,361; Stanley, 331,629.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Senator Ernst, Republican, of Kentucky late tonight telegraphed C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, that Kentucky appeared "safe" for the Coolidge, and that "everything pointed" to the election of the Republican candidate for Senator.

CALIFORNIA.

CALIFORNIA—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressmen and judicial officers, and on initiative measures and a constitutional amendment. Vote in 1920—Republican, 624,-992; Democratic, 229,191.
Polls closed at 7 P. M. (10 P. M. New York time).

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—A tabulation by The Associated Press at 11:30 P. M. based on returns from fifty-one of the fifty-eight counties and 2,800 precincts out of a total of 7,465 gave these results:

In 2,362 out of 7,465 precincts the vote was: Coolidge, 273,417; La Follette, 119,-702; Davis, 53,904; Faris, 4,560.

VIRGINIA.

VIRGINIA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen and State Corporation Commissioner. Vote in 1920—Republican, 87,456; Democratic, 141,670.
Polls closed at sunset.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 4.—Virginia has given John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan the usual majority which the Democratic Presidential ticket receives in the State of Thomas Jefferson.

Returns were slow in coming in, but study of the vote polled in each of ten Congressional districts indicates that Davis will receive a plurality of approximately 50,000 over Coolidge and La Follette.

Apathy which preceded the election is reflected in the small vote throughout the State. This, however, does not apply to Virginia's political battleground—the famous Ninth District—where the Republican strength of the Old Dominion is concentrated. Despite indications of a Coolidge victory, reports from the Ninth District indicate that George C. Peery will be returned to Congress over his Republican opponent, C. Henry Harman, by a very close vote.

TENNESSEE.

TENNESSEE—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and Railroad Commissioner. Vote in 1920—Republican, 219,829; Democratic, 206,558.
Polls closed at 5 P. M. (6 P. M. New York time).

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 4.—Returns from 1,825 of Tennessee's 2,130 election precincts give Davis 75,066 votes, Coolidge 65,930 and La Follette 2,549.

Governor Austin Peay, Democratic candidate for re-election, had 67,687 votes and his Republican opponent, T. F. Peck, 50,308.

Harvey Hannah, Democratic incumbent, was leading W. T. Testerman, his Republican opponent, in the contest for Railroad Commissioner by a ratio of approximately two to one.

On the question of holding a constitutional convention the vote was 6,167 for and 10,795 against.

WISCONSIN.

WISCONSIN—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on amendments to the Constitution. Vote in 1920—Republican, 498,576; Democratic, 113,422.
Polls closed at 5:30 P. M. (6:30 P. M. New York time.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 4.—Senator La Follette has a good lead over President Coolidge and John W. Davis in Wisconsin. He took the lead with the first returns from Milwaukee County, overtaking President Coolidge when 172 precincts out of 2,679 in the State gave him 21,223 to Coolidge's 18,877, with 5,068 for Davis.

In the Governor race, Judge Martin L. Lueck, Democrat, was trailing Governor John J. Blaine, La Follette, Republican, with 43,087 votes to Governor Blaine's 61,714 in 580 precincts out of the 2,679.

In 918 precincts reporting, La Follette's vote had mounted to 130,796, compared to Coolidge's 105,796 and Davis's 19,377.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Returns received at 11:30 in Congressional districts outside Milwaukee County indicated that all of the incumbent Republican Congressmen had been re-elected by safe majorities. Victor L. Berger, Socialist, apparently is returned in the Fifth District.

NORTH CAROLINA.

NORTH CAROLINA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on referendum measures. Vote in 1920—Republican, 232,848; Democratic, 505,-447.
Polls closed at sunset.

Special to The New York Times.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 4.—All reports show that a very large vote was cast today all over the State. A heavy woman vote has been recorded in every precinct.

The Democratic majority is as usual in this State. The vote for La Follette has been very disappointing to his friends.

In addition to the State officers, two referendums and three Constitutional amendments were voted on. The main fight, other than the State ticket, was on the referendum for the establishment of port terminals and water transportation facilities by the State. Both parties united on this measure, but the voters have overwhelmingly defeated it.

The Chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee says that from all reports received by him there has been a vote of 650,000 and Davis has received at least 400,000 of these, with Coolidge getting from 220,000 to 230,000 and La Follette about 20,000.

President Coolidge will receive at least a third more votes in this State than the Republican candidate for Governor. Senator Simmons has defeated Amadis Whitener, the Republican candidate, by a majority of 200,000.

All of the ten Democratic candidates for Congress have been elected.

A. W. McLean, who was a member of the War Finance Corporation and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Woodrow Wilson, was elected Governor by a majority of 250,000.

ALABAMA.

ALABAMA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Judges and minor State officials, and on an amendment to the State Constitution. Vote in 1920—Republican, 74,690; Democratic, 163,254.
Polls closed at 6 P. M. (7 P. M. New York time.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 4.—Returns from 205 of the 1,324 precincts in Alabama give Davis 23,944 votes; Coolidge, 3,391, and La Follette, 704.

MINNESOTA.

MINNESOTA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on amendments to the State Constitution. Vote in 1920—Republican, 519,421; Democratic, 142,994.
Polls closed at 9 P. M. (10 P. M. New York time.)

ST. PAUL, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—President Coolidge had a 17,654 vote lead over Senator La Follette in the first 341 precincts to report in Minnesota, the count standing: Coolidge, 62,-160 and La Follette 44,506. Davis had 9,765.

Included in these precincts, which were from seventeen counties, were 143 precincts in Minneapolis and St. Paul, where Coolidge led La Follette 27,786 to 21,638.

One hundred and thirty-four precincts out of 3,607 give Christiansen, Republican, 18,145; Olson, Farmer-Labor, 15,733; Avery, Democrat, 1,394 in the vote for Governor.

For Senator, 147 precincts out of 3,607 give Schall, Republican, 21,067; Johnson, Farmer-Labor, 15,870; Farrell, Democrat, 1,597.

MISSISSIPPI.

MISSISSIPPI—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator and Congressmen, and on amendments to the State Constitution. Vote in 1920—Republican, 11,596; Democratic, 69,277.

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 4.— Returns from 15 precincts out of 1,438 in the State give Davis 1,305; Coolidge, 33, and La Follette, 36.

OKLAHOMA.

OKLAHOMA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Corporation Commissioner and Supreme Court Justices. Vote in 1920—Republican, 243,464; Democratic, 215,809.
Polls closed at 7 P. M. (8 P. M. New York time).

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 4.—The early election returns showed John W. Davis leading President Coolidge by a few votes, but W. B. Pine, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, was smothering his Democratic opponent, J. C. Walton.

With 1,377 precincts out of a total of 2,194 heard from Mr. Davis had gained a commanding lead, and he seemed certain to carry the State.

In 1,377 precincts the vote was: Davis, 99,123; Coolidge, 82,594; La Follette, 12,182.

For United States Senator 1,614 precincts gave Walton, 94,747; Pine, 157,-848; Wilson, 4,712.

Six Democratic Congressmen and one Republican seeking re-election at 10 P. M. had leads over their opponents. In the Eighth District the Democratic candidate was setting the pace for the Republican entrant.

LOUISIANA.

LOUISIANA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator and Congressmen, and on a Constitutional amendment providing for an increase in pensions to Confederate veterans. Vote in 1920—Republican, 38,838; Democratic, 87,519.
Polls closed at 7 P. M. (8 P. M. New York time.)

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4.—About 175,-000 Louisiana citizens "stamped the rooster" on their ballots today, thereby carrying the State overwhelmingly for Davis and Bryan.

Early returns indicated that the Republican vote would not exceed 10,000 in the State, the largest gain being in the Second Congressional District, comprising part of New Orleans, where the popularity of the district electoral candidate brought several hundred votes to the Republicans.

Indications were that La Follette would not receive more than 2,000 votes throughout the State. Many who desired to vote for him vitiated their ballots by writing in the Senator's name instead of each district electoral candidate. The latter's name was not printed on the ticket, his followers being unable to obtain the necessary 1,000 names to a petition for this.

Louisiana has about 300,000 qualified voters.

KANSAS.

KANSAS—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on a bonus referendum for Spanish War veterans, &c. Vote in 1920—Republican, 369,268; Democratic, 185,464.
Polls closed at 7 P. M. (8 P. M. New York time).

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Kansas gave President Coolidge a heavy plurality in today's election and returned Arthur Capper, Republican, to the United States Senate by a large vote.

On returns from 507 out of 2,591 precincts, Coolidge ran almost three to one ahead of John W. Davis, with La Follette polling slightly more than half the Davis vote. The count was Coolidge 86,499, Davis 31,598, La Follette 18,836.

For Senator, the vote in 264 precincts was:

Capper (R.), 47,099.
Fraley (Ind.), 917.

In the three-cornered race for Governor, in which the Ku Klux Klan figured as the outstanding issue, Ben S. Paulen, Republican and reputed Klan endorsee, on unofficial returns appeared to be the victor over Governor Jonathan M. Davis, Democrat, and William Allen White, Emporia editor, Independent and anti-Klan candidate.

The vote for 294 precincts was:

Paulen, 41,071.
Davis, 24,181.
White, 18,378.

Chauncey B. Little is elected to Congress in the Second District, to succeed the late Edward C. Little. He is a Democrat.

Reports are that Miss Nellie Cline, Democrat, has defeated J. N. Tincher, Republican, in the Seventh District for Congress; also that W. A. Ayres is elected in the Eighth District. The contest is close in the Sixth District, but it is believed Hays B. White is elected by 3,000 majority over John Connelley.

The Republicans have elected Anthony in the First Congressional District, Sproul in the Third, Hoch in the Fourth and Strong in the Fifth.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

SOUTH CAROLINA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on constitutional amendments. Vote in 1920—Republican, 386; Democratic, 64,170.
Polls closed at 4 P. M.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 4.—Returns received from 167 percincts of the 1,364 in South Carolina give Davis 11,738, Coolidge 408 and La Follette 140.

NEBRASKA.

NEBRASKA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on a Constitutional amendment for three primaries. Vote in 1920—Republican, 247,486; Democratic, 119,006.
Polls closed at 8 P. M. (9 P. M. New York time.)

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Maintaining a lead which he established when first returns came in from Nebraska, President Coolidge forged far ahead of John W. Davis and Senator La Follette, polling almost as many votes as the combined vote of his two opponents when 397 of the State's 1,941 precincts had reported. The figures are: Coolidge 44,104; Davis, 20,328; La Follette, 20,167.

The President's lead was on an average of 37 votes per precinct, indicating if this ratio is maintained, that he will receive a plurality of about 70,000.

Senator George W. Norris, Republican, was re-elected, J. J. Thomas, his Democratic opponent, conceding defeat. A total of 366 precincts gave Norris 29,690 and Thomas 29,792.

A fairly close race developed in the Governorship, but Adam McMullen, Republican, had 40,006, compared to 33,497 for J. N. Norton, Democrat, and 3,635 for Dan Butler, Progressive, when 358 precincts had been tabulated.

WEST VIRGINIA.

WEST VIRGINIA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials. Vote in 1920—Republican, 282,007; Democratic, 220,789.
Polls closed at sunset.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 4.—A steadily mounting lead for President Coolidge showed late tonight when returns had been tabulated from 852 of the State's 2,191 precincts, while La Follette's total vote in the same number of precincts was less than Coolidge's plurality. The totals were: Coolidge, 95,425; Davis, 30,652; La Follette, 8,048.

Former Senator W. E. Chilton, Democratic candidate for the Senate, did not fall quite so far behind his Republican opponent, Guy D. Goff, who had a lead of 13,133 on returns from 630 precincts. Howard Gore, Acting Secretary of Agriculture, however, was doing better than the head of the ticket, due partly to the fact that the Socialist vote was negligible, except for La Follette, and he had a lead in the race for the Governorship of 22,752 on reports from 841 precincts.

Early returns indicated that the Republican vote would not exceed 10,000 in the State, the largest gain being in the Second Congressional District, comprising part of New Orleans, where the popularity of the district electoral candidate brought several hundred votes to the Republicans.

Indications were that La Follette would not receive more than 2,000 votes throughout the State. Many who desired to vote for him vitiated their ballots by writing in the Senator's name instead of each district electoral candidate. The latter's name was not printed on the ticket, his followers being unable to obtain the necessary 1,000 names to a petition for this.

Louisiana has about 300,000 qualified voters.

ARIZONA.

ARIZONA—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressman, Governor and other State officials, and on amendments to the State Constitution. Vote in 1920—Republican, 37,-416; Democratic, 29,546.

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 4.—President Coolidge and John W. Davis ran closely in the early returns, but the President gained as they continued to come in.

Sixty-six out of 484 precincts give: Coolidge, 3,310; Davis, 2,976; La Follette, 590.

Dwight B. Heard, Republican, was in the lead in his Gubernatorial contest with Governor George W. P. Hunt, Democrat.

For Governor seventy-nine precincts gave:

Hunt, 5,243; Heard, 6,394.

MARYLAND.

MARYLAND—Voted for Presidential Electors and Congressman and on a constitutional amendment providing for aid or adjusted compensation to war veterans. Vote in 1920—Republican, 236,117; Democratic, 180,626.
Polls closed at 7 P. M.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 4.—President Coolidge has carried Maryland over John W. Davis by a plurality estimated at 10,000 to 10,000.

Chairman Trait of the Republican State Committee said at midnight the plurality would exceed 25,000. Harding's plurality in the State was 53,491, and in Baltimore City 56,490. Coolidge's plurality in the city exceeds 8,000.

The size of the Progressive vote in this city surprised even the new party's managers, but they are disappointed over results in the counties, in which their vote was very small. La Follette drew a greater part of his support in Baltimore from the Democrats, splitting the Davis vote.

The vote in 238 out of 1,122 precincts is:

First District—Alan Goldsborough, Democrat.

Third District—J. Philip Hill, Republican.

Fourth District—J. Charles Linthicum, Democrat.

Fifth District—Thomas Brackett Mudd, Republican.

The Second District is in doubt.

Urged by their race newspaper, the Afro-American, a daily edited and published by negroes, to vote for La Follette and for Representative Millard Tydings, Democrat, in the Second District, and Stephen W. Gambrill, Democrat, in the Fifth District, many negroes split their ballots this way. Each of these two districts includes wards in Baltimore City, and what defection there was from the Republican ticket by negroes was apparently confined to these city wards.

In the Third and Fourth Districts, wholly in Baltimore City, the negro vote went to the Republican candidates. In the negro wards in the city there was only slight falling off in the Republican vote, according to early returns.

In the wards in which Russian Jews and Italians and other foreigners predominate and in sections in which the mechanical and laboring classes are thickest the La Follette vote was heaviest, though not so large in some precincts as had been expected.

MONTANA.

MONTANA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on a soldiers' bonus amendment to the Constitution and a referendum measure. Vote in 1920—Republican, 109,430; Democratic, 77,372.
Polls closed at 8 P. M. (9 P. M. New York time).

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 4.—President Coolidge had a lead of 2 to 1 in the first returns made in the election today. La Follette led John W. Davis.

174 precincts out of the total of 1,533 gave:

IDAHO.

IDAHO—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on an amendment to the State Constitution affecting water power. Vote in 1920—Republican, 86,970; Democratic, 46,379.

Special to The New York Times.

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 4.—The first concession of defeat was made in the election tonight when Frank Martin, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, wired his congratulations to his opponent, United States Senator Borah, on his election.

For United States Senator the figures were: Borah (R), 1,856; Martin (D), 804.

Senator Borah will, the incomplete returns so far received here indicate, lead the Republican ticket by a plurality of from 30,000 to 35,000. All indications are that one of the heaviest votes in the history of the State have been cast. It will be close to 150,000.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

SOUTH DAKOTA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on referendum questions. Vote in 1920—Republican, 110,027; Democratic, 83,928.
Polls closed at 6 P. M. (6 P. M. New York time).

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 4.—L. N. Crill, Democratic State Chairman, at 11 P. M. conceded that President Coolidge had carried South Dakota "by a safe margin."

President Coolidge took the lead from the start, and was never headed by Senator La Follette.

In 426 precincts out of 1,898 in the State, the vote was: Coolidge, 24,183; La Follette, 22,425, and Davis, 5,260.

All three Republican Congressmen, Charles A. Christopherson, Royal C. Johnson and William Williamson, were leading their nearest opponents by approximately 2 to 1.

Governor W. H. McMaster, Republican, in 303 precincts had a lead of more than 4,000 votes over N. S. G. Cherry, Democrat, in the race for Senator. The vote was: McMaster, 26,423; Cherry, 22,129; Ayres, Farmer-Labor, 3,282 and Egan, Independent, 3,316.

Carl Gunderson, Republican, was leading W. J. Bulow, Democrat, by an increasing margin in the race for Governor. The vote in 136 precincts was Gunderson, 7,028; Bulow, 3,402.

OREGON.

OREGON—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen and minor State officials, and on constitutional amendments and initiative measures. Vote in 1920—Republican, 143,592; Democratic, 80,019.
Polls closed at 8 P. M. (11 P. M. New York time).

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 4.—At midnight tonight Oregon had given President Coolidge a 40,000 plurality, had elected Senator C. L. McNary and three Republican Representatives—M. E. Crumpacker, W. C. Hawley and T. T. Stinnott.

There was no candidate for Governor this year, Pierce, Democrat, holding over. Outside of the Presidential, Senatorial and Congressional race, the biggest fight was for State Treasurer. The State's affairs were uppermost in the minds of the people as the Republican sweep of the Administration ticket practically was conceded.

Thirty-seven precincts of 1,760 give: Coolidge 1,857, Davis 1,329, La Follette 1,121, Johns, Socialist-Labor, 9.

A total of 242 precincts out of 1,760 gave Coolidge 17,624, Davis 4,387, La Follette 5,747, Johns (Socialist-Labor), 213.

When 365 complete and incomplete precincts out of 1,760 had been compiled, the vote stood: Coolidge, 25,238; Davis, 8,170; La Follette, 8,715.

COLORADO.

COLORADO—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senators, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on a Constitutional amendment affecting adjusted compensation for war veterans. Vote in 1920—Republican, 173,248; Democratic, 104,934.
Polls closed at 7 P. M. (9 P. M. New York time).

DENVER, Nov. 4.—President Coolidge took a lead of almost two to one over the combined totals of his two opponents, John W. Davis and Senator La Follette, in returns from 137 precincts out of 1,466 in Colorado at midnight.

The figures were:

Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, Republican, led his opponent, Senator Alva Adams, Democrat, 4,074 to 3,962 in sixty-nine precincts.

In the race for the short Senatorial term Rice W. Means, Republican and Ku Klux Klan endorsee, had 3,649 to 2,602 for Morrison Shafroth, Democrat, in sixty-nine precincts.

Clarence J. Morley, Ku Klux Klan candidate for Governor, running as a Republican, was leading Governor William E. Sweet, Democrat, on the face of returns from forty-six precincts, which gave Morley 5,260; Sweet, 3,784.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen and Governor. Vote in 1920—Republican, 96,196; Democratic, 62,662.
Polls closed at 6 P. M.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 4.—Returns from 150 of the election districts of the 294 in New Hampshire indicated that Coolidge would carry the State by a plurality larger than Harding's 32,000 four years ago. It was expected he would sweep in the entire State ticket along with him. The La Follette vote was below expectations.

The big gains in the Republican votes seemed likely to give Captain John G. Winant, Republican candidate for Governor

SENATE WILL HAVE MANY NEW FACES

COLE BLEASE A FIGHTER

Gen. Tyson of Tennessee, League Advocate, Will Be the Second A. E. F. Senator.

Several new faces will be seen in the United States Senate after March 4 because of the elections yesterday, including Speaker Gillett of the House.

Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts, Speaker of the House of Representatives, was generally accepted as the personal choice of President Coolidge for the Senate. He had the backing of Chairman Butler of the Republican National Committee and received the Administration support in the primaries.

Mr. Gillett was born at Westfield, Mass., Oct. 16, 1851, and was graduated at Amherst College in 1874 and Harvard Law School in 1877. He was admitted to the bar in Springfield, Mass., in 1877, was Assistant Attorney General of Massachusetts from 1879 to 1882 and was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1890 and in 1891.

In 1892 Mr. Gillett was elected to the Fifty-third Congress and was re-elected to all succeeding Congresses. He was chosen Speaker of the House in May, 1919, his chief opponent for the post being Representative James R. Mann of Illinois, who was unacceptable to the Progressive elements in the Republican Party.

For a decade before he became Speaker Mr. Gillett was a member of the House Committee on Appropriations. He was recorded as a supporter of most of the Administration policies when his party was in power in Congress, but throughout the World War he supported every measure advanced by the Wilson Administration. As the ranking Republican member on the Appropriations Committee, he worked with the Democratic members to help carry out the Wilson war policies.

Mr. Gillett was a bachelor until 1916, when he married Mrs. Christine Rice Hoar, the widow of Rockwood Hoar, a member of Congress from Massachusetts, who died in 1906.

Blease Known as a Fighter.

Cole L. Blease was Governor of South Carolina for two terms from 1911 to 1915 and his administration of the affairs of the State was marked by many spectacular incidents. During his service he pardoned or paroled about 1,650 murderers, burglars and other violators of the law, and one day he issued a proclamation announcing that he had granted a full and free pardon to 1,000 former State prisoners who had been paroled by him.

Governor Blease got into a controversy with the War Department regarding the status of the National Guard of South Carolina in 1915, during which he referred to Lindley M. Garrison, then Secretary of War, as a "pug-nosed little Yankee." Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, was also made the object of a fiery attack, Blease referring to him as a "very small man." It also was charged against Blease by his enemies that he disregarded the State Constitution.

Mr. Blease was born in Newberry County, South Carolina, in October, 1868. He was graduated at Georgetown University and was admitted to the bar in 1889. He followed up his spectacular career as Governor by almost equally spectacular fights to get into the United States Senate, and in the September primaries he succeeded in defeating Nat B. Dial, who had beaten Blease in the primary fight of 1918.

The defeat of Blease in the primary fight in 1918 was due in no small part to the opposition of President Wilson, who wrote a letter during the campaign asking the people of South Carolina to defeat him.

Charles S. Deneen, former Governor of Illinois, was one of the "Seven Little Governors" who called upon Colonel Theodore Roosevelt to make a fight for the Republican nomination in 1912. When Colonel Roosevelt failed to beat President Taft in the convention and organized the Progressive Party, Governor Deneen, however, was among those who refused to break away from the Republican ranks.

Deneen "Regular" Party Man.

Mr. Deneen was born at Edwardsville, Ill., on May 4, 1863. He was admitted to the Bar in 1886 and practiced for several years in Chicago. He was State Attorney for Cook County from 1896 to 1904 and was an active figure in the politics of the State. He served two terms as Governor, from 1905 to 1913.

Mr. Deneen has always been known as a "regular" in party affairs and in this he held good by refusing to follow Roosevelt in the thirty party venture. He entered the primaries against Senator Medill McCormick last May and won by about 4,000 votes.

Brig. Gen. Lawrence D. Tyson of Tennessee is the second officer who served in the line to be elected to the United States Senate. The first was Senator Reed of Pennsylvania.

General Tyson is a follower of the League of Nations proposals made by Woodrow Wilson and is a statesman of the "bone-dry" school. He was nominated in the primaries in Tennessee in August, defeating Senator John K. Shields, who was one of the few Democrats to join the irreconcilable Republican bloc in its anti-League fight in the Senate.

General Tyson is a lawyer and was born at Greeneville, N. C., on July 4, 1861. He was graduated at West Point in 1883 and was professor of military science and tactics of the University of Tennessee from 1891 to 1895. In 1896 General Tyson was chosen as President of the Knoxville Cotton Mills.

During the Spanish-American War he served as a Colonel and when mustered out in 1899 was made Brigadier General and Inspector General on the staff of the Governor of Tennessee.

In 1913 General Tyson was a candidate for United States Senator before the Tennessee Legislature but lost by five votes.

When the United States entered the World War General Tyson was placed in command of the Fifty-ninth Brigade of the Thirtieth Division. He was with the British at Ypres and in the Lys canal sector and later at the breaking of the Hindenburg line at Bellicourt and Nauroy. He was awarded the D. S. M. for "extraordinary conduct during the war."

DAVIS HEADQUARTERS QUIET

Managers Against Conceding Defeat Till Far West Is Heard From.

A crowd of Democratic campaign workers heard the returns of the national campaign without enthusiasm last night at Democratic Eastern headquarters on the seventeenth and eighteenth floors of the Hotel Belmont. The returns came in by radio and telephone, indicating Coolidge everywhere, but the Davis managers declared they would not concede a Republican victory until the last word was said.

"We won't concede it to President Coolidge until we get the returns from Indiana, Missouri, the Mountain States and the Far West," said John Nevins, personal publicity representative for John W. Davis.

majority of at least 29, if the Democrats win all the doubtful districts, which is hardly likely. Omitting the doubtful districts the Republicans now will have 48 majority over the combined opposition.

When Congress adjourned in June the political line-up of the Senate was Republicans, 51; Democrats, 43, and Farmer-Laborites, 2. This gave the Republicans a majority of six over the combined opposition. It was merely a nominal majority, however, as the La Follette group of Republicans, consisting of Senators La Follette, Norris, Brookhart, Ladd and Frazier held the balance of power and more often threw in their lot with the Democrats and managed to overturn much of the legislation advocated by the regular Republican Senators at the instance of President Coolidge.

Six Senate Contests in Doubt.

While the Republicans still lack one of the number of Senators they had when Congress adjourned in June the Coolidge swing is likely to give them the advantage in the results of the six contests which remain in doubt. The Republicans have gained a Senate seat through the apparent defeat of A. O. Stanley in Kentucky by his Republican opponent, Fred M. Sackett. Early returns indicating Stanley's re-election gave way to a Sackett lead which was increasing as returns came to hand early this morning.

In Colorado Senator Lawrence C. C. Phipps, Republican, has apparently been elected to succeed himself, defeating John B. Adams, Democrat, who served in the Senate until it adjourned last June under appointment of the Governor of his State. Adams was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Nicholson, Republican, which expires in 1927. He decided to contest Senator Phipps's election for the full term of six years, beginning next March. The result of the contest in Colorado for the balance of Senator Nicholson's term in the Senate is in doubt, with Rice W. Means, Republican, having a slight lead over Morrison Shafroth in the latest returns.

One of the surprises of yesterday's election was the sudden switch in the relative standing of Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Democrat, candidate for reelection, and Representative Frederick H. Gillett, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, his Republican opponent. Early returns indicated that Gillett had won the Senatorship by a substantial majority, but late last night and in the earliest hours of this morning Walsh took what seemed to be a substantial lead. The Boston Globe, a Democratic newspaper, however, estimates that Gillett will win by a majority of something more than 18,000. Gillett's election would be a Republican gain in the Senate. Still later returns made it appear practically certain that Gillett had defeated Walsh.

The political fortunes of Smith W. Brookhart, the radical La Follette Republican Senator from Iowa, hang in the balance this morning with the returns indicating that Captain Daniel F. Steck, his Democratic opponent, who was former commander of the American Legion in his State, may defeat Brookhart.

Magnus Johnson in Danger.

Magnus Johnson, who was elected to the Senate from Minnesota in July, 1923, as a Farmer-Laborite to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Knute Nelson, Republican, is also in danger of defeat. Johnson is a member of the La Follette group in the Senate. His Republican opponent, Congressman Thomas D. Schall, was elected originally to the House of Representatives as a Progressive Republican and has shown leanings toward radicalism. His election, however, would be regarded as a Republican gain.

Senators Borah of Idaho, Capper of Kansas, Cousens of Michigan, Norris of Nebraska, Keyes of New Hampshire, Edge of New Jersey, McNary of Oregon, and Warren of Wyoming—Republicans were elected yesterday. The Republicans also elected to the Senate T. Coleman du Pont in Delaware, C. S. Deneen in Illinois, J. H. Metcalfe in Rhode Island and G. D. Goff in West Virginia to fill seats which are or were held in the present Congress by Republicans.

Democratic Senators re-elected yesterday were Heflin of Alabama, Robinson of Arkansas, Harris of Georgia, Ransdell of Louisiana, Harrison of Mississippi, Simmons of North Carolina, Sheppard of Texas and Glass of Virginia.

The Democrats also elected in South Carolina Cole L. Blease, who had a sensational career as Governor of that State to succeed Senator Dial, whom he defeated in the primaries; and in Tennessee they elected General Lawrence D. Tyson, who defeated Senator Shields in the primaries. General Tyson commanded a brigade of the famous Thirtieth Division in the World War.

Walton Beaten in Oklahoma.

Jack C. Walton who was deposed from the Governorship of Oklahoma was defeated for the Senate yesterday in the contest in which he ran as the Democratic candidate against W. B. Pine, Republican. This is a Republican Senatorial gain as Pine will succeed to the seat now held by Senator Robert L. Owen, Democrat, who declined to be a candidate for re-election. Walton ran on an anti-Ku Klux Klan platform. Pine was accused of being a member of the Klan but denied it.

Returns received up to an early hour this morning did not indicate clearly the result of the intensive contest for the Senate in Montana, but incomplete returns gave the impression that Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, the so-called "prosecutor" of the Senate committee which investigated the naval oil leases, might be elected over his Republican opponent, Frank B. Linderman. It was contended by Linderman's campaign management, however, that returns from parts of the State where Linderman was strong would insure his election.

Walsh was endorsed by Senator La Follette and by Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who was elected to the Senate two years ago as a Democrat but who ran as Vice President this year on the La Follette Third Party ticket.

The fate of Senator Holm O. Bursum, Republican, of New Mexico, hangs in the balance. Returns indicate that there is a close race between Bursum and Sam Bratton, his Democratic opponent.

A number of Democratic Congressmen were defeated but there also was a proportion of Republican defeats where members of that party sought re-election to the House.

One woman, Miss Mary T. Norton, has been elected to the House as a Democrat from New Jersey. She lives in Jersey City. So far returns received indicated she was the only woman successful in yesterday's Congressional contests.

General Isaac Sherwood, who has served several years in the House of Representatives as a Democrat, appears to have been defeated by his Republican opponent in Ohio. General Sherwood is a veteran of the Civil War.

HILLES CONGRATULATES COOLIDGE ON ELECTION

Says It Is a Vindication and Commendation of the Course He Pursued.

Charles D. Hilles, Vice Chairman of the Republican National Committee, in a telegram of congratulation to President Coolidge last night, declared that his election was a vindication and commendation for the course he had pursued. The telegram read:

The President,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.:

I congratulate you heartily upon the decisive result. It has been a stirring campaign of enlightment, cleanly fought, and the reactions in the sober sense of the people are as significant as they are satisfying. Your triumphant election in the face of incidents and conditions that are already receding into the background is not only a complete vindication and generous commendation of the course you have pursued, but an expression of confidence in you and of a desire that you shall continue to be a dominant figure in this important stage of the very critical period of readjustment due to the new conditions created by the World War.

The verdict is that you are now competent to govern and that it is your duty to lead.

Those who have a close knowledge of you, of the courageous and honest things you have done, of your motives and methods, and of the quality of your patriotism are reverently celebrating Thanksgiving Day some twenty-three days in advance of the day you will shortly set apart for that purpose by proclamation.

I congratulate not only you and Mrs. Coolidge and the party which you represent adequately and with credit, but the country as well.

CHARLES D. HILLES.

Mr. Hilles also sent the following congratulatory telegram to William M. Butler, Republican National Chairman:

"Hon. William M. Butler, Chicago, Ill.

Hon. William M. Butler, Chicago, Ill.

I congratulate you warmly upon the consummation of your plan of campaign and the success that has attended its execution. Events have proved that you were well adapted to the requirements of a difficult situation and President was both wise and fortunate in the selection of his field marshal. The control of government turned in this crisis upon new issues created and emphasized by a President of exceptionally rugged strength of character and of clearly demonstrated capacity. You builded an organization to back him that is compact and homogeneous and that organization attracted to the party standards thousands of patriots to whom politics is a natural incident to the business of citizenship.

CHARLES D. HILLES.

Mr. Hilles said at midnight that Coolidge had 329 electoral votes sure, and at least 341 "indicated." He said the Republicans were satisfied with the result of the Senatorial contests, especially with the victories of Gillett in Massachusetts and Pine in Oklahoma, both of which he claimed. He said Coolidge had more votes in Montana than Davis and La Follette combined, and had carried Missouri, Oregon, Washington and California.

Mr. Hilles conceded that it looked as if Colonel Theodore Roosevelt had lost to Governor Smith by about 100,000.

At 3 o'clock this morning, making his final statement before going home for the night, Mr. Hilles raised his estimate of President Coolidge's electoral vote to "more than 350." He estimated the popular vote as follows: Coolidge, 15,000,000; Davis, 5,000,000; La Follette, 4,000,000.

Mr. Hilles said the returns indicated that the Republicans would have fifty seats in the Senate of the next Congress—sixty-three holdovers and seventeen elected yesterday; the Democrats forty-one—twenty-nine holdovers and twelve elected yesterday, and two Farmer-Labor Senators. He said the Senatorial elections were still in doubt, however, in West Virginia, South Dakota, New Mexico and Kentucky.

ILLINOIS REPUBLICAN; LA FOLLETTE IS THIRD

Big Radical Vote Fails to Materialize—Deneen and Gov. Small Win.

ILLINOIS—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials. Vote in 1920—Republican, 1,420,480; Democratic, 634,395. Polls closed at 5 P. M. (6 P. M. New York time.)

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Calvin Coolidge has won the electoral vote of Illinois by such a decisive majority that it may be found he has outrun the joint vote of his two rivals, Davis and La Follette. The early returns fail to show the great vote for the radical ticket that was prophesied in some quarters.

With 1,396 precincts missing out of the 5,089 in the State, President Coolidge had 811,631, Davis 122,679 and La Follette 89,328. The showing of the Wisconsin Senator was disappointing to his friends. The labor vote supported him in several big towns but the farmers of Illinois turned him down hard.

Chicago gave President Coolidge 190,792; Davis, 78,852, and La Follette, 59,322 on a count, of 1,436 precincts out of 2,233. This La Follette vote is about the size of the usual Socialist vote.

For the Senate, former Governor Deneen, Republican, has 835,240 votes in 1,523 precincts of the State, and Colonel Sprague, Democrat, 202,866.

The great Coolidge vote has swept Len Small, Republican, into office again. He was scratched by many thousands of Republicans, but his strength down-State, his good roads propaganda the late start of his opponent and the Coolidge popularity have evidently turned the trick for Small.

La Follette's vote, based on early returns, is only half that of Davis in this city. Davis was also running second down-State, with the exception of a few places, such as Freeport, Winnebago, Peoria and Kane Counties. Even in these counties the returns show the President running 3 to 1 over the Wisconsin Senator.

Some German communities in St. Clair and other counties in the East St. Louis region went for La Follette, but the big German vote that was promised the Wisconsin Senator in Chicago did not materialize.

The standing on the count of 1,890 of 5,089 precincts was: Coolidge, 429,580; Davis, 172,066; La Follette, 120,426.

For Governor: 831 precincts gave Small (R.), 183,971; Jones (D.), 119,801. Small comes in third, but he is holding steadily to his advantage. In Winnebago, Jersey, Green and Scott counties, Jones, Democrat, is ahead, but the bulk of the State vote, including Chicago, shows a steady drift to Governor Small.

There will be but little change in the political complexion of the Illinois Legislature as a result of today's election. The Republicans remain in control of both houses by comfortable majorities, probably increasing their majority in the House slightly, but losing a few seats in the Senate.

There will be three women in the new House of Representatives. Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neil, Republican, Dupagne County, who was re-elected; Mrs. Katherine Hancock Goode, Republican, Chicago, and Mrs. Rena Eired, Republican, Chicago.

Returns at this writing indicate the election of ninety-one Republicans and sixty-two Democrats to the Legislature.

MAINE.

MAINE—Voted for Presidential Electors; State election was held on Sept. 8. Vote in 1920—Republican, 136,355; Democratic, 58,981.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 4.—Nearly complete returns from the State indicate that Coolidge and Dawes electors have been chosen by more than 110,000. Harding had 67,000 four years ago, the biggest plurality ever given a candidate in the State up to that time.

La Follette will have about 11,000 votes in the State. The Socialist vote in the State two years ago was 2,200. The Democratic vote has fallen off more than two-thirds since four years ago. The losses apparently having been divided between Coolidge and La Follette.

RHODE ISLAND.

RHODE ISLAND—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials. Vote in 1920—Republican, 107,463; Democratic, 55,062.

Polls closed at 8 P. M.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 4.—With five-sixths of the State counted, Coolidge's lead over Davis was more than 40,000. Returns from 169 districts out of 194 give Coolidge 101,787, Davis 61,094 and La Follette 5,223.

In the Senate contest, for the unexpired term of Senator Colt, 172 districts give Jesse H. Metcalf (R.), 99,628; Governor William S. Flynn (D.), 71,972, and Edward M. Sullivan (Ind. D.), 624. For the regular Senate term, 169 districts give Metcalf 93,895, Flynn 64,720 and Sullivan 260.

For the Governorship, 175 districts give Aram P. Pothier (R.), 103,060 and Felix A. Toupin (D.), 70,577.

The Congress returns are as follows: First District, fifty-two districts out of fifty-six, Burdick (R), 40,650 and Jones (D.), 20,907; Second District, seventy districts out of seventy-four, Aldrich (R.), 41,644 and Hall (D.), 23,637; Third District, fifty districts out of sixty-five O'Connell (D.), 23,908 and Monast (R.), 20,908.

DELAWARE.

DELAWARE—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressman, Governor and other State officials. Vote in 1920—Republican, 52,858; Democratic, 39,911.

Polls closed at 6 P. M.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 4.—Delaware was caught in the Coolidge landslide today, and the Republicans have elected T. Coleman du Pont United States Senator, Robert G. Houston as Delaware's only representative in Congress, Robert J. Robinson for Governor and the remainder of their State ticket.

Coolidge's majority will be somewhere in the neighborhood of 5,000. La Follette polled more votes than had been anticipated, but he took most of them from the Democrats, that hundred fighter was made against T. Coleman du Pont for Senator. White exact figures are not available, he has won over James M. Tunnell, his Democratic opponent, by a good majority, possibly 2,000 or more. Two years ago du Pont was defeated by Thomas F. Bayard, Democrat, by 300.

Democrats claim there was bribery in the election today, but this is denied by the Republicans. If there is any proof of it found the election will be contested.

Tunnell ran considerably ahead of the other part of the ticket, but could not master enough strength to win even one ward in Wilmington. A Democratic fight caused the ward to go Republican for the first time in its history.

NEW MEXICO.

NEW MEXICO—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressman, Governor and other State officials, and on amendments to the State Constitution. Vote in 1920—Republican, 57,434; Democratic, 49,602.

Polls closed at 6 P. M. (8 P. M. New York time).

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 4.—All Democratic candidates, National and State, had leads on the face of returns compiled by The Associated Press at midnight.

John W. Davis had a greater vote than the combined total of President Coolidge and Senator La Follette. The figures were: Davis, 5,193; Coolidge, 4,494; La Follette, 247.

Other figures for forty precincts gave: For Senator, Senator Bursum (R.), 3,799; Sam G. Bratton (D.), 3,451.

For Congressman the vote was: J. F. Hubbell (R.), 3,049; John Morrow (incumbent), 3,445.

WYOMING.

WYOMING—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressman and Governor and on a constitutional amendment to provide for a severance tax.

COOLIDGE MESSAGE APPLAUDS BUTLER

WITHHOLDS HIS COMMENT

Asked for a Statement in Early Morning, He Says He Is Working on Thanksgiving Message.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Nov. 5.—President Coolidge at 1:45 o'clock this morning, after sitting up all the evening receiving the election returns, sent the following message to William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, at Chicago:

"I want to thank you for your conductance of the greatest campaign I have ever known. Your management has been superb.

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

At 1:30 o'clock, while President Coolidge was in his study, C. Bascom Slemp, his secretary, requested a statement for the press. The President declined to make any comment on the election, but said:

"Tell the newspaper boys I am still up working on my Thanksgiving message."

It had been stated at 11 o'clock last night at the White House offices that President Coolidge probably would make no comment on the election results.

This message was brought to members of the press by Frank W. Stearns of Boston, Mr. Coolidge's close personal friend.

At 12:25 President Coolidge was still in his study going over the returns. A few minutes after midnight Chief Justice Taft and Senator Smoot, who had spent part of the evening with the President, left for their homes.

President Coolidge had an early dinner last night and went into his study soon after 7 o'clock, when the radio began sending scattering reports of the election results. The President remained at the White House with Mrs. oColidge, Frank W. Stearns, his intimate political friend, and Mrs. Stearns and several members of the Cabinet until long after 9 o'clock, when he went into the Executive offices.

The radio and special wires brought the news directly to the White House offices. The messages which came from The Associated Press service, Western Union reports and from Republican headquarters were transmitted over wires leading into the Executive offices and duplicate copies sent to the President in the White House. The President was also hooked up with the long distance telephone and got his first good news from Chairman Butler, who is at Chicago, over the telephone.

C. Bascom Slemp, Secretary to the President; members of the White House staff and Republicans, including a few members of Congress, were at the White House offices.

Thought Roosevelt Would Win.

President Coolidge took his usual evening walk. He entered the shopping district in F Street soon after 5 o'clock, and was cheered everywhere. The applause seemed to embarass him and he cut short his walk.

The first definite bulletin, aside from those indicating Republican swings, sent to the President was that which indicated that Roosevelt had carried Buffalo by 10,000 majority, as compared with Smith's majority there of 16,000 two years ago.

President Coolidge, eading this bulletin, said:

"It looks as if the Colonel will be elected. I hope he obtains his ambition to follow in the footsteps of his father."

The next most definite bulletin was that which indicated that Speaker Gillett hafi been elected Senator from Massachusetts over Senator Walsh. This greatly pleased the President, because it was due mostly to his persuasion that Speaker Gillett became a candidate for the Senate in a three-cornered primary fight, which developed much bitterness and which left the Republican Party in Massachusetts in a somewhat disorganized condition.

The next definite bulletin was from the County Chairman of Hamilton County, Ohio, which said that Coolidge had carried Cincinnati by 70,000 majority, the largest ever received by a Presidential candidate.

President Appears Unconcerned.

To the casual observer there was nothing about the White House, the Executive offices or the surrounding grounds that would suggest anything out of the ordinary yesterday.

From President Coolidge down to the most humble employe at the White House there was an air of confidence. The President was as cool and complacent as usual, and he gave no outward evidence that he was at all concerned about the great referendum which must mean so much to him.

Despite the President's unmistakable composure and apparent lack of concern, there was a slight trace of excitement among the attachés and office force.

As Mr. Coolidge reached his desk and was in the act of reaching for a bundle of papers to sign, an Associated Press bulletin with the returns from the first town in the country with complete returns, New Ashford, Mass., came in. The vote was Coolidge 20, Davis 4, La Follette 0. The President read it without comment and passed it back to the office clerk who had brought the "good news."

A few moments later the next bulletin telling how the first precinct of the tenth ward, Kansas City, Mo., had given him 52, Davis 12 and La Follette 1, was brought to the President at his desk. As in the case of the preceding news, the President maintained his customary calm and quiet.

These messages were followed by batches of telegrams and other messages from all parts of the country, some from friends and workers predicting victory, some from others congratulating him on the appeal he made over the radio last night to the electorate, others from well wishers expressing their hope for his success in the election.

Another one of the early election bulletins taken to the President was from Somerset, Vt., which announced that the village's total vote of eight was unanimous for Coolidge.

C. Bascom Slemp, the President's secretary, was with the President when this message was brought, and, upon reading it, the President smiled broadly and said:

"It looks as though my native State and the State of my adoption are running a close race for early returns and for a record vote for me."

The President was greatly impressed and pleased by the large number of telegrams of good wishes received at the White House overnight. There were hundreds of these. They were not confined to any one section. Many were from men and women unknown to the President or his secretary.

Throughout the morning these messages of good cheer continued to pour into the White House, and with the hour set for the opening of the polls there began the arrival of messages from people in all parts of the country telling the President that they were the first to vote for him at their particular voting place and that they hoped they would be among the first to congratulate him. Messages of this nature were received from persons in the Carolinas and several from Florida and one from Mississippi.

Other messages were regarding the outcome. They were intended to assure the President of victory in States that have been classed as lost or doubtful. Other messages were from friends and political lieutenants making last-moment predictions as to the plurality in certain States.

The President also was deeply touched by the reports of the favorable impression he made in his radio appeal last night. Some messages respecting this described last night's address as the most appealing and inspiring utterance made by Mr. Coolidge since he has been President. He was impressed by the scores of telegrams from persons who said they had always voted the Democratic ticket, but wanted to see him kept in the White House and were, therefore, voting for him.

A message that pleased the President was from Sam W. Small of Rossiyn, Va., a well-known evangelist and temperance worker and lifelong Democrat. It read:

"After five weeks of active daily campaigning (for the Anti-Saloon candidate) in La Follette's domain, I am leaving for my Virginia home (Route No. 1, Rosslyn), to do what I have never done in all my 73 years—vote for a Republican!

"It will be a shock to my family and old party associates, but as I see it the patriotic thing to do in present conditions is to re-elect President Coolidge. All success.

"Faithfully,
"SAM W. SMALL."

Message From Chauncey Depew.

Another message that touched the President was from Chauncey M. Depew of New York, former Senator, who, despite his advanced years, voted early and wired the President expressing confidence in his victory. Mr. Depew's telegram follows:

"The meeting of the business men of New York at the Metropolitan Opera House Saturday night was a significant closing of the campaign. Forty-eight of the leading trades of the country were represented. They are difficult to get out to an evening meeting, but they followed their banners in full numbers and with enthusiasm. The business organizations were brought together and consolidated into a working force by General Charles H. Sherrill, whom I have known since he was a boy, and who also made the meeting most successful. I have been a close student of campaign oratory for sixty years and have heard the best at their best during that time, and I want to say that every element to arouse and convince an audience was in the address of Secretary Hughes and his effort was among the best I have heard in over half a century. This is the seventieth anniversary of the birth of the Republican Party. My great interest in the meeting was that having been with the party from its birth, having spoken for months over the country for General Fremont, its first candidate, and been active in every campaign since, including this one, the occasion seemed to bridge the party's life and achievements and be a fitting prelude to its triumphs on Nov. 4. Cordial congratulations on an unusual victory.

"CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW."

The President replied as follows:

"Your message brings cheer and added confidence on this morning of election day. It is an occasion of what I am sure must be a pardonable pride, to know I have the eager interest and support of a veteran like yourself. Your active public career has been coeval with the long service of the Republican Party, and has contributed generously to the honor and usefulness of that service. My congratulations to you as you go today to cast your vote. To receive the support which you have given to every Republican nominee from Fremont down is a high distinction. Let my good wishes be expressed in the hope that you may add many more to the long list of Presidents you have helped to elect.

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

Despite the fact that the air was teeming with election atmosphere, the President kept his mind on his work, when he was not receiving telegrams or bulletins about the balloting. He held a long conference with Brig. Gen. Lord, director of the budget, and when the latter left the President's office he said he could not understand how a man in President Coolidge's position today, could concentrate on anything. He added that the sight of a candidate for the Presidency over a pile of papers containing nothing but figures and really understanding them, was almost unbelievable.

BUTLER THANKS AIDS FOR COOLIDGE VICTORY

Says President Will Lead Republican Party to New Achievements for People.

The following statement by William M. Butler, Republican National Chairman, was made public at 1 o'clock this morning at Republican Eastern Headquarters, after it had been telegraphed here from Chicago:

"The American people have spoken. They have said Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes by a decisive vote. After the people have spoken so conclusively there is little for any one to say. I sincerely thank the men and women who have worked so diligently to bring about this magnificent result. Under the leadership of Calvin Coolidge the Republican Party will go forward to new achievements for the people. I again thank my coworkers in every precinct for their loyalty and effective work."

SING SING GETS RETURNS.

Prisoners Interested in Election of Governor Because of Pardons.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Nov. 4.—Keenly interested in the outcome of the election of Governor in this State, prisoners of Sing Sing, including William H. Anderson, former State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, received a smattering of returns tonight by radio and from other sources. Twenty slayers in the cells for the condemned got skeleton reports from keepers.

The rule compels prisoners to retire at 10 P. M., and they were permitted to receive reports on the Presidential and State election until 9:30. The radio amplifiers in the prison chapel and an extension in the new cell house on the hill outside the walls where many "trusties" are housed furnished much of the election news to the prisoners.

Much interest was shown in the contest between Governor Smith and Colonel Roosevelt. This was because of the Governor's power to pardon any prisoner.

It was the first election in which Anderson missed taking part since he became of voting age. In his behalf his wife, Mrs. Anderson of Yonkers, had issued a public statement urging "drys" to favor Colonel Roosevelt.

Gov. Bryan Is Silent on Result.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 4.—At midnight, when he said he was prepared to stay up another hour to watch the election returns at the mansion, Governor Bryan, the Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, refused to make a statement, either on the national or State election.

MRS. FERGUSON WINS 2 TO 1 IN TEXAS RACE

has been named Governor of Texas, issued a statement to The Associated Press tonight in which she said:

"Texas is still loyal to the ideals of true democracy, despite the mouthings of political preachers and some school teachers seeking to lure Democrats into betrayal of their honor."

She assailed the Ku Klux Klan for its alleged activity against her in the campaign and added that "the people have seen the slimy trail of the serpent along which these river bottom censors of morals and violators of ballot pledges have led their complacent and pliable tool, and they have spoken in a voice not to be misunderstood.

"Hate has been the slogan of the opposition," Mrs. Ferguson said. "Venom is its password and slander, falsehood and misrepresentation its platform."

She expressed her gratitude to the "splendid and patriotic Democrats" who supported her throughout the campaign.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 4.—George C. Butte, Republican candidate for Governor, tonight refused to concede the election of Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, Democrat, in face of her substantial lead. He declared that many ballots had been illegally thrown out and that he would take the lead when these were properly counted.

Ran to Vindicate Her Husband.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, who was elected Governor of Texas yesterday, won nation-wide fame as "Ma" Ferguson during the Democratic primaries in Texas last August, when the "Me for Ma" slogan, which aided her fight against the Ku Klux Klan, went all over the country. As is always the case in Texas, the Democratic nomination was equivalent to election, and Mrs. Ferguson was considered certain of easily winning office as the first woman Governor of Texas.

Mrs. Ferguson made her fight on two main issues—vindication of her husband, James E. Ferguson, who was impeached as Governor of Texas at the beginning of his second term, in 1917, and opposition to the Klan. Mr. Ferguson was impeached by the State Senate the day after he resigned office. The Senate upheld ten of twenty-one charges against him of devoting State funds to personal uses.

Husband Campaigned for Her.

Vigorously denying the charges, Mr. Ferguson attempted to win the Democratic nomination for Governor this year, but was barred by a decision of the Texas courts disqualifying him from holding State office because of his impeachment. It was then that Mrs. Ferguson entered the race, declaring that she meant to become Governor in order to show that the people of Texas would repudiate the action of the Senate in impeaching her husband, and thus to clear the family name.

Mr. Ferguson campaigned vigorously for his wife's nomination. They both assailed the Klan and Mrs. Ferguson won the nomination on that issue. She won by an overwhelming vote over Judge Felix Robertson of Dallas, who was supported by the Klan. Mrs. Ferguson, aided by the "Me for Ma" slogan and the oratorical skill of her husband, made a picturesque campaign. The romance of her fight to clear her husband's name, linked with her attack on the Klan in one of the original strongholds of the hooded order, made her a popular figure throughout the country.

Her Republican opponent for Governor was Dr. George C. Butte, former dean of the Law Department of the University of Texas. Besides the Klan opposition, the Republican campaign against Mrs. Ferguson was waged on the charges that if she was elected her husband would be the real Governor, and that the "wets" would have full swing because Mr. Ferguson is "wet." Mrs. Ferguson replied that she would be the Governor herself, and that she was "bone dry," regardless of her husband's views on prohibition.

Mrs. Ferguson's opponents took the question whether a woman was eligible to serve as Chief Executive of a State Government to the Texas Supreme Court last month, but Mrs. Ferguson won. It was argued that her election would mean a circumvention of the impeachment and disqualification of Mr. Ferguson, and that the common law of Texas adopted in 1840 made a woman, especially a married woman, ineligible to hold executive or judicial office. The Supreme Court ruled that Mrs. Ferguson was qualified in every way to hold office if elected. The decision was regarded as of great importance, as it swept away the last vestige of the ancient bar against women in public office.

Mrs. Ferguson Is 50 Years Old.

Mrs. Ferguson is about 50 years old. She is a typical Texas woman, born in Bell County of old Texas stock on both her father's and mother's side. Her father, who was Joseph Wallace, settled in Temple in the early days of the State. She is a quiet, cultured, home-loving woman, who never took an active part in politics, never made a speech, and never even belonged to a political club, until she decided this Summer to vindicate her husband's name by entering the Gubernatorial lists.

She is slenderr, about 5 feet 3 inches tall, and has clear-cut features, with a high forehead. Her hair is brown, just beginning to turn gray. Her eyes are bluish gray. She has a straight, thin-lipped mouth, a pleasant smile and a soft voice. She is a lifelong member of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

She was married to Mr. Ferguson in 1899. They live in Temple. Mr. Ferguson is a prosperous rancher and banker. They have two daughters, Dorance Ferguson and Mrs. George S. Nalle of Austin, and one grandson, Ernest Nalle, 4 years old.

Mrs. Ferguson is a college graduate. Her husband had been a railroad laborer and section boss out West before she married him. She encouraged him to read law and helped him progress in business and politics until he became Governor. After his impeachment she sold property she had inherited from her father in order to help her husband fight for his vindication.

DAVIS WON'T ADMIT COOLIDGE ELECTION

Expects Returns From Western States to Throw Choice Into Congress.

GOES TO BED AT MIDNIGHT

Thinks Eight States May Go to La Follette, but Refuses to Issue Statement.

John W. Davis refused last night to concede the election to President Coolidge or to make any statement on the situation. Frank L. Polk, former Acting Secretary of State, said Mr. Davis still believed the election would be thrown into Congress when full reports from the West were received.

"Mr. Davis is not at all alarmed by the early returns from the Eastern States," said Mr. Polk. "He expected them. He believes that the crux of the election is in the West, and that it depends upon the vote La Follette takes away from Coolidge. He thinks La Follette will carry six or eight States and throw the election into the House. He doesn't expect full returns from the West until 6 or 7 o'clock in the morning, and expects to go to bed at midnight without issuing any statement."

The Democratic candidate for President received the returns at Mr. Polk's home, 6 West Sixty-eighth Street. Accompanied by Mrs. Davis and her two sisters, Mrs. Phil Watson of Indianapolis and Cornelia Bassett of Washington, Mr. Davis arrived at Mr. Polk's home at 6 o'clock. They were joined there by Mr. and Mrs. William McMillan Adams (Mr. Davis's son-in-law and daughter), Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lansing and Mrs. Charles Warren.

After the dinner the party went into the drawing room, where they received the returns by radio and also by a special Western Union telegraph wire from Democratic National Headquarters. None of the party had anything to say for the public until 10:30 o'clock, when Mr. Polk made his statement to the press.

Mr. Davis's campaign managers also refused to concede the election to President Coolidge. Clem L. Shaver, Democratic National Chairman, returned to the National Committee headquarters at the Hotel Belmont, after having been away part of the evening, but refused to make any statement.

James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, and Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, said he would not be willing to make any statement on the returns until today.

"They are still voting in the West," said Mr. Gerard, "and the polls have not been closed."

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who managed Governor Smith's campaign for the Presidential nomination, said:

"I would like to hear more from the West. Apparently the returns from other States in the East to date indicate that New York State's vote for Davis, compared with the Cox vote in 1920, shows more improvement than other States. I am just as pleased at Governor Smith's election as the Governor himself and as every other person who wants good government in this State."

The Democratic National Committee headquarters was closed and the radio was shut off at 1:30 o'clock this morning. National Chairman Clem Shaver and others left for the night, refusing to discuss the election result.

"I have an appointment with Mr. Davis at 10 o'clock in the morning," said Mr. Shaver. "There will be a statement then, no doubt."

AGED AND BLIND AT POLLS.

One Milwaukee Woman Who Casts Ballott Says She Is 110.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 4. — Totally blind, 80 years old and an invalid for thirty years, Mrs. Martha T. Wallace today voted for the first time in her life, aided by her brother, Judge Ell Torrance, former Commander in Chief of the G. A. R.

"She said she wanted to cast a 100 per cent. American vote before she crossed the river," Judge Torrance said.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Nov. 4.—Mustering twelve votes, the Peter Baldauf family, living near here, marched to the country voting place and cast a dozen ballots for La Follette and Brookhart.

OTTUMWA, Iowa, Nov. 4.—Miss Hettie Tinkham, 95 years old, a former governess in the Charles G. Dawes home, cast her first ballot here today. She said it was a Republican ticket.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 4.—Mrs. Louis A. K. Thiers, who said her age is 110, cast her ballot here today.

MITCHELL, S. D., Nov. 4.—Hiram G. Hammond, 96 years old, cast his nineteenth consecutive ballot for President today. Mr. Hammond voted first for Zachary Taylor in 1849 and has cast a straight Republican ballot since.

DR. HARDING SENDS CHEER TO COOLIDGE

Late President's Father and Col. Christian Join in a Message and Are Thanked.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 4.—Two elderly gentlemen, Dr. George T. Harding, father of the late President Harding, and Colonel George B. Christian, father of George B. Christian Jr., who was secretary to the late President, met here on the street today.

Well knowing the suspense the late President endured on election afternoon four years ago, they decided to send an expression of cheer and confidence to President Coolidge. The message they sent to the White House read:

Soon afterward President Coolidge wired as follows:

"Thank you for your telegram. I shall remember your injunction and your wise counsel."

UPHOLD PRIVATE SCHOOLS.

Michigan Voters Defeat the Anti-Parochial School Proposal.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Wednesday, Nov. 5.—For the second time Michigan repudiated today the so-called anti-parochial school law which would abolish private schools within the confines of the State.

Early returns received up to 1 o'clock this morning indicated its defeat by more than 2 to 1 majority in the largest vote ever cast in the State. The school amendment was beaten in all the first counties reporting with the exception of Genesee and Alpena. The former is a Ku Klux stronghold. Flint, its principal city, having recently elected a Klan Mayor.

At this hour 219 precincts out of 2,772 in the State voted: Yes, 28,297; No, 60,089.

Only a few of the precincts heard from were in Wayne County, which is believed to be overwhelmingly opposed to the amendment, and when results from Wayne are heard from it is expected the measure will receive a knock-out blow.

The campaign on the amendment was extremely bitter, but countless Protestants lined up with Catholics, Jews and Lutherans in opposition to the amendment.

Hawaii Elects Democrat as Delegate

HONOLULU, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—On the basis of incomplete returns representing all the islands, William P. Jarrett, Democrat, has been re-elected as Territorial Delegate over his Republican opponent, Philip L. Rice. A compilation of the vote at 10:30 tonight gave Jarrett a lead of 2,500.

THIRD PARTY POLLS 4,000,000 VOTES

by Indiana, where President Coolidge was running about twelve to one ahead of the Third Party candidate in the early returns, and John W. Davis was running ten to one ahead of La Follette.

In Michigan, another State swept by President Coolidge, the La Follette-Wheeler vote was an unimportant factor, and La Follette was third. Indications were that President Coolidge was beating the Third Party candidate about eight to one and that John W. Davis had a two-and-one-half to one lead.

The same story was repeated in Ohio, where President Coolidge obtained an overwhelming plurality. President Coolidge was leading John W. Davis by about two to one and La Follette by better than five to one. Ohio was one of the States where the La Follette movement expected to show great strength, as it is the stronghold of the railroad brotherhoods. But the result showed that Senator La Follette was scarcely a factor in the contest.

The result in the Southern States was just as discouraging from the Third Party viewpoint. In Kentucky President Coolidge led La Follette in the returns by about four to one, and in Tennessee the Wisconsin Senator was third, with but a small fraction of the number of votes received by John W. Davis. In Oklahoma Senator La Follette received less than 1,000 out of 16,000 votes recorded in the early returns received.

In the Middle West Iowa, a State which the La Follette leaders expected to carry by a big majority, President Coolidge early obtained a commanding lead and there was every indication that the President would get a heavy plurality in the final returns.

The results in the States from which reports have been received bore out the predictions made during the campaign by leaders other than those who supported the La Follette-Wheeler ticket that there would be no La Follette sweep in the West and that the Third Party candidate probably would not carry more than two or three States.

district gave Davis 3,876, Coolidge 7,729 and La Follette 2,437. The same Assembly district with sixteen election districts missing gave Smith 6,238, Roosevelt 4,025 and Thomas 304.

George R. Lunn, according to an estimate based on fewer election districts than those returned for Governor Smith, was apparently running about 100,000 behind Smith's plurality. His probable plurality in the city was indicated at 400,000. The early returns indicated that he ran well up with Smith in Manhattan, the Bronx and Richmond, ran ahead of the Governor in Queens and considerably behind in Brooklyn.

The vote for La Follette was about as expected by unprejudiced observers, but far below that claimed by the more enthusiastic of his supporters. With 315 out of the 2,070 election districts in the city reporting, he had a total vote of 247,438, indicating a total vote of approximately 250,000.

Democrats Elect All City Ticket.

The indications were that the sweep for Governor Smith in New York City had carried to victory all the Democratic candidates for local offices, an indication that was borne out by incomplete and scattering returns.

These successful Democratic candidates included Judge Thomas C. T. Crain, Justice Thomas W. Churchill and Judge Louis D. Gibbs, Democratic candidates for Justices of the Supreme Court in the First Judicial District, which is made up of Manhattan and the Bronx. The indications also were that H. Warren Hubbard, Tammany candidate, had been elected Sheriff of New York County, John T. McGeehan District Attorney of the Bronx, Judge William Allen Judge of the Court of General Sessions and Joseph T. McKee Justice of the City Court.

In the Second Judicial District the apparent lead obtained by Borough President Edward Riegelmann, Democratic nominee for Justice of the Supreme Court, seemed sufficient to give him victory over Municipal Court Justice Charles W. Law, his Republican opponent, although the latter ran well ahead of Riegelmann in Nassau and Suffolk Counties.

County Judge J. Bernard Vause of Brooklyn seemed to have been elected over Benjamin Hauk, Republican, on the basis of incomplete returns.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Governor, polled but fifteen votes in his home district, the Fifteenth Election District of the Tenth Assembly District, where the vote on Governor was Smith 232, Roosevelt 152 and Thomas 15. Two years ago the same election district gave Smith 174, Miller 149.

The first four election districts to report from the Third and Fourth Assembly districts in the Bronx, the recognized Socialist strongholds of that borough, showed La Follette leading. These four election districts gave La Follette 715, Coolidge 475 and Davis 385. The same four districts four years ago gave Cox 228 and Harding 1,044.

Because of the size of the vote, tabulation of the returns was slow and it was not until nearly 8 o'clock that they began to come in. The first district to report, the First Election District of the Seventh Assembly District of the Bronx, gave Davis 188, Coolidge 114 and La Follette 105, an indication that was not borne out by later returns. This same district four years ago gave Cox 145 and Harding 232. Two years ago it gave Smith 310 and Miller 50.

President Coolidge carried by 20 votes the Seventh Election District of the Fifteenth Assembly District, Manhattan, in which John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Chauncey M. Depew cast their ballots. The vote was Davis 135, Coolidge 135 and La Follette 35. Four years ago the vote stood Cox 104 and Harding 451. Two years ago the vote on Governor was Smith 112, Miller 236.

Coolidge carried the home district of Secretary of State Hughes, the Nineteenth Election District of the Fifteenth Assembly District, by 354 plurality. The vote was Davis 107, Coolidge 461, La Follette 19.

Congress and Legislature.

City returns on Congress, the State Senate and the Assembly were slow in coming in. Representative Ogden L. Mills had apparently won over Charles E. Gehring, his Democratic opponent in the Seventeenth Congressional District, having a lead of 4,000 with fifty-four election districts missing.

In the Nineteenth Congressional District, Representative Sol Bloom had a lead of nearly 5,000 over Walter M. Chandler of Republican. In the Twenty-first District, Representative Royal H. Weller had apparently won re-election over Charles H. Roberts, the negro Republican candidate, with a lead of 4,000 with 140 election districts still to hear from.

The returns were particularly meagre from the Twentieth Congressional District, where there was a three-cornered fight between Representative F. H. LaGuardia, running as a Progressive; Isaac Siegel, former Republican Congressman from the district, and Henry Frank, Democrat. Returns from two election districts gave Frank 178, Siegel 349 and LaGuardia 298.

CANDIDATES HERE GO TO POLLS EARLY

Davis Waits in Line—Smith Takes His Time—Roosevelt Votes With Wife and Mother.

WEATHER BRINGS OUT VOTE

Finest Election Day He Ever Has Known, Says 95-Year-Old John R. Voorhis.

John W. Davis did his duty as a citizen yesterday morning and then the ruling passion seized him and he hurried off to take advantage of the legal holiday by playing golf.

He arrived at 10 o'clock at the polling place at Mattinecock, near his home at Locust Valley, and was cheered by a long queue of voters waiting to deposit their ballots.

"You don't have to wait," said Benjamin Downing, who was in charge of the polling place. "Come on in and vote."

"First come, first served," said the candidate for President, and with Mrs. Davis he took his place in line.

Mr. Davis made a mystery of his vote, but Mrs. Davis was frank.

"I voted for the next President," she said.

After his golf Mr. Davis said that he was going to the home of Frank Polk to hear the returns.

The whole neighborhood resolved itself into a big Smith rally when the Governor and his family drove up to Public School 1 at Henry and Oliver Streets at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Smith, Al Smith Jr. and the Governor's daughter Emily accompanied him.

Governor Takes His Time.

The Governor took his time about voting. The election officials, who had explained some of the fine points about the three ballots to scores of voters already, began to fear that the Governor's technique was not good, but he came out at last with the three ballots folded and no questions to ask.

"What kept you so long? Voting a split ticket?" he was asked.

"No, but I wanted to be sure to vote for Proposition No. 1," said the Governor. Outside the polling place the Governor found a still greater crowd, and the familiar sound of several hundred fishhorns greeted him. Both hands were called into action to answer the salutes of the Governor's personal friends and his hat swung in generalised greetings.

Forty or fifty cameras were pointed at the Governor and a few hundred more were added to the million or so photographs taken of him. He was snapped by daylight and by magnesium, looking severe and looking genial, talking to Mrs. Smith and kissing her.

Once when he looked slightly too austere for public taste he got orders from all directions to smile and he executed them faithfully.

"That's the smile that won't come off," said Mrs. Smith.

"That's the 400,000 plurality smile," said the Governor.

Outside the streets were hazy with Smith buttons, banners and placards, and on automobiles, store fronts and banners were a sea of faces of Smith, printed, painted, lithographed and photographed.

Roosevelt Votes at Oyster Bay.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Republican candidate for Governor, voted with his wife and mother at Watson's candy store, Oyster Bay Cove, District 10. The first of the three to vote was the candidate's wife, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who was No. 87. The Colonel voted next, No. 88, and his mother voted as No. 89.

Colonel Roosevelt looked worn, and he was very hoarse, but he appeared in decidedly better condition than at the final rally of the campaign at Oyster Bay Monday night. The three came to the voting place, which was a saloon before prohibition, in a touring car. The candidate greeted acquaintances when he stepped out of the car, and posed for photographers.

"I hope this picture taking will not interfere with the voting," he remarked.

Kermit Roosevelt, the Colonel's brother, and Emlen Roosevelt, a cousin, voted at the same polling place later, and Mrs. Richard Derby, formerly Ethel Roosevelt, a sister of the candidate, voted in District 21, at Oyster Bay.

Colonel Roosevelt said that he would remain at home all day and help his son Quentin celebrate his fifth birthday. "He was born the day I was first elected to the Assembly," said the Colonel.

Whether the result would be a victory for the people or for the other people was a question concerning which Mayor Hylan declined to commit himself when he voted at a milk chocolate and gumdrop store at 1,144 Greene Av., Brooklyn. The Mayor smiled sarcastically when he was asked about the plain people's chances this time.

"I will say this much," he said, ceasing to smile and becoming very serious, "that when it is all over there will be some people who will tell us that the nation has been saved, no matter who is elected."

George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, voted at 49 East Twelfth Street. Asked if he thought the right side was likely to win, he meditated for a moment and then said:

"Well, the voting has been fast and furious."

The perfect weather kept crowds in the streets near the polling places in all parts of the city, and the police were kept busy rushing them for first downs beyond the 100 feet line, but there was little disorder. The Presidential election produced a minimum of argument, and a casual observer at some of the polling places would suppose that the office of President was one of those curious little political jobs that are voted for on the fourth or fifth column, because the only excitement to be found anywhere concerned the Governorship. In Manhattan, and especially in lower Manhattan the enthusiasm was all for Smith.

There were Smith parades, Smith automobile caravans, Smith Boy and Girl Scout charges, Smith rallies and Smith demonstrations. These were conducted without rowdyism. The old-time wrecking crews were replaced everywhere by little chopping squads. The brass knuckles have been retired to the museums and lead pipe has degenerated into a form of plumbing.

Recollections at Voorhis.

Commissioner of Elections John R. Voorhis, who was born in this city more than ninety-five years ago, looked back over three-quarters of a century of New York politics yesterday and said that it was the finest election day from the standpoint of weather that had ever been held.

"It's gorgeous," he said, as he put out a hand and felt of the weather and patted it in a proprietary fashion, as if claiming it as an achievement of the Election Commission, over which he presides.

Between the weather and the interest in the Governorship campaign, the vote will be the largest ever cast in proportion to the number of names on the register, the Commissioner said.

"From the crowds at the polls everywhere," he said, "I believe the vote will run within 5 per cent. of the registration, and as far as I recall and I have been more or less officially connected with elections since 1874, the highest percentage of votes to registration has been 92. I think it will run higher today.

"From nearly a century's accumulation of political wisdom the Commissioner was asked to predict who would win and by how much he would win.

"I am not old enough to do any prophesying," he said.

According to the Commissioner, 120 years is about the proper age to begin the "mark my words" stuff.

"But I feel," he continued, "that I may say this: that some claims have been made which will not be fulfilled, and that certain candidates who have foretold victories for themselves will be disappointed."

Tom Foley's Prediction.

At about the same time an adolescent in his early 70s was boldly holding forth in another part of the city.

"'Al' will win," said Tom Foley. "'Al' will win big. It looks better than it did two years ago. The unadulterated reports show that the Governor's plurality will be most substantial."

One interesting detachment of voters yesterday consisted of twenty-four of the "looney gas" victims who are under treatment at Reconstruction Hospital. In spite of having breathed the tetrachyl lead they were driven over to Elizabeth, N. J., to vote.

Charlie McManus, leader of the Fifth Assembly District, aimed to get out a 100 per cent. vote, and he was on the verge of tears when he was told that one steel-true Democrat was missing and that numerous searching parties had met with bitter disappointment in hunting and trapping expeditions in rear and side rooms, in alleys, rooftops, cellars and subcellars.

"How do things look?" he was asked.

"'Al' is certain," he said.

"To what?"

John D. Jr. Votes for Coolidge.

"John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Mrs. Rockefeller arrived at the polling place of the Tenth Election District, Fifteenth Assembly District, in Public School 182, at 132 West Fifty-fifth Street, at 5:07 P. M. Mrs. Rockefeller got Ballot 571, and Mr. Rockefeller Ballot 572. Mr. Rockefeller occupied less than two minutes in casting his vote, and his wife performed the task in a little more than three minutes.

Asked if he objected to telling how he voted Mr. Rockefeller said he voted for President Coolidge. He was not so frank in discussing his choice for State officers, but said:

"I think in telling you how I voted nationally will give you some idea."

Although he is four years younger than John R. Voorhis, Chauncey M. Depew regarded himself yesterday as mature enough to make one prediction. He always was precocious, having been elected Secretary of State of New York at the age of 29 years.

"Nothing to it but Coolidge," was the one prediction which Mr. Depew allowed himself. The former Senator claimed the credit or honor or distinction or whatever it is of having done more campaigning for Republican Presidents than any other living man.

"I started in 1856," he said, "when I was 22 years old, and for three months I campaigned with all my might for John C. Fremont. I believe that I am the only living man who was out on the stump for Fremont."

There were many verbal and technical squabbles at polling places about the construction of the election laws and many doubtful cases were referred to the courts, but charges of fraud, floaterism and overdoing the duty of citizenship by multiple appearances at the polls were few in number.

94-Year-Old Woman Voter.

Mrs. Fitzgerald, a 94-year-old voter in the Thirteenth Congressional District, who lives at 120th Street and Riverside Drive, took precedence over all other voters when she came to cast her vote at the polling place, at the Notlek Tennis Club on Riverside Drive, between 119th and 120th Streets. She was assisted to the booth by an attendant and one of the patrolmen on duty.

A Republican vote in seventeen Presidential elections is the record of Hiram H. Tuthill of 414 West Twenty-second Street, who cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln and who yesterday morning was an early voter in his district. Another extraordinary feature of Mr. Tuthill's career is the fact that he, during the last sixty-four years, has never missed a vote for State or local elections. He was born eighty-four years ago in Oxford, Orange County, New York, where he lived until coming to this city about six years ago. His family for many generations had lived in the same place, some of his ancestors having fought in the Revolutionary War.

Victory for their entire tickets was predicted by John H. McCooey and Jacob A. Livingston, the Democratic and Republican county leaders. Non-partisan observers, however, believed that the vote would be close and that La Follette would poll a heavy vote. That Smith would be given a plurality of from 40,000 to 80,000 in the Gubernatorial contest was the claim of conservative Democrats while the more sanguine predicted that he would defeat Roosevelt by upward of 75,000.

Despite the intensity of many of the contests, particularly those for the Assembly, the voting went off quietly. Patrolmen stationed at the polling places had little to do and for four hours after the balloting began only one instance of disturbance was reported.

Last Appeals Made by Mail.

Eleventh-hour campaign literature was distributed by party managers in many sections by the one postal delivery in the morning in a final effort to turn out every available voter. Small boys who had been supplied with red, white and blue horns of penetrating tone paraded the streets in groups blaring forth a reminder to the citizenry that the boxes were awaiting their ballots.

It was expected that the counting of the vote in Brooklyn probably would be slow after the closing of the polls at 6 o'clock in the evening. Governor Smith's conceded wide popularity among Republicans, many of whom consequently will vote split tickets, is expected to impede the count.

Members of the Law Committee of both county organizations were at the party headquarters, the Democrats at 4 Court Street, and the Republicans at 157 Remsen Street, ready to assist any voters whose right to cast a ballot might be questioned. Justice Harry E. Lewis was on hand at the Supreme Court to adjudicate any such cases which might have been called before him.

Accused of illegal voting, Hyman Hornick, 23 years old, of 741 Fifth Street, was discharged by Magistrate Albert H. Vitale in Essex Market Court. He was arrested by Patrolman Geis of the Fifth Street Station on complaint of Max Zucker, inspector at the polling place at 728 Fifth Street, that Hornick now lived at 431 Fifty-second Street, Brooklyn, but had registered in Manhattan and come over here to vote. The prisoner stated that he still had room and board at his former residence, and investigation proved this to be correct and that he was entitled to vote here.

Plumber Proves His Case.

After he had proved to the satisfaction of Magistrate Albert Vitale in Essex Market Court that he lived at 222 Second Street, Aaron Rotter, 33 years old, a plumber, was discharged and went back to the booth of the Eighth Election District of the Sixth Assembly District to cast his vote. Rotter had been arrested by Patrolman John Sincox of the Fifth Street Station on complaint of Jacob Ehrlich of 211 East Third Street, an election canvasser, who challenged Rotter's vote on the ground that the latter did not live at his plumbing shop. He said in court he had tried the door of the shop and found it locked. Rotter told the Magistrate he had lived in a room back of his shop for five years and that he was not voting in any other district.

Challenged by George H. De Leon, Republican watcher in the polling place at Columbus Avenue and Ninetieth Street, Frederick Wulfford, 54 years old, a night watchman of 154 West Ninetieth Street, was arraigned before Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud in the West Side Court on a charge of irregular balloting and discharged when he proved he lived at the Ninetieth Street address.

Alexander I. Rorke, an attorney assigned to the courts by the Bar Association, defended Wulfford. De Leon maintained that Wulfford only worked at the Ninetieth Street address and did not live there, but the watchman proved to the satisfaction of the Magistrate that he did.

Ballot Boxes Filled.

Three complaints were registered with the Honest Ballot Association that there was no more room in the ballot boxes of the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Election Districts of the Eighth Assembly District and that ballots after being voted were not being placed in proper receptacles. The district includes the area from East Houston to East Sixteenth Street and from Broadway to Avenue B. It is the scene of a sharp contest between Representative Nathan D. Perlman, Republican, and Dr. Samuel Sirovich for Congress.

An unidentified man and his wife insisted upon entering a voting booth together at Public School 160, Rivington and Suffolk Streets, and consulting on their choice of candidates. Patrolman Anthony Palmer of the Clinton Street Station called upon all present to observe the infraction of the law and then proceeded to pull the couple out of the booth. They objected to the patrolman's action, but after it was explained that only one at a time could vote they conceded the point. Samuel Koenig, Republican County Chairman, who was making the rounds watching the Republican vote, observed the incident. He congratulated the patrolman for his alertness and told him he would write to Commissioner Enright and recommend him for promotion.

Twenty-eight Nuns Drive to Polls.

From the polling place at P. S. 31 of the Fifth Election District in the First Assembly District complaints were received at Socialist headquarters that Lucy Oppenheim and Betty Weinstein, both of 3 Montgomery Street, had been denied the right to vote on the ground that they had registered in the wrong district. Investigation brought out the fact from Harry Flax, Chairman of registration in that district, that an honest mistake had been made on the part of one of the deputy inspectors and that the girls were afterward notified that they should have registered in the Fourth Assembly District, but they made no effort to have their registration changed.

Twenty-eight Sisters from St. John's Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum at St. Mark's and Albany Avenues, went in groups by automobile to vote in a polling place at Utica and St. Mark's Avenues. They were driven to and from the poll by Samuel Heyman of 478 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, a real estate man. He made six trips back and forth.

In spite of the fact that the artist colony was not voting heavily during the morning hours, according to election officials of the Tenth Assembly District, which takes in Greenwich Village, more than half of the registered voters had cast their ballots by one o'clock. There were more women than men, the clerks said, and they seemed to know how they wanted to vote.

Inspector Dropped in Ballot.

One complaint that the national election laws were being violated was reported to the Federal deputy marshals under Assistant United States Attorney John Holley Clark Jr. The call came from the Fifteenth Election District of the Fourth Assembly District at Public School 92, Broome and Ridge Streets, where a Republican watcher, who refused to identify himself, charged that a man voter had dropped her ballot to the floor in front of the ballot box, and that Abraham Soloman, an inspector, picked it up for her and dropped it in the box.

The first big bonfire on the lower east side was started about 8 o'clock on New Chambers Street near New Bowery underneath the elevated structure. The boys of the neighborhood built the fire so high that the flames reached the tracks, and the firemen were called to extinguish the blaze. About three hundred boys and young men were gathered around the fire heaping on boxes and barrels and blowing fire horns when police of the Oak Street station dispersed them.

Unnoticed in a crowd of east side voters, Miss Chrystal Coolidge, a cousin of the President, cast her ballot in the Eleventh Election District of the Second Assembly District, at Public School 161, Essex and Delancey Streets. She arrived shortly before noon, quickly took her ballot and voted in less than five minutes. She is attached to the University Settlement at 184 Eldridge Street.

COOLIDGE TO ABANDON READING OF MESSAGE

President Plans to Send His Annual Communication to Congress by Messenger.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—President Coolidge plans to abandon the policy of appearing in person before Congress and reading his message as revived by President Wilson and followed by his predecessor and himself.

His message for the opening of the next session of Congress on the first Monday in December will be sent to the Senate and House in joint session and read by the clerks. He holds that since there will be no change in the personnel of the Congress which reassembles next December, there is no special reason why he should present his message in person.

WANT TO VOTE AT CAPITAL.

Women Display Empty Ballot Boxes to Emphasize Local Demand.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Ballot boxes, heretofore known in Washington only by hearsay, were visible everywhere in the downtown section of the capital today, but they were padlocked and no votes were cast in them.

"All citizens of the United States are voting today except citizens of the District of Columbia! Ballot boxes closed," read the signs attached to the boxes.

The District of Columbia League of Women Voters staged the demonstration to emphasize the fact that residents of Washington cannot vote as citizens of the District and to further an educational campaign to have the disability removed.

KLAN ADVISED HOW TO VOTE.

Knights in Full Regalia Listen to Speakers Near Huntington.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Nov. 4.—More than 1,000 members of the Ku Klux Klan, most of them in full regalia, met in a large open field on Cold Spring Hill here last night, burned a large cross and listened to speeches by two men not in the Klan uniform and both of whom were strangers here. Guards were stationed around the field.

The speakers urged their hearers to vote for those candidates for public office who had shown approval of the Klan where possible. Both speakers declared, however, that the Klan was not in politics.

ALABAMA TOWNS SOLID.

WINS IN HARDING PRECINCT.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—President Coolidge carried the home precinct of the late President Warren G. Harding by a bigger vote than Mr. Harding did four years ago.

That precinct—Precinct H of the Fourth Ward—gave Coolidge 154, Davis 64 and La Follette 13. Four years ago it gave Harding 145 and Cox 119.

Votes for Seventeenth President.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 4.—George B. Smith, Adjutant of the Lawton Warren Post, G. A. R., of this city, established a record for himself and the city yesterday when he cast his seventeenth Presidential vote. "And it was my seventeenth straight Republican vote too," said Mr. Smith. He is a man over 80 but still spry as a man thirty years his junior. He is also the last surviving member of the Company F, First Rhode Island Volunteers' Association that went out on the first call for troops in the Civil War.

TIMES SQ. IS PACKED BY ELECTION CROWD

SAD AT EARLY RETURNS

But as the Later Ones Pile Up Smith's Total Men and Women Cheer and Taxis Toot.

The greatest crowd that ever packed itself into Times Square saw the election returns on the TIMES Building last night and cheered the victories of Coolidge and Smith.

Although it was perfectly orderly, the Times Square crowd by the mere weight of its numbers escaped from police control. The clockwise and counterclockwise throngs around the Times Square sidewalks held each other at a deadlock until a mob convulsion now and then would open a passage through. All progress around the square was made under terrific pressure and the shouts due to anguish about the ankles and toes occasionally drowned the cheering and the fishhorns.

The sidewalks of the streets entering the square were packed tight as far as the bulletin board was visible. It was a quiet crowd. Few could get their arms free to raise horns to their mouths when the searchlight beamed the victory of Smith. There was no elbow room for bells or buzzers, but there was a big shout, and another big one when the Governor's picture was flashed on the screen.

There was only a slight demonstration when the announcement of Coolidge's victory was made by swinging the searchlight to the south. As if bored by this palpable truism the crowd waited in comparative silence for the next bulletins.

Noise in the Side Streets.

The outside fringe of the crowd in the side streets had its arms and voices under control and succeeded pretty well in making up the deficit of noise which was caused in Times Square proper by the crush which held everybody in a straitjacket.

The crowd was many times as great as that which witnessed the Harding-Cox returns. On that evening rain scattered the mob early. But the weather yesterday afternoon and evening would have pleased a Chinese Field Marshal and thousands had turned out before sundown. The thermometer went down sharply during the evening, but there was sufficient internal pressure in the crowd to have kept itself warm at zero.

Great gatherings heard the returns by radio in hotels and clubs and millions were alleged to be at home having the returns shouted at them, but this did not prevent the bulletin boards from being greater attractions than ever. One reason was apparent from the beginning. Thousands and thousands had turned out to argue. This is difficult when the radio is shouting, but the bulletin boards give the floor to the sidewalk orators, and debates went on last night until the debaters, by their own numbers, were squeezed and strangled into silence.

It is the first time that Times Square has turned 'em away. Men and women came by the hundreds down Broadway and along side streets, but found themselves blocked off by a mob which had the rigidity and slow, determined motion of a glacier. Notwithstanding all reports to the contrary, it was clear that less than 90 per cent. of the people of the City of New York own radio sets.

Crowd Is Worried at First.

The crowd was solemn at first because the early returns were anti-Smith. Before theatre time Smith began to do better. There was still lung and elbow room for making appreciative noises. Drivers of taxis, which moved in solid phalanxes, tooted their horns furiously for Smith. Nearly every automobile had a Smith sign on it. It was a tremendous work for the traffic cops to weave the foot crowd and the motor crowd through each other at the Times Square crossings, especially as both the pedestrians and the drivers had a percentage of their eyes on the bulletin boards. But, softened by the good news about Smith, the chauffeurs spared life and limb.

"Wait, wait, wait for the great silent vote," was the chant of a small group of Davis optimists on the Cadillac corner. This continued until after 8 o'clock, when the faith in this vast meditative but inarticulate body of voters began to wane.

Four policemen had to charge to prevent bloodshed at 7 o'clock on the northeast corner of Forty-third Street and Seventh Avenue, when some mortal insults were exchanged in a row which started over one of the figures on the bulletin board.

An Erie County figure gave Roosevelt 70,000-odd according to one reading, and only 10,000-odd, according to another. The horizontal line of the seven was a little weak, and it faded out and brightened up at intervals, so as to keep the argument bitter.

A Five-Cornered War of Words.

Offers to bet large sums were made, but being cautious about accepting perfect strangers as stakeholders the money was not staked. Attacks on intelligence were succeeded by onslaughts on character, and there was soon a five-cornered war of words of the kind which Mayor Hylan recently ordered out of the theatrical district. All the time the horizontal line of the seven winked on and off, like the changing lights over which Weber wrangled and fought with Fields nightly for two seasons.

As it was impossible to unsheathe arms, and as rhetoric was no longer adequate, the adversaries began bumping chests and stabbing with thumbs. As the four policemen charged, a new bulletin went up which cleverly demonstrated that the 7 was a 7.

A man who knew something about the geography of the State found himself the centre of an eager throng in front of the sharp edge of the Times Building early in the evening while the crowd was still mobile. Returns from Westchester County brought this scholar to light.

"Where is Westchester County?" asked one. There was a long silence and then this man spoke up and told where it was. Then in quick succession, following returns from those parts, the expert told where Nassau, Putnam, Rockland and Orange Counties were. For many yards on all sides of this walking encyclopedia men craned their necks and cupped their ears.

As the crowd grew and condensed, this man and other loud-voiced and informative ones were submerged, and it became a violent and continuous battle either to stay where you were or to move. Later on it became difficult for a person to keep up any kind of contact with his legs or arms. Ankles and toes became footrests. Feet sometimes lost contact with the sidewalk. Women pleaded for just room enough to enable them to get one foot back to the sidewalk.

"Why?"

"Because drinking men all got paralyzed before they could get here. Now if we had them we would have come here half-loaded. Then you could drink and still go somewhere. Today you fall where you drink."

Prudent proprietors of shops with plate glass fronts in Times Square protected them with iron and wooden braces. These were particularly happy thoughts in front of one or two windows where the crowd looking at the returns was opposed by a crowd which was looking the other way at uncensored pictures of uncensored shows.

The minute percentage of intoxicated persons in Times Square and in the vicinity was the subject of remark everywhere. The drinking effect was masked to some extent, however, because nobody had any room to stagger. Now and then, however, a man with smashed hat, mussed hair and set eyes was swept along in a strong current, upheld by the elbows, shoulders and toes of the contiguous, with his feet dragging or lifted clear of the sidewalk.

Theatre patronage was substantially below what was expected by the managers. For the first time in many years there were vacant seats on election night at attractions that are regarded as smashing hits. Several managers said the falling off in the customary election night business was due to the competition of the radio, which occupied the attention of those interested in the election returns.

At many of the theatres election returns were read from the stage. Most of the Keith vaudeville houses gave midnight performances in addition to the regular evening show, and there was a special midnight performance of "Dixie to Broadway" at the Broadhurst.

The election crowd in City Hall Park and Park Row was considerably smaller than in former years, according to the police, and enthusiasm was somewhat dampened by the cold. Not more than 15,000 persons had assembled by 8:30 last night, the most crowded hour in this neighborhood. By 10 o'clock this number had dwindled to around 10,000. While there were cheers for Smith when the bulletin flashed an encouraging report, enthusiasm was much less marked than in former years. It was noted that many persons crowded into the many small radio shops in the vicinity to listen to the reports, when they could have read them direct from the bulletin board on the World Building.

Police Have an Easy Time.

There was no confusion or disorder whatever, and the task of the traffic officers, under Captain Arthur Dodd, was an easy one. There were some horns and a few fancy costumes, but these were far less in evidence than at former Presidential elections.

A tremendous crowd gathered on 125th Street last night, overflowing the sidewalks and filling the streets at half a dozen places where the bulletins were shown.

It was estimated that 300,000 people flooded 125th Street. At places the crowd was solid from the building line on the north side of the street to the building line on the south side and all vehicular traffic had to be diverted. The task of controlling the mob was assigned to 460 policemen and they had their hands full.

Smaller crowds turned out in the Bronx, where bulletins were shown at 148th Street and Willis Avenue and in Tremont Avenue near Washington. Scores of neighborhood radio stores broadcast returns to local crowds numbering hundreds.

The crowds at the hotels were smaller than in former years, although several big dinners were given, notably those of the Ohio Society at the Waldorf-Astoria and the Rotary Club at the McAlpin. At the latter returns were received on a radio fire. The guests of the Rotary Club were entertained by a skit in which the leading candidates and foreign political leaders were represented. George H. Bodfish was a silent Coolidge, while Willie Hoffman made played Davis. William E. Canniff, as Mayor Hylan, made an impassioned speech for a five-cent fare in Siberia. Others included Andrew H. Dykes as Otsuka, James Kay as Giannini and Walter W. Krider as Chancellor Marx.

Among those giving dinners at the Hotel Roosevelt were Secretary Hughes, President Faunce of Brown University and Governor Redfield Crocker of Vermont.

Guests of Mayor Hylan.

Among the guests of Mayor and Mrs. Hylan in the East Room of the Waldorf-Astoria were Mr. and Mrs. John T. Sinnott, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coyle, Mr. and Mrs. John Murray, Paul Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Whalen, Commissioner Frank Harris, Philip Berolsheimer, Miss Helen Berolsheimer, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hulbert and Mr. and Mrs. George MacDonald.

Between 6 and 10 o'clock last night 130 fire alarms were sounded. Practically all of these were false, and fifty of them were rung in from 8 to 10:30. By far the greater number of the alarms were sent in from the lower east side.

500 AT G. O. P. QUARTERS.

Returns Received There by Radio, Phone and Telegraph.

More than 500 persons gathered in Republican Eastern headquarters, 2 West Forty-sixth Street, to receive the radio returns last night. The returns came in by radio, telephone and direct telegraph wire from Republican national headquarters at Chicago. With almost every return adding strength to Coolidge, the crowd received the reports with one demonstration after another.

Statements given out at Republican headquarters said that Coolidge would carry the West by a ratio of 2 to 1, that he would carry Illinois by 3 to 1 and Kansas by 4 to 1.

Among those who received the returns at Republican National Headquarters were Charles D. Hilles, Vice Chairman of the National Committee; Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University; Sam Schuyler Butler, Vice Chairman of the Republican State Committee; Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, Helen Varick Boswell, Director of the Women's Speakers' Bureau; Frederick C. Hicks, Director of Republican Eastern Headquarters; Representative and Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, Frank Munsey, Maude Wetmore, Nathaniel L. Elaberth, Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, William M. Calder and Professor Robert McElroy of Princeton.

RETURNS "DELIGHT" HYLAN.

Mayor Expresses Pleasure at Indications of Smith's Victory.

Mayor John F. Hylan, who received the returns last night at the municipal radio station, WNYC, expressed himself as "delighted" with Governor Smith's victory.

"I am very much delighted," he said, "to gather from the early returns indications that Governor Smith is reasonably safe by an indicated plurality that can hardly be upset by fuller returns. The City of New York needs Governor Smith at Albany and his re-election will make it possible for the City Administration to go forward with its program for the development of this city."

DAWES GREETED AT POLLS.

General Smokes His Pipe as He Votes—Neighbors All for Him.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Marking his ballot with a lead pencil from his own pocket instead of the customary blue pencil furnished by election officials, Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for Vice President, voted shortly before noon today at the polling place of the Third Precinct of the First Ward of Evanston.

Mrs. Dawes voted at the same time as her husband and almost as quickly.

The Republican nominee and his wife, accompanied by only Francis J. Kilkenny, his personal campaign manager, and several newspapermen, walked from their home to the polling place, about three blocks. Several neighbors and Billie, the old mail carrier on the route on which the Dawes home is located, greeted them along the way with calls of "Success to you, General."

About fifty persons and a dozen photographers greeted the Republican candidate at the polling place and gave a cheer when he followed by Mrs. Dawes, stepped inside. His ballots were handed to him and smoking his pipe, he walked into the booth. Within a fraction of a minute he was out again, still smoking his pipe, and then in response to the persistent requests of the photographers posed at the ballot box. At the door a tag, reading "I have voted," was handed to him and fixing it to the lapel of his overcoat, he with Mrs. Dawes returned home where tonight they with a number of friends received the returns as gathered by The Associated Press.

General Dawes and his Republican running mate, Calvin Coolidge, carried his home precinct by an overwhelming majority. The vote was: Coolidge, 308; Davis, 54; La Follette, 26. All but three persons registered in the precinct voted.

TO VOID DUAL VOTES FOR LA FOLLETTE

Voorhis Holds Ballots Marked Both in Socialist and Third Party Columns Illegal.

JUDGESHIP A SIMILAR CASE

If Four Names Are Indicated Where Three Are to Be Chosen the Vote Is Lost.

John R. Voorhis, Commissioner of Elections, announced yesterday the receipt of a letter from Arthur Garfield Hays, State Chairman of the Progressive Party, requesting that ballots which are marked twice for La Follette (both in the Socialist and the Progressive columns be counted as legal votes. This, however, he said, is in violation of the election laws, which say they must be voided.

Mr. Voorhis pointed out that if La Follette were voted for both under his own emblem of the Liberty Bell and under the torch of the Socialist Party, forty-six electors would be chosen, whereas the legal number is only forty-five. The nineteenth Socialist elector is Arthur Garfield Hays, and the corresponding name in the Progressive list is Walter Frank. The remaining forty-four names are identical in both parties.

Will Discard Ballots.

If, for any reason, voters put their crosses in both circles, Commissioner Voorhis said the Presidential ballot would be discarded. He predicted that many would make that mistae, accidentally or otherwise. If Republican or Democratic watchers realise the situation, the Commissioner said he felt sure they would protest against the counting of such votes. The ballots would then be taken before the County Board of Canvassers for ruling. If the Progressives are dissatisfied with their opinion, they will have the opportunity of bringing the matter before the Supreme Court. Commissioner Voorhis expressed the belief that this would be done to set a precedent.

The law cited by the Commissioner dealing with this matter is Section 219, which is headed, "Method of Tallying Votes for Presidential Electors." The specific ruling is No. 6 and is worded as follows:

"If the voter marks more names than there are persons to be elected or nominated for an office, or elected to a party position, or if for any reason it is impossible to determine the voter's choice of a candidate or candidates for an office or party position, or his vote upon a question, his vote shall not be counted for such office or position or upon the question, but shall be returned as a blank vote thereon."

Supreme Court Situation.

Citing another example that would come under the ruling, Commissioner Voorhis pointed out that where three candidates for Supreme Court Judge are to be chosen, the vote for that position is thrown out if the voter marks four names.

The Commissioner said that no reply was made to Mr. Hays's request because he did not ask the board's view of the question. Nor were any instructions sent out to the canvassers.

"We think it is time to give an answer to a question when it is asked," was his explanation.

It was reported also that Queens leaders in the La Follette party had made a similar request to the election officials in that borough.

LA FOLLETTE MEN PROTEST.

Demand Perlman Explain Alleged Claim of Senator's Support.

A parade of 2,000 La Follette supporters protesting against the reported statement of Congressman Nathan D. Perlman, Republican candidate for re-election on the lower east side, that he had been supported by La Follette, marched to Perlman's home at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, according to Joseph D. Cannon, State Secretary of the Socialist Party.

Cannon said that lights were thrown into the window of Perlman's apartment at 440 Fifth Street and the Congressman was asked to appear and explain his alleged utterances. Perlman did not address the crowd.

Two complaints were received at Socialist headquarters yesterday, but they were investigated and found to be trivial. Mr. Cannon said the election boards had been fair and that the Socialists had no complaint to make.

LA FOLLETTE SAYS NOTHING.

Receives the Returns at Madison but Makes No Comment.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Senator La Follette will make no comment on the election tonight, he told newspaper men shortly after 10 o'clock.

At the State Capitol, where he received the election returns by special wire, Senator La Follette indicated to friends that he would be unable to appraise the results on the basis of fragmentary returns.

He awaited each bulletin eagerly, smiling as the figures were read and remarking from time to time to a small circle of friends on the significance he attached to the reports. He would have nothing for publication, however, he said, until the returns might be studied.

COL. COOLIDGE IS FIRST TO VOTE IN PLYMOUTH

President's Father Refuses Auto Ride and Goes to Polls With Horse and Buggy.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Nov. 4.—Colonel John Coolidge, father of the President, was the first to cast his vote when the polls opened in this town, the President's birthplace. At 10 o'clock he entered the hall at Plymouth Union accompanied by his housekeeper, Aurora Pierce, and marked his ballot.

The President's father earlier had refused offers by several persons to drive him in an automobile over the mile of hilly road that separates the Coolidge home from the Frank H. Moore Hall at Plymouth Union. He hitched up his horse and buggy and drove over. The ballots were deposited in boxes improvised from butter pails. It has become a tradition in Plymouth that Colonel Coolidge will cast the first ballot on election day.

There are 214 registered voters in the town, of whom half are women.

J. J. DAVIS ELECTED 'MAYOR.'

Children of Mooseheart Choose the Secretary of Labor.

MOOSEHEART, Ill., Nov. 4.—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis was today elected Mayor of Mooseheart, more than 1,200 children of all ages participating in the voting. Mr. Davis, founder of the Moose children's city, is the first to be honored with election to this office.

The vote was practically unanimous, the few votes the Secretary did not receive going to Mrs. Davis.

As each child voted, Superintendent M. P. Adams required that he or she take a pledge never to miss voting at any election.

New Laces from Switzerland

These reproductions of real lace are so exquisitely made it is difficult to distinguish between them and hand-made lace. They are most attractive and very inexpensive—only a fraction of the cost of real lace.

VENISE LACE

3 to 18 in. wide $1.95 to $12.00 a yd.

Many designs in edging, insertion and double-edge banding in white, cream, ecru and penny brown. Smart for trimming velvet, faille and satin dresses. One novelty is a clever combination of fine batiste and Venise.

DUCHESSE LACE

1 to 5 in. wide 45¢ to $4.50 a yd.

Perfectly reproducing the motifs and shade of real Duchesse, this lace is wonderfully effective. Edging and insertion in several different designs.

LINGERIE LACE

45¢ to 75¢ a yard

Swiss embroidery and fine Cluny lace make a combination that is practical and dainty for undergarments. Shoulder straps to match.

EMBROIDERED GOWN TOPS

50¢ - 85¢ and $1.00 each

PROGRESSIVES SAD AT STATE RETURNS

MANY VOTES ARE VOIDED

Confusion Over Emblems Caused Many to Vote Twice for La Follette Ticket.

Leaders of the La Follette-Wheeler campaign in New York expressed disappointment over the size of the vote as shown by the returns last night. Arthur Garfield Hays, State Chairman of the New York campaign for the Third Party, said:

"I am pleased with some features of the support given to La Follette and Wheeler in different sections, but I am disappointed at the general result throughout the State. I had expected about 25 per cent. of the total vote to go to Senator La Follette. According to the reurns he probably will get about 15 per cent. of the whole."

Mr. Hays, who, with Gilbert R. Roe, Regional Director of the La Follette-Wheeler ticket, Malcome McAdoo, and some of the workers of the party here, including a number of women leaders, received the returns at the State headquarters, 25 West Forty-third Street.

According to Chairman Hays's interpretation of the returns the Third Party movement had lost heavily in the last week or ten days by the active campaign of local candidates and particularly the intensive contest made by Governor Smith and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

Had Little Money, He Says.

"To counteract the interest fostered by the various candidates of the other two parties on the State and district tickets, we had nothing to offer, as we had no candidates other than the heads of the ticket, except the one endorsement given to the candidacy of Representative F. H. LaGuardia," said Chairman Hays.

"We had no money for a general campaign. Our total expenditure for the ectire State will not exceed $20,000. In fact, it can hardly be said that we made a regular campaign. The principal efforts here consisted of the five speeches made by Senator La Follette, one each in Manhattan and Brooklyn, at Syracuse, Rochester and Schenectady. Under these circumstances I think we have made a very good showing in New York."

Chairman Hays asserted that about 20,000 votes that were cast for La Follette and Wheeler throughout the city had been declared void by mistakes in voting. The La Follette ticket had two places on the ballot. One was headed by the Socialist emblem and the other by the La Follette and Wheeler emblem.

"We had expected that these two-party columns on the ballot would be a great advantage to Senator La Follette," said Chairman Hays, "but this arrangement appears to have been a boomerang. The reports that have been reaching us all evening about these voided ballots show that voters, in their anxiety to get in a certain vote for La Follette, voted twice for him on the same ballot; that is, they voted for him in the Socialist column and again in the column marked for the Progressive Party."

Whether or not he will raise any legal question over these defective ballots Mr. Hays had not decided last night. He said that, as the vote on them showed so clearly for whom it was intended and so clearly indicated the intention of the voter, in his opinion, one of these votes or each of these ballots should be counted for his party.

Thanks the Workers.

In a final statement at midnight Chairman Hays estimated the State vote for La Follette and Wheeler in New York at 600,000. He said this and the somewhat larger proportionate vote reported from the West indicated a total national vote of at least 6,000,000 for the heads of the ticket.

"This result assures the continuation and establishment of the Third Party movement in future elections," he went on. "A conference of its leaders and representatives of affiliated organizations and others will follow on Jan. 1."

On behalf of Senator La Follette Chairman Hays thanked the Progressive Party workers and told them of the next step to be taken to organize and perfect the new party. "Had we had resources like those at the command of the Republican Party, or even the Democratic Party, we would have swept the country, I believe," said Mr. Hays. "Both of the two parties have lost votes to us."

Chairman Hays said that from a political standpoint the Third Party leaders would have preferred the election of Colonel Roosevelt.

"It's a fact that we prefer Smith personally and approve of many of his policies," asserted Chairman Hays. "But we recognize Smith's power and influence in the State, and his re-election as Governor of New York makes him the greatest political obstacle to the Third Party movement in New York."

Concedes Smith's Election.

Norman Thomas, defeated Socialist candidate for Governor, in a statement issued from Socialist State headquarters, 7 East Fifteenth Street, conceded Governor Smith's election and characterized the Democratic Gubernatorial candidate as "The better of two evils."

"I assume that Governor Smith is elected," he said. "The whole purpose of the Socialist campaign was to hold together the party and make it as potent a factor as possible in the creation of a new party of the farmers and workers. Once Governor Smith was renominated it was evident we would have a hard struggle to hold our vote of two years ago, to say nothing of increasing it. This was true, not only because of the popularity of Governor Smith and the fear of Colonel Roosevelt in labor circles in general, but also because of the special hold Governor Smith had on unions normally socialistic.

"I am giving out this statement before it is evident what the Socialist Gubernatorial vote has been. There are, however, many indications that a surprisingly big proportion of the La Follette vote has been cast under the Socialist rather than the Progressive emblem. This is evidence of a widespread desire for a new party, based on socialistic principles, even if it is accompanied by a very large vote for Governor Smith.

"At this time it would appear that Governor Smith's re-election is assured. That means a far more competent and liberal administration of State affairs than Colonel Roosevelt would have given. What it means for a new party is less certain, but it is difficult to believe that the present unnatural alliance between Governor Smith's party in this State and the Bourbon Democracy of the South can continue forever. It will be interesting to see whether the Democratic Party will split or continue nationally under such leadership as in this campaign.

"Whatever the vote may show, I am convinced that the educational fight of the Socialist Party this year has been worth while. To my certain knowledge it has won a sympathetic hearing from great numbers of people who somehow persuaded themselves that they must vote for Governor Smith to avert the calamity of a reactionary and incompetent Republican regime."

EAST SENDS ITS FIRST WOMAN TO CONGRESS

Mrs. Norton, Elected in Jersey City, Is Also First Woman Democrat in House.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton, elected to the House of Representatives from the Twelfth Congressional District in New Jersey, is the first woman to be elected to Congress from the East. She is also the first Democratic woman member of Congress, and is the fifth woman to be elected to a seat in the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Norton's unopposed nomination by the Democratic Party was regarded as equivalent to election, as the Twelfth Congressional District, New Jersey, coincides with the Eleventh Ward of Jersey City, a Democratic stronghold. She had the backing of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and the rest of the powerful Democratic organization in Hudson County. Mrs. Norton was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Madison Square Garden and, like the rest of the New Jersey delegation, cast her vote faithfully for Al Smith for the Presidential nomination until New York's Governor withdrew from the race.

Mrs. Norton is Vice Chairman of the New Jersey Democratic State Committee. She was the first woman Freeholder in Hudson County, a position similar to that of County Commissioner in New York, and is Chairman of the County Committee on the General Hospital and the Almshouse.

She is the wife of Robert F. Norton and lives at 90 Reservoir Street, Jersey City. Becoming interested in public affairs after the death of her only child, she volunteered more than ten years ago for work in the Hudson County Day Nurseries. She has been head of the Queens Daughters Day Nursery in Hudson County for eight years. Her first political position came in 1920, when she was chosen Vice Chairman of the County Democratic organization. The next year she became Vice Chairman of the State Committee.

As a member of the Hudson County Board of Freeholders Mrs. Norton has been specially interested in hospital construction, particularly in the building of a new maternity hospital where women of small means may obtain the best of treatment for a minimum charge.

Mrs. Norton believes in a gradual assumption of political rights by women.

"We ought not to have equal rights immediately" she said during the campaign, "We must creep before we can walk."

She promised in her campaign appeals to help get a rise in pay for postal employes as her first concern on taking her seat in Congress.

"The letter carriers," she said, "are the most faithful of public servants. Rain or shine they are on the job. When a car strike occurs they walk to their routes. Nothing daunts them. Yet they are most poorly salaried."

The four women who preceded Mrs. Norton in the House of Representatives, all of whom have now passed out of that body for one reason or another, were all Republicans. Jeanette Rankin of Montana was the first woman to sit in the House, taking her seat on April 2, 1917, the day that President Wilson's War Congress convened. She later became a candidate for the Senatorial nomination from Montana, but lost her fight. The next woman Representative was Alice Robertson of Oklahoma, who was defeated for re-election in 1922. The third was Mrs. Winifred Mason Huck, Representative-at-Large from Illinois, chosen to serve the balance of the term of her father, Representative William E. Mason, who died in office. Mrs. Huck failed to get the nomination for the next term. The fourth was Mrs. Mae E. Nolan, Republican-Labor, of California, who was chosen to serve the balance of the term of her husband, Representative John I. Nolan, who died in office. Mrs. Nolan was not a candidate for the renomination.

LA FOLLETTE WORKERS CLOSE HEADQUARTERS

Democrats Keep Washington Offices Open, but Are Despondent While Republicans Are Astir.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Washington headquarters of the La Follette-Wheeler Third Party organization knocked off business early today and tonight the rooms that have been astir for weeks were dark and closed to the public. Those who sought to get the La Follette headquarters by telephone with a view to ascertaining how things were going in the West were told that "the line has been temporarily disconnected."

At the Democratic headquarters the publicity staff was on duty, but announced that there "would be no news." Returns were received there by radio and by wire, and as the early reports indicated the election of President Coolidge, the crowd soon thinned out. Democratic leaders at headquarters derived some satisfaction from the apparent re-election of Al Smith as Governor of New York.

There was a good deal more animation observable among the throngs that packed the Republican headquarters. James B. Reynolds, the leader in charge, received callers, and arrangements had been made there for the receipt of election news similar to those perfected at the White House. The workers at Republican headquarters were highly enthusiastic, expressing the belief that the Coolidge momentum would return a House more than nominally Republican. Mr. Reynolds and his associates kept headquarters open until a late hour furnishing election news to callers and responding to numerous telephone inquiries.

WHEELER WON'T COMMENT.

He Prefers to Wait for Full Returns to Make an Analysis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, teammate of Senator La Follette on the Progressive Presidential ticket, declined tonight to enter into any discussion of the trend of the voting, as reported in the returns of the earlier part of the evening. He said he preferred to wait until the result had been finally determined before analyzing the preliminary indications.

"It will be two or three days before we know what the final result may be in a number of the localities where there has been a hard fight," he said.

"The early returns usually have such men as Brookhart in Iowa and Magnus Johnson in Minnesota defeated, but they usually come out in the end all right."

COOLIDGE AND DAWES GO TO SAME CHURCH

FIRST TIME IN HISTORY

Coolidge Became Member of Denomination Soon After Death of President Harding.

The election of Calvin Coolidge as President and of Charles G. Dawes to the Vice Presidency is of particular interest to members of the Congregational Church throughout the United States because of the fact that both men worship with that denomination.

President and Mrs. Coolidge are members of the First Congregational Church of Washington, D. C., and the Vice President-elect attends the First Congregational Church of Evanston, Ill. While General Dawes is not a member of the church, his wife is, and when at home the General is in the habit of attending Sunday services with her.

This is the first time in the history of the United States that the two men holding the highest offices in the country are both attendants of the Congregational Church and one of the few times that both President and Vice President are worshipers under the same denominational classification.

When Mr. Coolidge became President he was not a member of the church, although a regular attendant. But when he was on his way from his father's home in the mountains of Vermont to Washington to become Chief Executive, he sent just one telegram. This was a personal message to Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the church that Mr. Coolidge and his wife attended while Mr. Coolidge was Vice President.

The nature of the telegram was not made known until some months later, when Dr. Pierce said it asked if there would be any hindrance to the new President partaking of holy communion. Dr. Pierce sent a private message back that President Coolidge would be more than welcome at the communion table.

It so happened that the first Sunday Mr. Coolidge was President was the bimonthly celebration of the Congregationalist holy communion and Dr. Pierce was returning to officiate. So on that Sunday morning in August, 1923, President Coolidge partook of the holy communion for the first time.

Dr. Pierce, in telling of this afterward, said Mr. Coolidge, "felt deeply the terrific responsibility which had so suddenly been thrust upon him."

Two months later the biennial meeting of the National Council of the Congregational Churches was held in Springfield, Mass., and Mr. Coolidge was unanimously elected Vice Moderator. Word was sent to him immediately, and the following morning a telegram was received from the President accepting the office.

Dr. Pierce was a delegate. He sent Mr. Coolidge a telegram inviting him to join the church. Mr. Coolidge wired back that he would do so. Two days later Mr. Coolidge was received into the First Congregational Church, Washington, on confession of his faith. On suggestion of Dr. Pierce, after consultation with Mr. Coolidge, the congregation voted that the date of his reception be recorded as the August Sunday he first took communion—the first Sunday he was President of the United States.

RHODE ISLAND 'EXILES' GET STATE RETURNS

Twenty Republican Senators at Rutland, Mass., Tabulate Their Vote by Radio and Wire.

RUTLAND, Mass., Nov. 4.—With radio bringing in the results of the national election and with a special telegraph wire direct from Providence clicking off the State returns, twenty of the twenty-two Republican State Senators of Rhode Island tonight were watching the tabulations in which their votes were missing.

Senator Harry A. Sanderson, who remained to question a quorum in the Senate Chamber when the others went into their Rutland "exile," and Senator Henry A. Evers, who returned to his home in Cranston some weeks ago after deciding not to run for re-election, were the only ones to vote today. The laws of the State do not permit absentee voting.

The Senators were joined here today by many of their families, after the latter had cast their ballots in Rhode Island. Although only scattering returns had been brought in, Senator Arthur A. Sherman of Portsmouth, leader of the Republicans, expressed confidence in the final result.

$15,000,000 PARK BONDS APPROVED BY VOTERS

Majority of 813,000 Indicated in This City—Westchester Also For It.

Although there were few up-State returns on Proposition No. 1 for an issue of $15,000,000 in bonds for the State park system, the indicated plurality for it in New York City was so large that its adoption seems to be certain.

In New York City the vote from 954 out of the 2,970 election districts showed a majority for the proposition of 262,771, indicating a majority of 813,000 for it in the entire city.

Incomplete returns from Westchester County indicated that the proposition had carried there also.

Borough.	Yes.	No.	Plur. D. Miss'g.
Manhattan	51,172	5,944	847
Bronx	24,423	3,572	387

HEDGING ON ELECTION BETS.

Odds of 15 to 1 Given on Coolidge as Ballots Are Being Cast.

The declaration by George White, a member of the Advisory Committee of the Democratic National Committee, that the odds quoted by brokers in Wall Street on the outcome of the election were "bucketshop Republican propaganda" was answered yesterday by the commissioners, who declared they had announced no odds whatever unless they were prepared to back up their announcements with the money.

J. S. Fried & Co., 20 Broad Street, made one wager of $7,500 to $500 yesterday that President Coolidge would be re-elected. The firm secured permission of Dr. John Erwin, 2,819 Jamaica Avenue, Richmond Hill, L. I., who placed the bet against President Coolidge, to make his name public. The odds of 15 to 1 were the highest recorded during the campaign.

Closing odds against Senator La Follette were 55 to 1. Governor Smith was a 2¼-to-1 favorite at the close of the betting. Most of the bets laid yesterday were merely "hedges" against other wagers made earlier in the campaign.

Voted First for Franklin Pierce.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 4.—Niles Hodgson of this city, who cast his first vote for Franklin Pierce and has the record of voting for every Republican Presidential candidate, went to the polls here today. He is 93 years old. He announced that he had marked his ballot for Calvin Coolidge.

DECLARES THIRD PARTY WILL BE KEPT INTACT

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Irrespective of the result of today's election, the Independent party headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette will be kept intact and will enter the next political fight in 1926 and the Presidential race in 1928, John M. Nelson, La Follette campaign manager, announced tonight.

The headquarters of the organization will be moved to Washington, and an effort will be made to strengthen the movement while all La Follette-Wheeler leaders throughout the country will be instructed to preserve their records intact and continue working in lining up the organization, Mr. Nelson said.

Mr. Nelson later issued this statement:

"Early returns indicate a landslide for Coolidge. We still have hopes, however, of carrying some of the Western States."

He would have no further comment tonight, he said.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, who supported Senator La Follette for the Presidency, issued this statement:

"Ours was a protest vote against both old parties, their platforms and their candidates, and our cause will live and find its fruition."

WRIT RESTRAINS JUDGE.

Vogel of Long Beach Prohibited From Acting in Election Cases.

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 4.—Supreme Court Justice Faber today signed a writ of prohibition restraining City Judge Morris Vogel of Long Beach from acting in connection with any election matter before 6 P. M. today. Justice Faber said he would remain at the Court House most of the time today in case of possible election business.

Justice Strong yesterday signed a temporary writ restraining Judge Vogel from acting in election matters, the writ being returnable today before Justice Faber. William J. Dalton, candidate for Mayor of Long Beach, in the petition for the writ said that Judge Vogel is a candidate for re-election as City Judge on the ticket opposed to Mr. Dalton.

DAVIS'S SISTER AT RADIO.

Hoped for the Best, but Didn't Expect Brother to Win.

Mrs. Hilary G. Richardson, sister of John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, sat by her radio receiver in her home at 147 North Broadway, Yonkers, last night, getting the election returns. Asked if she expected her brother to win, she answered:

"Why, no. But I hope for the best."

Mrs. Richardson added that she expected a call from her brother later in the night.

"I sincerely hope for Governor Smith's re-election," she told the newspaper men.

WIN WESTCHESTER BY A CLEAN SWEEP

Republicans Hold All County Offices and Keep All Seats in Legislature.

WAINWRIGHT IS RE-ELECTED

Roosevelt Carries the County by a Wide Margin—Record Vote Cast Everywhere.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Although returns have not been received from all the districts in Westchester County, the Republicans made a clean sweep for their county ticket. The votes so far tabulated show that Surrogate George A. Slater of Port Chester was re-elected by about 50,000 majority, and George J. Werner of Rye, ex-time Sheriff of Westchester, was elected Commissioner of Public Welfare.

Mr. Werner, who is a prominent Republican of Rye, defeated Mrs. Annie T. Connelly, a Democrat of Yonkers. Coroner Edward F. Fitzgerald of White Plains was re-elected by an enormous majority. Colonel Roosevelt carried the county by about 14,700 plurality.

Westchester Republicans re-elected two Senators and five Assemblymen and Congressman J. Mayhew Wainwright in the Twenty-fifth Westchester-Rockland District. Senator Walter W. Westall, Republican, was re-elected in the Twenty-fifth District over Elmer Cargan, Democrat of White Plains, by 10,000 plurality. Congressman Wainwright's majority was about 28,000.

Incomplete returns from the Bronx and lower Westchester indicate that Congressman Ben L. Fairchild, Republican, in the Twenty-sixth District, has been re-elected by a small majority.

The greatly increased vote in Westchester, according to William L. Ward, the veteran Republican leader, was due to the activity of the Republican women, upon whom he urged the necessity of getting out some 10,000 women who had never registered in Westchester County before. For instance, one colored woman, 102 years old, at New Rochelle, who failed to vote last election, walked to the polls today and voted for Coolidge and Dawes.

Incomplete returns show that Westchester County voters approved the State bond issue of $15,000,000.

All over Westchester County's record vote was cast before noon. In the cities voting machines were used and the only hitch came in Mount Vernon, where two machines became jammed and about four votes were lost. Mechanics were rushed to the polling places and the machines were quickly repaired.

"I am greatly pleased with Westchester's record vote for Calvin Coolidge," said Mr. Ward. "His plurality in Westchester County will be about 55,000 over Davis. This is more than the plurality received by Warren G. Harding in 1920. Westchester also gave a good majority for Colonel Roosevelt."

The Assemblymen elected in Westchester were: First District, T. Channing Moore, Republican; Second District, Major Herbert B. Shonk, Republican; Third District, Milan E. Goodrich, Republican; Fourth District, Alexander H. Garnjost, Republican; Fifth District, George A. Krug, Republican.

the State voted for President as follows: Coolidge, 1,522; Davis, 819, La Follette, 228. Four districts voted for United States Senator as follows: Edge, 352; Donnelly, 101; Record, 3.

Coolidge Lead Is Growing.

In the city of Newark 80 election districts out of 225 gave Coolidge 13,115, Davis 7,837 and La Follette 3,067. In the Senatorial contest the same districts gave Edge, 11,715; Donnelly, 7,800, and Record, 1,417.

At 1:30 A. M. election officials in Newark estimated that one-sixth of the returns for the State of New Jersey were complete and they gave President Coolidge a lead of more than 50,000 over Davis. United States Senator Edge at that hour was reported to have a lead of 40,000 over Donnelly, Democrat.

The vote then was estimated Coolidge 88,378, Davis 35,592, La Follette 12,198. In the senatorial contest Edge 78,827, Donnelly 38,022, Record 4,309.

From Trenton came estimates of pluralities as follows: Coolidge 150,000, Edge 75,000. The vote was reported to have exceeded 1,000,000 for the first time in the history of the State of New Jersey.

There were bitter fights in the twelve Congressional Districts of the State, and it was almost certain that the Democrats have lost two of their six seats, with two others still in doubt. Congressman Elmer H. Geran of the Third District has been defeated by T. Frank Appleby, Republican, and anti-Klan, Franklin W. Fort, Republican, has been returned a winner over Congressman Daniel F. Minahan in the Ninth District. In the Fourth District the fight between Congressman Charles Browne and Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, Republican, is very close. The Republicans claim that Eaton will be elected by about 1,000 plurality, but the Democrats do not concede this. The result in the Eighth District, between Congressman Frank J. McNulty, Democrat, and Herbert W. Taylor, is still in doubt.

In the six counties where State Senate fights were waged, the result has not been changed. The Republicans were successful in Burlington, Cape May, Middlesex and Passaic Counties, re-electing Emmor Roberts, William H. Bright, Morgan F. Larson and Albin Smith, while the Democrats re-elected David H. Agans in Hunterdon and Henry T. Kays in Sussex. The Senate will still stand Republican 17, Democrat 4.

Prior to today's election the House of Assembly stood 42 Republican and 18 Democratic. The next House will probably stand, Republican, 46, and Democrat, 14, the Democrats having lost four seats when Harry Greiner, George C. Vanderbilt and Linton S. Marshall were defeated in Mercer County and Frederick W. De Voe in Middlesex.

Of the 105,000 registered voters in Jersey City more than 103,000 cast their ballots. With more than one-third of the vote of Jersey City tabulated the count stood: Davis, 24,000; Coolidge, 10,761.

Veteran Is Defeated.

Jacob Klotz, Democrat, running for Assembly in Somerset County against Grover S. Kipsey, Republican, was the most picturesque figure in the New Jersey campaign. He is only a few years less than 100. He was first a member of the Legislature of New Jersey in 1889-90. After serving in that capacity he never ran for office again until the last election. He has made his campaign in a strong Republican county, and he was defeated.

The wrath of women voters of Clementon Township, near Hammonton, N. J., broke over the Clementon Township Committee and made itself manifest in the votes cast yesterday. In casting their votes the women of that community are said to have settled an old score with the Clementon Township Committee for the appointment of Frank Keeler, now under $2,000 bail on a charge of extortion.

The women of the township signed a petition for the removal of Keeler from office and when they did not succeed, it is said, they cast their votes yesterday against every candidate favored by the members of the Township Committee.

They were indignant at Keeler because of the imprisonment in the County Jail of one of their number, Mrs. Ellis Ashfield of Somerville. Mrs. Ashfield was jailed on the order of Keeler after the woman had stated that she could not pay a fine of $18.75 imposed upon her by Keeler on a minor charge.

Mr. Keeler ordered her released after she spent twenty-four hours in jail. But in leaving her cell she started to descend a spiral stairway, fell, and was taken from the prison unconscious. The women of the different municipalities in Clementon Township held numerous protest meetings and started their petition for the dismissal of Keeler. More than 100 women signed the petition, which the Township Committee so far has ignored. Some of the women who circulated the petition disclosed that they had organized their voting strength for a retaliatory stroke against the Township Committee, and sat up until early this morning to see the effect of their fight.

REVIEW OF EVENTS IN COOLIDGE'S TERM

Campaigns for Economy and Tax Reduction Enlisted President's Chief Interest.

OIL SCANDAL A BIG PROBLEM

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Calvin Coolidge's fifteen months as President have been marked by more than ordinary activities on the part of the Executive and the Congress, as well as by many tense and stirring situations.

When he presented himself at the Capitol, after having been sworn in, as Chief Magistrate by his father in the old Coolidge homestead in Plymouth, Vt., President Coolidge assumed one of the mightiest tasks faced by any President in many years. He did not take office amid plaudits and celebration. On the contrary, he had succeeded to the office by reason of the untimely death of a popular Executive, Warren G. Harding. The American people were in mourning and the problems that confronted the President were very complex.

President Coolidge, with customary calm, entered upon this task with determination and sincerity of purpose. With Mrs. Coolidge, he made his home at the Willard Hotel, and directed the affairs of the nation from there. His first public act was to announce that "Under the inspiration of President Harding's example" he would "take up the burdens he was permitted to lay down, and to develop and support the wise principles of government which he represented."

Under his personal direction, arrangements for the funeral of President Harding were made. At his solicitation Mrs. Harding remained at the White House for more than four weeks to direct the packing of her personal effects.

Names Slemp Secretary.

It was late in September when the President and Mrs. Coolidge took up their abode in the White House. One of his first acts then was to appoint C. Bascom Slemp of Virginia, who had been a Representative in Congress for nearly twenty years, as secrtary to succeed George B. Christian Jr., who had served in that capacity under President Harding. In the meantime, the members of the Cabinet, all of whom had tendered their resignations, accepted Mr. Coolidge's request to remain in office with him.

From the very beginning, his Administration was marked by a determination to reduce the Government's expense. His predecessor had initiated a policy of economy and President Coolidge carried it on with the result that this Administration, chiefly through the agency of the budget, reduced the annual cost of the Government, from $5,538,000,000 in 1921 to $3,497,000,000. The public debt has been reduced from $24,000,000,000 to $21,250,000,000, an annual saving in interest of more than $120,000,000 annually. The Government has paid off or refunded $7,000,000,000 of short-time obligations.

Starts Tax Cut Campaign.

The President had not been at the helm of the Government very long before he let it be known that he was going to initiate a movement to reduce the taxes.

Legislation brought about a reduction of $385,000,000 a year in taxes, or about $30 per household; and a repeal of the taxes on luxuries and messages and amusements was passed.

President Coolidge always has contended, while advocating a reduction in taxes, that they bear most heavily upon the poor and that they diminish industry and commerce and make agriculture unprofitable, and he stated in his speech of acceptance that there must be further reduction.

Another event during the Coolidge Administration was the adoption by the European Governments of the plan to settle the reparations dispute, through General Charles G. Dawes and Owen D. Young. Adoption of this plan, which brought about the withdrawal of the French troops from the Ruhr district, effected an agreement for an extension of time and a reduction in the present amount of reparation payments, and had the effect of placing the financial budgets of the European countries in a position where they can be balanced.

What is looked upon as the most important phase of this settlement was the loan of over $200,000,000, which the Dawes plan provided, for the restoration of Germany's currency. This loan was obtained almost wholly through bankers in the United States.

The first big problem to confront the President soon after his succession was the threatened coal strike in the hard coal sections of Pennsylvania. He summoned a conference of Governors of coal-producing States and worked out a plan in which the Federal Government cooperated with the State Governments to bring about a resumption of the mines. A part of the Administration plan called for the appointment of a commission to determine the cost of production of coal and to inform the public as to reasonable profits mine operators should have, and other conditions involved, such as wages and living conditions of the miners.

This commission furnished facts upon which Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, operating with the Federal Government, succeeded in bringing about a settlement satisfactory to the workers and the general public.

The Oil Scandal.

The most embarrassing question of his brief Administration was the scandal which developed in connection with the leasing of naval oil reserves, including Teapot Dome.

This led to a prolonged investigation by a Senate committee, to the resignation of Secretary of the Navy Denby and the dismissal of Attorney General Daugherty.

President Coolidge took the stand that all involved should have a fair hearing, and declined to act until he was satisfied that the officials involved had lost the faith of the people and were no longer of value as Cabinet members.

The Senate called upon him by resolutions to dismiss Mr. Daugherty some weeks in advance of his own action, and the President, by a sharp message to the Senate, plainly told that body that it had no authority over the Executive branch of the Government in the way it assumed to dictate.

The President requested authority of Congress to appoint special counsel to institute civil and criminal suits for the restitution of the oil reserves and the prosecution of any guilty wrong doing. These suits are now proceeding, the Government's case being handled by former Senator Pomerene of Ohio, a Democrat, and Owen D. Roberts of Philadelphia, a Republican.

President Coolidge undertook the reorganization of the War Veterans' Bureau, which followed the exposé of irregularities, laxity, inefficiency and fraud. The bureau was shown to have expended more money than any other single agency of the Government.

An investigation conducted by a Senate committee led the Department of Justice to prosecute Charles R. Forbes, who was charged, as director of the bureau, with being responsible for conditions, and with being involved in some questionable transactions in connection with contracts for hospital buildings.

Vetoes Include Bonus Bill.

In the face of opposition from his own party and threats of organized political opposition, President Coolidge vetoed the Soldiers' Bonus bill, encountered the opposition of the veterans of the Civil and Spanish Wars by disapproving the Bursum Pension bill, and met a storm of opposition when he put his veto to the bill increasing the pay of postal employes. The bonus bill was the only one of these three measures which became a law over his veto.

President Coolidge recommended to Congress to enact legislation which would aid the agriculturists of the country to get back to normal conditions. Loans were made through the War Finance Corporation, on more liberal terms, and a loan of $10,000,000 to banks in the Western States. The latter was obtained through private bankers at the suggestion of Administration officials, and did much toward checking the failure of State banks which were carrying the non-liquid paper of the impoverished farmers of that section.

Even against the vots of the farmers, and the recommendations of organizations representing them, the President refused to approve measures of a class nature, such as the Haughen-McNary bill, which would have placed the Government in the position of buying and selling wheat at a fixed price.

The disputes which existed between Mexico and the United States since the Taft Aministration, culminating in bitterness and hostilities in the Wilson Administration, were brought to a happy end. Commissioners Charles R. Warren and John Barton Payne, sent to Mexico by President Coolidge, succeeded in negotiating a series of treaties for the settlement of the damages caused during the decade of uprising and the long existing boundary disputes. The treaties have been ratified by both Governments. The United States recognized Mexico, and today friendly relations exist between the two Republics.

At the same time President Coolidge has succeeded in continuing friendly relations with other nations and has continued the policy of Harding of staying out of the League of Nations, but to join a court of international justice.

The President signed a bill last Spring which completely reorganized our foreign service and which is expected to do much toward improving that service and strengthening our position abroad.

During the last session of Congress the President was called on to oppose legislation that threatened to impair the railroads. However, he approved legislation permitting consolidations, explaining at the time that he considered consolidation the only feasible method for the maintenance of an adequate system of transportation, with an opportunity to adjust rates to meet such temporary conditions as now prevail in some agricultural sections.

The President succeeded in providing for a complete revision of the laws of the United States. He supported a bill providing for a complete reorganization of the executive branch of the Government, which was not acted upon at the last session, but which will be brought up again next Winter.

Japanese Exclusion.

A new policy regarding immigration was established by the Immigration law, signed by the President. While the President approved this legislation, he did not favor the language, fearing that it might cause some affront to Japan, whose citizens are excluded under the terms of the act.

The President urged a constructive policy regarding reforestation, and urged legislation providing for further development of reclamation projects, and later obtained legislation providing relief to many thousands of settlers. This permitted the Secretary of the Interior to suspend, or readjust charges against certain water users because of their inability to make their land profitable.

When the world was stunned by the news of the Japanese earthquake a year ago, the President issued a proclamation calling upon the American people to contribute to a relief fund, which was oversubscribed in less than two weeks and which was handled by the Red Cross.

Through the efforts of the President, the Emergency Fleet Corporation was separated from the Shipping Board, and Leigh Palmer, a former Admiral of the navy, placed at the head of the former.

The President sought legislation authorizing the construction of a number of new public buildings in the capital as a means of affording better and more adequate housing facilities for the Government departments, and to give the capital buildings that would compare in beauty and practicality with the finest structures of Europe. He asked for an annual appropriation of $5,000,000 for this purpose.

A stir was caused for a brief period when the President, by one stroke of his pen, liberated the so-called war prisoners, acting on the theory that their punishment had been sufficient.

Among the more important appointments made were Harlan F. Stone of New York, as Attorney General, and Curtis D. Wilbur of California, as Secretary of the Navy. Aside from these, and changes in the diplomatic service, the President did not disturb the Cabinet or any of the higher executives he had inherited from President Harding.

George Harvey resigned as Ambassador to Great Britain, to which place Frank Kellogg, who had just been defeated for re-election to the Senate from Minnesota, was appointed.

The resignation of Richard Washburn Child as Ambassador to Rome brought the appointment of Henry P. Fletcher.

William Phillips, who had been Under Secretary, was named to succeed Mr. Fletcher as Ambassador to Belgium, and Joseph C. Grew, who had been Minister to Switzerland, was appointed Under Secretary of State. Robert Woods Bliss, who had been one of the Assistant Secretaries of State, was appointed to succeed Mr. Grew in Switzerland.

E. A. Bancroft was appointed Ambassador to Japan to succeed Cyrus C. Wood, and George Sheffield was appointed Ambassador to Mexico to succeed Charles Warren.

President Coolidge has done little traveling since he assumed the Presidency. He was a member of the funeral party that accompanied the body of President Harding to Marion for burial, and went to Plymouth for the burial of his son in July, and returned to Plymouth two weeks later for a ten days' vacation. He made two trips to New York, one to Philadelphia, and one to Baltimore for the purpose of making speeches.

SMOOT SEES RADICALS IN CONTROL OF SENATE

He Believes It Will Be Impossible for the Republicans to Organize It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4. — Senator Smoot of Utah left the bedside of his seriously sick wife tonight to learn the news of the election. He dropped in at the Executive Office of the White House at 8:30 o'clock and remained long enough to learn that a Coolidge victory was indicated by the early returns.

"Despite the early returns, entirely favorable to the Republicans, I doubt whether the Republicans will be able to reorganize the next Senate unless we carry Tennessee and Kentucky," Senator Smoot said. "If we do not, it seems to me now impossible for the Republicans to control the Senate. It will be just as well to give to the radicals and Democrats, in combination, control of the Senate, as their control would be so disgusting to the people at large that they would elect sufficient Republican Senators in 1926 to insure a safe control of the Senate."

"The most outstanding thing in the election returns thus far is the poor showing made by Senator La Follette," added Senator Smoot. "He is a dead political leader, and in my opinion those who have been following him will seek to get back in the Republican Party. He cannot hope to have anything like the strength he had in the last Congress, and, in my opinion, will not succeed in his reported efforts to keep alive a third party and maintain a bloc in Congress."

C. Bascom Slemp, who arrived at the White House soon after 9 o'clock, was impressed by the small vote received by La Follette. He believes that even if the Republican Party does not command an actual majority in the Senate the sentiment of Republican States which elected members on the La Follette ticket will compel those members to support Republican principles for the most part.

SMITH AT WIGWAM AS RETURNS POUR IN

SPENT DAY WITH FAMILY

Began It With Memorial Services to His Mother in Brooklyn—Cheered on Street.

Before he voted or took any other part in the activities of election day, Governor Smith attended memorial services yesterday for his mother, who died after he had begun his second term in the Executive Mansion. The Governor and his wife and family went to Brooklyn at 10 o'clock yesterday morning to attend the services for his mother, which were held in the Church of the Assumption, on Cranberry Street, near Hicks Street.

From the church the Governor and his family went to the home of his brother-in-law, John J. Glynn, at 112 Willow Street, Brooklyn, where they remained for an hour. Then they motored back to Manhattan and voted and afterward returned to their temporary quarters at the Hotel Biltmore.

The Governor was accompanied everywhere he went during the day by his bodyguard, Detective Sergeant William H. Roy. At 3:30 o'clock Governor Smith left the Biltmore with Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, walking through Vanderbilt Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, and then to Third Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, where he visited the clubhouse of Marty McCue, the Democratic leader in that district.

After shaking hands all around and telling stories for the amusement of the Tammany workers the Governor and Justice Proskauer accompanied Mr. McCue to a polling place in a public school on Forty-sixth Street, between Second and Third Avenues.

5,000 Gather Around Governor.

The Governor was recognized immediately, and a crowd estimated at 5,000 persons gathered around him. He had intended to continue his walk uptown, but was delayed so long answering the salutations and good wishes of the throng that he had to return to the Biltmore.

The Governor joined his family in their suite on the seventh floor of the Biltmore at 6 o'clock and had dinner with them. At 8:10 'clock he left his rooms and was stopped by reporters anxious to know what he thought of the situation.

"I don't know a thing about it," he said. "I haven't received any returns at all."

Governor Smith then went to the headquarters of the Citizens' Committee for Governor Smith on the first floor of the Biltmore, where he conferred with Raymond V. Ingersoll, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee; George R. Van Namee, Public Service Commissioner; Frederick Stuart Greene, State Public Works Commissioner; and John Gilchrist, State Tax Commissioner.

At this time a ticker in a brokerage office on the same floor of the Biltmore was reeling off returns showing a lead for Colonel Roosevelt in Buffalo, Syracuse and Binghamton. The Governor also was receiving telephoned and telegraphed returns from Democratic leaders in Mr. Ingersoll's office. After ten minutes' conference, the Governor came out and said:

"I have just seen some of the returns and am satisfied with them. I am very hopeful."

At this time the Governor did not look or act any too happy, but he got into a taxicab at 8 o'clock with Justice Proskauer and Commissioner Van Namee and rode downtown to Tammany Hall to get the returns from New York City. This cheered him up and made him look his old self.

On his arrival at the historic old Wigwam, which had been jammed with Tammany braves and womenfolk since dinner time, the Governor went into the office at the east side of the doorway and was greeted by Tammany Leader George W. Olvany. They walked behind the screen near the Fourteenth Street window and stood talking beside the old desk of Charles F. Murphy, who died recently. The Governor puffed quietly at a big cigar, while telephone operators at the other end of the room rushed returns from city election districts, received from Tammany district leaders, over to Mr. Olvany, who read them to the Governor.

Judge Olvany then escorted the Governor across the hall into the Executive Committee rooms, where the Governor took a seat under the bronze memorial tablet to the late Thomas F. Smith, for years Secretary of Tammany Hall, with Judge Olvany at his right and former Congressman John J. Fitzgerald at his left. The small room was packed with the more important Tammany Hall politicians, as well as some independent Democrats of prominence. In front of the Governor was a group of tables, placed together, on which Tammany workers assembled returns sent in by district leaders throughout the city.

Soon after the Governor arrived, Assistant District Attorney Emory C. Weller, the official announcer of the evening, read returns from various election districts in four boroughs—Manhattan, Brooklyn, Bronx and Richmond—and on the strength of these returns estimated that Smith would get a majority of 161,000 in Manhattan, 150,000 in Kings, 103,000 in the Bronx and 8,000 in Brooklyn.

Governor Smith at this point revealed to most of his friends for the first time that he wore glasses. He took up gold-rimmed glasses to read some typewritten returns, and the glasses changed his appearance a great deal. This interlude caused some comment among the politicians until Mr. Weller began reading later returns, all of which showed such a big drift to Smith in New York City as to convince those present that the Governor would overcome Roosevelt's up-State lead.

Crowd's Enthusiasm Grows.

Mr. Weller announced that the Twenty-third Assembly District, a Republican stronghold, gave Smith 11,000 to Roosevelt's 5,000. This aroused the first real enthusiasm of the night, but it did not compare to the demonstration that followed when he announced that returns from 250 election districts in all five boroughs indicated that Smith would carry the city by 523,000.

There was another demonstration when it was announced that The Brooklyn Eagle estimated Roosevelt would come down to the Bronx with only 250,000 lead, and the roof was almost taken off the hall when THE NEW YORK TIMES estimate that Smith would carry the city by more than 500,000 was read.

The Governor now wore a broad smile and beamed jovially and happily upon the men and women in the room, who crushed forward to shake his hand and offer congratulations. They made so much noise cheering and applauding that the crowd outside the doors of the room sensed the good news without being told it and took up the joyous cries until the demonstration spread upstairs to the big assembly hall, where thousands of the rank and file were waiting. Never before in years of great celebrations has there been anything to exceed the joy that went through the old hall last night when the tide turned in their hero's favor. And it was not only a victory for the Governor to which they looked—it meant a victorious beginning of the regime of Judge Olvany, the new Tammany leader.

State Chairman Herbert C. Pell Jr. arrived during the tumult and congratulated the Governor and Judge Olvany, by whom he was in turn congratulated. Demonstrations followed in quick order as Mr. Weller read returns from Ulster, giving Smith 10,000 to Roosevelt's 3,000, from the Eleventh Assembly District of New York City (the gashouse district), Smith 4,000, Roosevelt 600; Tenth Assembly District, referred to by Mr. Weller as "a rock-ribbed Republican district," a 2,000 lead for Smith, with five election districts missing, and so on.

"Sidewalks of New York" Once More.

The rank and file of Tammany indulged in a wildly enthusiastic demonstration in the main hall of the Wigwam. They shouted and cheered and sang "Tammany" and "The Sidewalks of New York" repeatedly.

Among the Tammany leaders present were James Eagan, Secretary of Tammany Hall; former Sheriff David H. Knott, Borough President Julius Miller of Manhattan, Surrogate James P. Foley, Surrogate John P. O'Brien, Deputy Controller Frank Prial, Register Annie Mathews, and Elisabeth Marbury.

Governor Smith, confident of victory, left Tammany Hall about 10:30 o'clock and went to his headquarters at the Biltmore. He first had a conference with his campaign manager, Mr. Ingersoll, after which both issued statements, which are published elsewhere in THE TIMES. Then the Governor had a fifteen-minute talk with Mayor Hylan.

On leaving the Governor's room, Mayor Hylan, who had already issued a formal statement on Governor Smith's victory, said:

"I am pleased that the people of the city were alive to the issues and gave Governor Smith such a large plurality. I am glad to see that he was elected."

The Governor received a great demonstration when he left his headquarters a few minutes later to drop in at the reception and dance held in his honor in the grand ballroom of the Biltmore, on the same floor as his headquarters. As he reached the threshold of the ballroom he was greeted by Mrs. Smith, his daughter Emily and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alfred E. Smith Jr., all of whom celebrated his victory by kissing him warmly.

100 Women Put Him to Flight.

These family kisses were the signal for an onslaught on the Governor by fully 100 women who attempted to follow suit. Some of them succeeded and the Governor fled into the ballroom in an effort to escape. No sooner had he got inside, however, than word of the kissing bee followed him, and the women inside the ballroom rushed around him and began to kiss him. When the kissing was over the Governor's men friends surrounded him and almost shook his right arm off.

An unexpected diversion was created at this point by the arrival of the Police Band and Glee Club, led by Chief Inspector William J. Lahey and Inspector John D. Coughlin. The band paraded through Vanderbilt Avenue from Forty-second Street, marched through the lobby of the Biltmore, and up the stairs to the ballroom on the third floor. There is no need to ask what they played. It was "The Sidewalks of New York," of course, and they kept on playing it almost all the time they were in the hotel. This, also, was close to midnight, but it was a night of nights at the Biltmore.

Two flute players of the Police Band played "Tim Toolan," which was announced as the Governor's favorite song—a piece of news to those who had always thought that "The Sidewalks" was his favorite. The Glee Club sang Smith campaign songs that the policemen themselves had written—these were very good—and then they left the hotel, playing "The Sidewalks of New York."

Not satisfied with all the tributes that had been paid to the Governor up to this time, a pretty young woman rushed up to him and gave him a big pickaninny doll, which the Governor accepted with a grin. He seemed "tickled to death," as one of his admirers said. The Governor frankly enjoyed the ovation, there was no doubt about that.

He finally retreated from the ballroom to his headquarters, where for a long time after midnight he received admiring friends and supporters, who kept him shaking hands until early hours in the morning.

Sir Thomas Lipton, in a yachting cap and Irish ulster, was one of the Governor's visitors.

"You can say for me that I won't try to take the Governor's cup away," said the British sportsman.

Jubilation Over Victory.

At 2:45 o'clock the biggest demonstration of the night at Tammany Hall up to that time occurred when Mr. Weller read an announcement that THE NEW YORK TIMES declared that Governor Smith was re-elected. Governor Smith, who had been reading a document containing comparative statistics of the vote by districts in 1920 and 1922, whipped off his glasses and looked up with a broad smile on his face.

Supreme Court Justice Salvatore Cotillo and Jeremiah Mahoney came in and rushed up to congratulate him at this juncture. As Justice Cotillo seized his hands the Governor shouted in a resonant tone that carried all over the room:

"Hello, Judge!"

This sent the whole room a-laughing. The crowd was now in a jubilant mood and laughed loudly every time a new return showed Smith with a big lead over Roosevelt in a city district. Mr. Weller announced that the Eighteenth Election District of the Second Assembly District had given Smith 607 and Roosevelt 15. The Eighteenth is "Jimmy Kelly's district."

Citizens' Committee Holds Celebration at the Biltmore.

A reception and dance was held by the Citizens' Committee for Governor Smith last night at the Hotel Biltmore. The dancing was interrupted at frequent intervals for the reading of the returns by Dr. Henry Moscowitz, author of Governor Smith's biography. Among those at the dance were Colonel and Mrs. Frederick Stuart Greene, Gordon Auchincloss, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Mrs. Ida Blair.

GOV. SMITH FINDS 'JOY' IN RETURNS

"The returns at this hour indicate my election by a substantial plurality, which gives me great joy, happiness and satisfaction."

At 2:35 o'clock this morning, after he had been told that Colonel Roosevelt had admitted defeat, Governor Smith made the following statement at the Hotel Biltmore:

"I am grateful to the people for their expression of approval of my administration. I shall continue to give them the best that is in me!"

Governor Smith then ceased his vigil at the telephone, where he had been receiving late returns, and went to bed.

Raymond V. Ingersoll, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee for Governor Smith, said:

"With fairly definite returns indicating a substantial plurality for the Governor, his victory in the face of a Coolidge landslide in this State is a remarkable tribute to Governor Smith. It has also proved that a campaign conducted on serious issues can win the support of hundreds of thousands of intelligent and discriminating voters. His re-election is assurance that he will continue the work in the torch of progress in this State for two more years and that additional portions of his constructive program will be carried out."

These statements were given out at the Hotel Biltmore when the Governor returned to his headquarters there after receiving the returns at Tammany Hall. The Governor had a march of triumph through the grand ballroom of the Biltmore, where a reception and dance was being held in his honor, with the crowd cheering and the orchestra playing "The Sidewalks of New York."

Tammany Leader George W. Olvany, while expressing regret at the defeat of John W. Davis, declared that New York County had given a good account of itself.

"It is a source of keen disappointment and genuine regret to me personally that so splendid a candidate and brilliant a man as Mr. Davis should go down to defeat," he said. "The returns indicate the election of President Coolidge, and it is the duty of every loyal American to abide by the choice of the majority of our people.

"So far as the territory covered by the Democracy of New York County is concerned there is much satisfaction to be derived from the result of the election. The drive conducted in New York County by the leaders, speakers and the workers of Tammany Hall for John W. Davis is reflected in the election returns. In 1920 President Harding carried New York County by 140,000 plurality. The returns at this hour show that this large plurality has been wiped out and that Mr. Davis may carry the county.

"Governor Smith's overwhelming vote indicates that he is more popular than ever and even with the large increase in registration his plurality is much greater than we expected. The Governor's victory is not only a personal endorsement of him but also a triumph for Democratic principles and an approval of our fight for progressive policies and legislation in the city and State. It is likewise a recognition of the honesty and efficiency of Democratic officials in public office.

"Mr. Roosevelt's attempt to inject the shopworn issue of Tammany in the State campaign was properly rebuked by the people of the State and was particularly resented by the people of our city, who quickly recognized his purpose to divert attention from his own record. In Manhattan also the Democratic Party made gains in our Congressional representation. Again Tammany is upheld in the election of the highest type of men for judiciary and local offices by the election of three Supreme Court Judges, a City Court Judge, a General Sessions Judge and a Sheriff."

Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate for Governor, conceded Governor Smith's election and characterized the Democratic Gubernatorial candidate as "the better of two evils."

Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes expressed himself shortly after midnight as being well satisfied with the result.

"This time," he said, "the expected has happened. I am very well pleased."

The Secretary was the guest of honor at the Delta Upsilon Fraternity dinner at the Hotel Roosevelt.

Charles D. Hilles, a Republican National Committeeman, at the Republican National headquarters said the plurality of President Coolidge in the State would reach a million. He conceded Governor Smith election by 100,000.

SYSTEM SURPRISES LIPTON.

Sir Thomas Sees Returns Compiled at Police Headquarters.

Sir Thomas Lipton was the guest of Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright and Honorary Commissioner Walter Scott at Police Headquarters last night. He watched with interest the staff of clerks compiling the election returns and said:

"The most astonishing thing I ever saw. We have nothing like it in England. Presidents can be elected with ease."

Accompanying Sir Thomas were Chief of Police August Pedersen of Norway, Chief of Police M. C. Blanco of Peru, Brig. Gen. M. Clauquin of the police of Paris, France; former Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo, former Senator Martin Saxe, Dr. P. A. Reque of the Norwegian Club, Commissioner William H. Todd and former Controller Herman A. Metz. Chief Pedersen said:

"Your machinery for gathering election returns is the greatest organization of its kind in the world. I have never seen anything to compare with it. After it was explained to me, I think it 100 per cent. efficient."

12 TRAPPED IN FIRE CARRIED TO SAFETY

DOZEN HOMES IN PERIL.

Reserves Called Out at Blaze in New Brighton—One Hurt in 40-Foot Fall.

One woman was seriously injured, several persons had to be taken from their apartments by firemen on scaling ladders, and more than a dozen families in the immediate vicinity were driven from their homes by a fire in a five-story apartment house at 281 Jersey Street, New Brighton, Staten Island, last night.

The building, formerly the Maccabee Hall, is a concrete and wooden structure with stores on the ground floor. It is owned by A. N. Ginsberg, who conducts a clothing store on the ground floor and lives with his wife and family on the floor above.

The fire started in the rear of the first floor and spread so rapidly up the air shaft and through the wooden section of the building that when Deputy Fire Chief William Beggins arrived on the first alarm he sent in two additional alarms that brought out all the fire companies from the north shore of Staten Island and four companies from the south shore, as well as all the available police reserves under Deputy Chief Inspector Cornelius Cahalane.

Sparks from the burning building were carried over to houses on Fourth and Fifth Streets and the firemen ordered out the occupants of these places.

Most of the occupants of the burning building were able to escape down the rear fire escape, but twelve persons, among them five women and four children, were trapped in the front section of the house with a blazing wall of fire cutting off their exit to the fire escapes in the rear. Firemen carried all of them down their ladders, while other firemen searched the rear part of the house to see that all had left.

Mrs. Mamie Tromboni, 28 years old, who lives in the rear of the second floor, made her way to the fire escape but became excited and jumped to the courtyard, forty feet below. She suffered a fractured right arm and right leg and was taken to the Staten Island Hospital. Doctors and ambulances from the Staten Island and St. Vincent's hospitals went to the scene, and the physicians treated some of the firemen who were overcome with smoke.

When the fire was at its height it was feared that the flames might spread to the business section on one side and the residential district on the other, but the firemen kept a sharp watch on adjoining houses and stores and as fast as they caught fire streams of water prevented the blaze spreading. The whole of the wooden section of the building was destroyed.

TRAFFIC MANAGER, SUICIDE.

Harry R. Rogers of Cleveland Found Dead in a Baltimore Hotel.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4.—With the arteries of both wrists severed, as well as the artery in his left leg, a man, believed to be Harry R. Rogers, traffic manager of the Cleveland and Buffalo Transit Company of Cleveland, Ohio, was found dead tonight in the bath tub of his suite at the Hotel Rennert.

The man registered at the hotel between 5 and 6 o'clock last evening. Tonight hotel employes having been unable to get any response from repeated knockings on the door, one of them climbed over the transom. The body was then discovered.

Dr. Harry K. Gorsuch was unable to locate the blade with which the cuts on the wrists and leg had been inflicted.

The man had registered as Harry R. Rogers of Cleveland, and in his pockets were business cards bearing that name and indicating that he was traffic manager of the transportation company. In his pocket were $24 in cash and about fifty railroad passes.

There also was a letter on stationery embossed with the name "Mrs. Harry R. Rogers, 2,064 East Eighty-eighth Street, Cleveland, Ohio. One of the paragraphs in this letter addressed to Mr. Rogers read: "Your letters all sound so good. They leave me pleased and contented to be alone."

On the dresser was an unsigned note written on a telegraph blank. It read: "Wire Mr. Newman of the Cleveland and Buffalo Transit Company of Cleveland, Ohio."

A copy of Mary Baker Eddy's "Science and Health," which Mr. Rogers apparently had been reading, also was found on the dresser. Examination showed that these words had been underscored in the text: "To hold yourself superior to sin."

AMERICANS DINE SHEFFIELD.

Merchants in Mexico City Are Told This Country Is for Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 4.—The American Chamber of Commerce here gave a luncheon today to the newly elected Honorary President, the American Ambassador and to the Vice Presidents, Consul General Waddell and the Commercial Attaché, Alex Dye. It was attended by 250 members. The chamber is the largest American body of the kind in foreign countries.

Ambassador Sheffield spoke, in part, as follows:

"The ideals of business, whether in New York or in Mexico City, are not necessarily unattainable. Today millions of men and women are engaged in a mighty struggle north of the Rio Grande. No matter who is chosen at the election, we know that American rights throughout the world will be respected and maintained.

"We cherish peace and good-will toward other nations and desire only their friendship and prosperity. We believe that differences among nations should be settled, not by force, but by mutual understanding in accord with justice and honor. That is my conception of American diplomacy.

"You represent more than business. You are the far-flung battle line of honest dealing and fair play in honorable efforts. You may rely upon the earnest support of your Ambassador. I am here to like Mexico, and her people, and also my countrymen within her borders."

RESTAURANT HOLD-UP FAILS

Five Men Fleeing With Cash Register Caught in Election Throng.

Ignoring the election crowds surging through the street, five men entered the restaurant of Michael Pappas at 80 East 125th Street last night and after punching the proprietor on the nose took the cash register, containing $250, to a waiting taxicab. The men had proceeded not more than two blocks, however, when they were halted by Patrolman William Pannelis of the East 126th Street station, whose attention had been called to the cab by the blowing of a police whistle by an election celebrant.

Taken to the East 126th Street Police Station, where they were locked up on charges of robbery, felonious assault and grand larceny, the five men described themselves as Gottfried Jackson of 404 East 121st Street, Matthew Muilhearn of 2,374 Second Avenue, Joseph Amarolo of 303 East 117th Street, William Walsh of 247 East 119th Street and Thomas Boylan of 238 East Eighty-ninth Street.

It's the Little Subtleties That Make the Feminine Wardrobe Appealing

Not the fact that she's wearing a rose color ensemble of British tweed, but the fact that it has the new flaring short length coat trimmed with deep bands of raccoon—that's what makes a man say, "I don't know what it is, but there's something about the way she dresses—" (He doesn't realize that she's wearing Drecoll's new skirt, nor that its suspenders make it something decidedly new, but "There's something about the way she dresses." 150.00

FEAR 3 MET DEATH IN BIG FOREST FIRE

Rangers Seek Hunters Believed to Have Been Trapped by Flames in Woods.

NEW BLAZES REPORTED

FARM HOUSES DESTROYED

Three men are believed to have been marooned by the forest fires in the Fulton chain of mountains near Albany, it was learned yesterday. They have been missing since Oct. 25, and it is feared that they have been burned to death in one of the worst series of forest and brush fires ever known in New York.

The men are DeWitt G. Goewey, Robert Paul and Gilbert Green, all of Albany. They entered the woods outside of Albany on Oct. 23 and were to have returned home last Friday. Their relatives appealed yesterday to the State Conservation Commission to order the State patrols at work extinguishing the forest fires to search for the three hunters. State rangers said that the section of the woods the three men intended to visit had been almost completely cut off by a ring of burning woodland.

In New Jersey the forest fires had spread over such a vast extent of territory and had become such a menace yesterday that Governor George Silzer issued the following proclamation:

Whereas New Jersey has 2,000,000 acres of forest which are commercially of vast potential value and are necessary for the well-being, recreation and enjoyment of all citizens, and

Whereas due to a long period of unusually dry weather the forest floor is covered with highly inflammable material and the danger of forest fires is imminent, and

Whereas at this time of the year many campers, motorists and others seeking recreation are in the forests, and

Whereas on Nov. 10 the gunning season will open, bringing some seventy-five thousand gunners into the forests, and

Whereas the resources and energies of the Forest Fire Service will be taxed to the utmost to prevent fires from becoming serious;

Now, therefore, I, George S. Silzer, Governor of the State of New Jersey, do urge and request all citizens of the State to cooperate with Wardens of the Forest Fire Service by reporting all fires discovered and by rendering every possible aid in extinguishing them.

I further request that motorists, campers, hunters and others who use for pleasure or profit the forests of our State, carefully refrain from making fires where underbrush, dry grass, leaves and decayed vegetation abound and from throwing away lighted cigars, cigarettes and matches in such places.

In view of this weather condition all persons are enjoined from the use of State forests for recreational purposes until the emergency is passed.

Forest rangers patrolled the fire areas in both New York and New Jersey all day yesterday and announced that they hoped the fires would not spread any further. The New York State Conservation Commission announced that all forest fires in this State except two are under control. One of these was a blaze at Robb Creek, Fulton County, which was brought under control on Sunday night, but burst out again. Another was raging five miles north of Bloomingburgh, Sullivan County.

District rangers reported four new fires which they have succeeded in getting under control. The ranger in charge at Cold Springs reported that the fire on Mount Beacon, which burned more than 1,000 acres, had been brought under control after a thirty-six-hour fight. This fire burned for five miles along the top of the mountain, but was confined to brush areas.

The more serious of the conflagrations, especially the great fire in the Ramapo Mountains, near Suffern, which threatened the big country estates in that vicinity, were said to be under complete control. The fire in the Ramapos burned over an area nine miles long and several miles wide and destroyed valuable marketable oak, pine and cedar. Only a few small blazes remained in that section yesterday.

Despite the favorable reports from patrols, the headquarters of the Conservation Commission at Albany warned the residents of rural districts that the danger was not over. It was pointed out that weather conditions were still unfavorable. No rain has fallen for five weeks, it was said, and the dangerous fire hazards existing in many parts of the State will not be relieved until there is plenty of rain. The reason for the failure of the fires in the Adirondack region to make much progress, it was noted, was the snow on the tops of the mountains.

The forest fires which destroyed 250 acres of New Jersey timberland along the Raritan River at High Bridge and Washington on Sunday and Monday, are almost out or under control. A great loss is believed to have occurred in the death of small game trapped by the flames. The territory is the free haunt of thousands of rabbits. It had recently been stocked with large numbers of English pheasants. The game keepers say the pheasants may have taken flight. The district is still being patrolled by rangers, putting out small fires which spring up.

More than 10,000 acres of forest and Woodland in Atlantic, Cumberland and Cape May counties were swept by one of the worst fires that part of New Jersey had experienced in years. It destroyed two houses and an automobile near Risley, and threatened the towns of Risley and Dorothy for forty-eight hours, while firemen, State rangers and citizens fought off the flames. The fire was finally brought under control last night and the two towns were said to be safe unless the blaze started up again.

Game wardens in the territory near Atlantic City said that thousands of rabbits, many deer and other game had been destroyed by the flames. The fire is believed to have been caused by camp fires started by hunters. The Henry T. Moore game preserve of 4,000 acres near Estelville was swept by flames and all its game driven off or burned to death.

HUGHES SPEAKS AT DINNER.

Is Guest of Honor at Delta Upsilon Fraternity Here.

Eight hundred members and friends of the Delta Upsilon fraternity gathered in the Hotel Roosevelt last evening to celebrate the ninetieth anniversary of the founding of that organization. The dinner was under the auspices of the New York Delta Upsilon Club. Dr. William H. P. Faunce, President of Brown University, presided and presented as the guest of honor Secretary of State Hughes, Brown '81.

Secretary Hughes praised the spirit of brotherhood inculcated by the college fraternity and said that if this spirit could be introduced in international affairs it would solve most of our difficulties. The election returns were read during the dinner and when it was announced that West Virginia had gone Republican a large spread eagle fabricated by the chef was placed in front of the Secretary of State, while the banquet hall rang with cheers.

Other speakers, all members of Delta Upsilon, were Dr. Jeremiah W. Jenks, Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Redfield Proctor, Governor of Vermont, and the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton.

SEARCH FOR MISSING BOY.

Father in Party of Fifteen Going Over Queens Marshes.

Fifteen men continued yesterday to search the marshes in the vicinity of Queens Boulevard, Kew Gardens, for the body of Ernest Schwer Jr., 13 years old, missing from his home at 8,929 129th Street, Richmond Hill, since last Tuesday, and believed to have sunk in the quagmire while hunting muskrats with boy companions.

Among the searchers were the boy's father, a fireman attached to Truck Company 101, and three detectives from the Richmond Hill Police Station, as well as a number of the missing lad's neighbors and friends.

The mother thought that her son might have been run over by an automobile while on his way home and taken to a hospital by a passing motorist. Acting on this theory, the police sent out a general alarm to all hospitals. The father announced that he had applied to the United States Army authorities at Mitchel Field for an airplane to fly low over the marshes in the hope of finding the body from the air and that a machine might be available for this purpose in a few days.

MISSING GIRL IS FOUND.

Located in Greensboro, N. C., With Young Man—On Her Way Home.

Police of West New York received a telegram yesterday from Captain J. C. Currant of the Greensboro, N. C., police to the effect that Emily Van Leuven, 19 years old, who disappeared Oct. 23 from her home at 412 Eighteenth Street, West New York, had been found in Greensboro in company with a young man who was reported as missing from West New York at the same time, and that the girl was now on her way home.

Captain Currant's message stated that the young man, William Meuse of 411 Eighteenth Street, West New York, had been arrested in Greensboro and held there in $10,000 bail on a charge of stealing an automobile in which he and the girl were found. Captain Currant had released Miss Van Leuven, he said, and had advanced her train fare to her home. She had started as soon as released, according to the telegram.

SWEDES RADIO TO AMERICA.

First Tests of Direct Communication Are Successful.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4.—The Swedish Government's Telegraph Department has announced that the first tests of direct radio communication with the United States have just been carried out between Sweden's new high-power radio station at Varberg, on the west coast, and wireless commercial stations in America.

The tests have been entirely successful, and it is expected that regular direct traffic will begin soon, as the Swedish station, one of the biggest and most up-to-date of its kind in Northern Europe, is virtually completed.

It is believed here that this direct wireless connection will prove of the greatest importance in stimulating cooperation along all lines between the two countries.

CALLES IN NEW ORLEANS.

Gives Up Trip to Cuba and Leaves Tomorrow for Mexico City.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4.—General Plutarco Elias Calles, President-elect of Mexico, arrived today from Washington on the last lap of a three months' tour that took him to Europe. He will remain here until Thursday night, going directly to Mexico City to prepare for his inauguration on Nov. 30. He will not visit Cuba, as contemplated some time ago.

General Calles will be the guest of honor at numerous functions while in New Orleans, but the program for his entertainment has not yet been completed, except for a public reception tomorrow night. Upon his arrival this forenoon he pleaded fatigue and immediately retired to the home of Arturo M. Elias, the Mexican Consul General here and his half brother.

DOUBT CAST ON INSULIN.

Doctors Told Real Effect on Diabetic Patient Is Not Known.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 4.—That the medical world does not know the exact effect of insulin in the far-reaching treatment of diabetes was the assertion made to members of the Academy of Medicine today by Dr. Frederick Allen of Morristown, N. J., at the College of Medicine.

Insulin, Dr. Allen said, was not necessary in a majority of diabetes cases. Moreover, the serum was known not to be pure and care must be exercised in its use.

"We do not know the real effect of insulin on the diabetic patient and have thus far been unable to tell whether it will do real good," he said.

CLOTHING BUYER A SUICIDE.

Former Chorus Man Found by a Friend Dead From Gas.

Clad in a bathrobe and with a tube from a gas jet in his mouth, George A. Mays, 35 years old, a clothing buyer of 65 East Thirty-eighth Street was found dead yesterday morning by his friend, Maitland Smith of 65 Park Avenue, who called for the former to go to breakfast.

Mays was employed in the John Wanamaker store. Formerly he was a chorus man in the Music Box Revue. No reason for May's suicide could be found.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Foreign Policy Association will give a luncheon at the Hotel Astor Nov. 15, at which James G. McDonald will preside. The subject under discussion will be "The Geneva Protocol." The speakers will be Dr. James T. Shotwell and Norman Angell.

The New York City branch of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild appealed yesterday for support of the children's gardens on Avenue A, which it maintains for the benefit of 600 underprivileged children. Associate membership costs $1.00, a garden plot $10, and to become a patroness $5. Mrs. James Roosevelt is Honorary President and Robert S. Kilbourne, 70 Fifth Avenue, is Treasurer.

Governor Silzer yesterday called attention to national Forget-Me-Not Day, which will be observed next Saturday, and asked the people of New Jersey to observe the day with appropriate services and the wearing of flags. Wounded veterans at the hospitals will sell flowers, and the proceeds will be used for rehabilitation of wounded men.

EDUCATION PLANS OF LEGION ASSAILED

Mass Meeting Called for Friday Night by Head of Civil Liberties Union.

AT THE COMMUNITY CHURCH

Dr. Holmes, Professor Lovett and Others Will Denounce Veterans' Program for School Celebrations.

A mass meeting to protest against "interference with education by the American Legion" is to be held at the Community Church, 61 East Thirty-fourth Street, on Friday evening, it was announced yesterday by Roger N. Baldwin, Director of the Civil Liberties Union, at 100 Fifth Avenue. The Teachers' Union, he said, will join with his organization in sponsoring the gathering.

The protest, according to Mr. Baldwin, is based on certain features of the program for American Education Week, from Nov. 17 to 23, during which meetings are to be held throughout the country to advance the cause of education. The Federal Bureau of Education is directing the program for the week, but the American Legion, Mr. Baldwin says, has suggested objectionable features which have caused the Civil Liberties Union to accuse John J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, with "unwarranted violation of trust in the conduct of a public office and its prostitution to the private interests of a military organization."

The features on the program to which the union objects are set for Constitution Day, Monday, Nov. 17, and Patriotism Day, on Tuesday, when the following suggestions are made to guide speakers in preparing their addresses:

"Constitution Day: Life, liberty, justice, security and opportunity; "how our Constitution guarantees these rights; revolutions, Communists and extreme pacifists are a menace to these guarantees; one Constitution, one Union, one flag, one history. Slogans: Ballots, not bullets; Master the English language; Visit the schools today.

"Patriotism Day: The red flag means death, destruction, poverty, starvation, disease, anarchy and dictatorship; help the immigrants and aliens to become American citizens; take an active interest in governmental affairs; stamp out revolutionary radicalism; to vote is the primary duty of the patriot. Slogans: America first; The red flag—danger; Visit the schools today."

"Requests for speakers for meetings during the week should be made to American Legion posts throughout the country," the program says.

Cites Refusal of Y. W. C. A.

Mr. Baldwin gave out a copy of a letter recalled by the union from Mabel Cratty, General Secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, which said that the National Board "has felt it necessary to decline the invitation to participate this year, because of certain elements in the announced program which seemed to be inconsistent with the position of the board in relation to world peace and international cooperation." The Y. W. C. A. has taken part in the education campaigns of the last two years and has 600,000 members.

The speakers at Friday night's mass meeting will include the Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, Professor Robert Morss Lovett of the University of Chicago; Gilbert E. Roe, Eastern campaign manager for Senator La Follette, and Dr. Edward T. Devine, a former member of the Federal Trade Commission.

The meeting also will discuss the failure of the Board of Education to reinstate Benjamin Glassberg, former history teacher in the Commercial High School, who was dismissed in 1918 on charges of having advocated Bolshevism to his pupils.

In protesting that the program "is marked by intolerant propaganda against progressive political thought under the guise of radicalism," the Rev. Dr. Holmes, acting Chairman of the union, gave out a letter he wrote to Commissioner Tigert.

"We note," said Dr. Holmes," that the school authorities are requested specifically to go to the local American Legion headquarters to secure speakers for this week. Not even the National Education Association or any other educational agency is requested for like service. This connection seems to us most unfortunate in its effect not only upon school children, who will be led to believe that the American Legion stands for the one and only concept of patriotism, but also on large sections of public opinion where resentment will run strong against turning over any educational process to a military organization.

"We see no more justification for soliciting or accepting cooperation of the American Legion than the Knights of Columbus, the Anti-Saloon League, the American Federation of Labor, or any one of a dozen organizations whose conceptions of patriotism would differ greatly."

In answer to Dr. Holmes's letter, Commissioner Tigert said that "there is no intention on the part of the Bureau of Education to impose propaganda; on the other hand, we think that promotion of this week is highly helpful to progress."

Mr. Baldwin also gave out comments on the Education Week program by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard; Dr. W. H. P. Faunce, President of Brown University; H. W. Tyler, Secretary of the American Association of University Professors, and James H. Maurer, President of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor.

Criticises Red Flag Preference.

"The red flag," Dr. Eliot wrote, "is a symbol in some nations, and perhaps in some communities, of all the woes described in the program, but denunciation of it does not seem to me appropriate in the Government's program for American Education Week. Indeed, it ought not be mentioned in the same section with the flag of the United States.

"There is an objectionable inference under the heading of 'Illiteracy Day.' Is it only illiterates who become a tool of the radical? It seems to me that the educated are quite as apt as the uneducated to depend on second hand, and therefore inaccurate, information."

Dr. Faunce said: "The things that are good in the American Legion should be encouraged by everything in our power. Surely no effort at Americanization from the men who enlisted in the war can entirely be denounced."

According to Mr. Maurer, "the Legion propaganda program will not only tend to stultify the brain but act as a smoke screen to becloud just grievances and the shortcomings of unfit public officials."

Plans for Week Unchanged.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The National Education Association, cooperating in the promotion of National Education Week, announced today through its President, J. W. Crabtree, that the program would be carried out despite the protests and the propaganda which he said was being directed against it.

Commissioner of Education John J. Tigert is in the West and no one at his office would comment on the protests.

Union Labor Daily Fails.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Nov. 4.—The Walla Walla Times, a daily newspaper published by union printers and supported financially by the International Typographical Union and by union printers of the Northwest, discontinued publication yesterday. U.S. ENGINEERS HAVE LITTLE SHOW THERE

BRITISH ACT TOO QUICKLY

Oriental nations are not an attractive field for United States engineers, declares John Wellington Finch, mining geologist and engineer, of Denver, in a summary of the results of an exhaustive inquiry for the official journal of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. Mr. Finch says:

"The Far East does not offer to the American engineer great opportunities unless American capital is willing to enter into new fields, wait for a time for foreign investment and much more patient at delay, will become established in some fields before Americans decide to act.

"Although theoretically it should be possible in mandated countries, practically there is little chance for American competition in Syria or Iraq. I believe British capital, which is accustomed to returns, and submit to risks to which it is generally opposed. I suspect that there would be so much diplomatic and local opposition that we could not establish successful enterprises.

"The outstanding mineral in Turkey and the two latter countries is petroleum. The oil fields are probably of the first magnitude. There is also the Adana copper mine, rumored to be a very important deposit, but exact information is difficult to obtain. There are other copper mines, as well as lead and silver deposits, which have among the Turks considerable reputation. Just now very little mining is being done."

Production is really increasing in China, imports and exports being greater than ever before, according to Mr. Finch, who thinks that the Chinese people are merely waiting for the war lords to wear themselves out.

"There is a surprising amount of wealth among Chinese capitalists seeking to join American money in the construction of railways, repair of canals, building of docks, and river and harbor improvements, he finds.

"Siberia," continues Mr. Finch, "is perhaps the principal Oriental country which is known to have undeveloped mineral resources of great interest. Undoubtedly there are vast mineralized areas which could be developed profitably if capital were assured of reasonably safe titles and protection. It seems inevitable that before many years Siberia must be the scene of great mining activity.

"The burning question is, When will conditions in Russia be sufficiently stabilized to invite the investment of capital? There are many people familiar with conditions who believe that time is at hand.

"The territory of greatest mineral wealth, aside from the Ural region, is in the Far Eastern Republic, which has lately been merged with Soviet Russia, and this territory has been open for foreign concessions for several years. There is little doubt that the Far Eastern Republic was set up as an independent State with the full approval and cooperation of Soviet Russia.

"It came into being at a time when Lenin realized that he must have a link with the capitalistic nations. There were, of course, other reasons. Japan was definitely hostile and had warned Moscow that she would not tolerate the extension of Soviet authority to the shores of the Pacific. The Far Eastern Republic made a convenient buffer State and gave Moscow a breathing space in which to consolidate her European position.

"Besides, the area of pre-war Russia was too great for the administration of the new democracy in all its parts. It seemed better to set up an allied State which could settle its own problems and proceed toward the stabilization of its own affairs.

"The Far Eastern Republic was established as an absolutely distinct State from Soviet Russia. It strove from the first to interest concessionaires and adopted a constitution modeled somewhat after the Constitution of the United States. A few American interests attempted to deal with the Far Eastern Republic.

"For a long time it was even impossible to secure an American passport which would permit its holder to enter the territory, but those few who finally did venture in and negotiated concessions are reported to have received excellent treatment and advantageous terms.

"As Mosco gradually came to terms with the capitalistic nations and retreated to the position which is now held—analogous to that held by the Far Eastern Republic at its inception—and as the Japanese menace became less formidable, due to the withdrawing of Japanese troops following the Washington conference, the need to perpetuate two different States largely disappeared, and with due ceremonies the Far Eastern Republic gave up its individuality and returned to the fold.

"So far as I know, those interests which received concessions from the Far Eastern Republic when it was an independent State have been recognized and protected by Soviet Russia. In one case, an old Klondike miner, named Vint, received a gold-dredging concession nearly three years ago. He began operations at once and found the Government to be always ready to assist him and cooperate with him. Only recently it was announced in the papers that his concession had been formally approved by the Moscow Government.

"Siam is an independent Oriental country with considerable mineral resources, especially tin dredging areas. I have spent some time there but ultimately withdrew, convinced that the country is pretty well under the dominance of European powers and will not make concessions to Americans for fear of consequences apparently real to the Siamese but obscure to me.

"Japan is not to be looked upon as a field for American engineers except occasionally with established European companies. All important known ore deposits are already occupied. In other industrial things the Japanese consider themselves independent of outside aid.

"In Turkey and the Near East unrestricted immigration and an original diversity of races have left the country we once knew as Turkey with a most heterogeneous population. The Turks remain in political control, but the business of the country has been largely taken over by other peoples.

"The Turk himself impresses us most agreeably. He is naturally a fine gentleman but not usually a man of commerce. The business of the country has fallen into the hands of the Armenians, Greeks and Jews. The Armenians and Greeks are generally small merchants and traders and the Jews are in larger affairs, particularly banking and law, and are great property owners, and of the three alien races they are the superior people.

"Under the theories of the 'New Nationalism,' the present Government aims to recover into Turkish hands business controlled by Greeks and Armenians, and much injustice and confusion may result.

"There are many reasons why Turkey is not a country favorable to American capital and engineering. Americans were used to play against other nationals in the Lausanne peace negotiations but all Occidental powers came away with little of present and substantial value. The Government is professedly friendly to Americans, but the real political compatibility is with England and has been for many years, notwithstanding Turkey's temporary alliance in the war and England's temporary backing of Greece. They look upon England as capable of doing things.

"Under the treaties which have been entered into the United States has been left without resort to extra-territorial courts and lacks the vigorous diplomatic policy which may serve as a substitute for this with some of the other western nations.

"In short, British capital has become well and profitably established and is in a dominating position for the future."

Constipation dulls the youthful mind—makes children backward in their studies—makes them listless—and can lead to serious diseases. Constipation is a dangerous disease.

You cannot afford to take chances in getting relief. You cannot afford to experiment or put off. Kellogg's Bran brings relief—permanent relief if eaten regularly. Even in the most chronic cases of constipation it is guaranteed to bring results. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, has brought relief to thousands because it is ALL bran. Remember, only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. That is why Kellogg's Bran is recommended by doctors. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It causes regular, healthy, normal action. For it works as nature works. It is ALL bran.

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the wonderful recipes on every package.

The flavor is delicious—a crisp, nut-like flavor that delights the taste. Different by far from ordinary brans, which are unpalatable.

Begin serving Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, to your children to-day. Eat it yourself. The leading hotels and clubs serve it. Made in Battle Creek. It is sold by all grocers.

GIVES ARTISTS HINTS ON HOW TO OBSERVE

FINDS ROMANCE IN CLOTHES

The World Over They Are Fundamentally the Same, Declares Expert on Ethnology.

Stewart Culin, curator of the Department of Ethnology of the Brooklyn Museum, has traveled far and wide in search of the quaint and the beautiful. Many of the costumes of Old World people which enrich the museum were collected by him on his art prospecting tours. He recently addressed art students of Brooklyn on creation in art. He advised them to enrich their consciousness by observation; to cultivate the habit of abstraction, and practice without ceasing the power of expression. The traditions of craftsmanship, he advised, are not to be learned from books. They are not to be taught orally either in the class room or lecture hall. They are to be acquired in a workshop, and then best if not alone from a master.

"Ability to see," he says in the last quarterly of the museum, "can be acquired by practice and can be augmented greatly by knowledge. It was my desire to visit the Chinatown of San Francisco, but my way was barred because of the plague and I contented myself by hiring a professional guide and having him tell me what I might have seen. 'Sit down,' I told him, as we entered a tavern on the edge of the forbidden quarters; 'sit down and repeat just what you say when you take tourists about.' His somewhat dreary talk rambled along for about an hour, when, growing impatient, I paid him his fee and was about to go. Then, unsatisfied, I called him back. 'Sit down again,' I said, 'and I will tell you what you really see.' When I had finished he rose excitedly and exclaimed, 'Say, when you come again to San Francisco I will guide you through Chinatown and it will not cost you a cent.'"

It happened that in his early youth Mr. Culin, desiring to learn the Chinese language, went to live in a Chinese settlement, where he not only learned the language but saturated himself with the spirit of the people, and his impressions of the Chinese and their customs was still fresh.

Man Is One Family.

"And now," he continues, "I should like you all to come with me and visit a museum together. I say a museum and do not fix upon any museum in particular, only I suggest our museum shall, let us say, be devoted to the work of man rather than of nature, a museum where we may study the objects of man's craftsmanship and artistry. There is no legend visible over the door, but I would have you see one there. Observe that it reads, 'Man is one family.' It looks better written in Chinese rather than in Roman letters, and thus you must see it while I translate it to you. One object of our visit, I should explain to you, is for you to take a first lesson with me in the language of things. Some of you run ahead, trying to spy out familiar objects. Do not hurry. I would have you learn the etiquette of this place. Let me tell you at once you are not seeing masterpieces or even first or original statements from a master's hand. The treasures we see are for the most part far removed copies of copies. So it is things come down through the ages. Fortunate is he who can read in them the message of their far-away creator.

"It is now time for us to find the particular objects that led to our visit, for I have not forgotten that we came primarily to see clothes. Straightaway we discover that the world over they are fundamentally the same, differing chiefly in material and superficial ornament. 'We are the clothes of the people of the tropic South' cry all the long veils and shawls, the turbans and cummerbands, the sarongs and saris, that numerous company of strips of beaten bark and filmy cotton from all the continents and islands of the tropic seas. And we, shout another large and even more vigorous assembly, 'we came from the frozen North. In us behold the children, the descendants of the cut fur garments the Arctic man wore. With us belong gloves and tall boots, defensive armor, the panoply and pomp of war.'

"Listen attentively and you will hear all the particular and individual parts of every garment, the cuffs and the collars, the ruffles and the flounces, tell their story. 'We,' say the sleeves, 'were not always sewn fast to jackets and blouses. Once indeed we were free, only tied with strings; once we were more independent like our children the gloves.' 'Listen to us,' plead the boots and shoes, 'we too have a family tree.' 'And we,' cry the buttons, 'even we are not without ancestors. We come from a long line of knots.' On all sides the clothes proclaim their willingness to help us continue their families on to future time.

Need of Originality.

"Just here, while we realize we could take some of the things out of the museum showcases and wear them as they are—that little Persian jacket is a case in point—practically everything you see would have to be modified and adapted to the fashion of our time. Experience teaches us that our artistic creations must not be reminiscent of museums. Here, I may tell you, there are two results that may accrue to you from looking at things, whether in museums or elsewhere. First your creative faculties may be stirred—stirred in a general way, as they may be by music. Or you may take over to yourself fragments which you may use and incorporate anew, as some of the old builders used again the stones from earlier structures.

"What we call fashion is a necessary concomitant of life. It is an expression of the motion, the change, that is everywhere taking place in living things. In clothes, the object of our present concern, fashion exists even where we would least imagine it, among, for example, the slow-changing adornments of savage peoples, in the sad-colored bonnets and shawls of the Quakers, in the native coats worn by the Chinese laborers here in New York, in the costumes of the European peasants. Its extremes appear in general to coincide with periods of the world's greatest activities. For ourselves it is stimulated by certain economic conditions, among which should be mentioned our lack of adequate laws by which the creator of applied art is protected from piracy. Our creators and their copyists, the intelligent manufacturers and their imitators are now running a perpetual race. From time to time you will hear discussions of the ethics of fashion, a favorite subject with moralists, and again you will hear others harking back to the golden age of the Greeks, where they assume that man, in some way they do not attempt to explain, reached the ultimate in art and became exempt from fashion, as are the disembodied spirits

Imperial Mandarin Coat

GORGEOUS beyond description is this Imperial Chinese Mandarin Coat. It reflects the Oriental splendor of the Ch'-Ien Lung period, during which time the garment was in the possession of the royal family and worn, on special occasions, by an august member.

The entire coat is embroidered with gold thread upon an Imperial golden background. Over this are embroidered, in gold thread and silken colors of Rose and Blue, the five claw Imperial dragons. Smaller dragons are embroidered on the cuffs. Although a price of $300 has been placed on this beautiful Imperial Mandarin Coat, it is in reality one of Vantine's show garments.

MAJESTIC ARRIVES AFTER STORMY TRIP

JAMES A. BURDEN BACK

Returns With Wife and Daughter From Visit in Scotland—Count Szechenyi Here.

The White Star liner Majestic arrived yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg six hours late because of bad weather, which began on last Thursday morning and continued until Saturday night. Head seas reduced the Majestic's speed but did not cause the passengers to miss their meals in the dining saloon.

Among those on board were Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burden, who placed their country home at Syosset at the disposal of the Prince of Wales on his visit to New York last September. They received a message by radio from the Prince when the Majestic passed the Olympic on Thursday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Burden, with their daughter, Miss F. I. Burden, were stricken with ptomaine poisoning shortly after boarding the liner at Southampton on Oct. 28 and were confined to their suite the greater part of the voyage across. Mr. Burden said that he had gone over for the grouse shooting in Scotland, which was very poor this season.

Another passenger on the liner was Count Szechényi, the Hungarian Minister to Washington, who returned from a two months' vacation, accompanied by the Countess, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, and their five daughters.

The Minister, who looked much stouter than when he paid his first visit to this country after the war, said that conditions in Hungary had improved. When asked about the attitude of the Hungarian Government on Countess Karolyi's visit to the United States he replied:

"That is unimportant and not worth talking about. The woman's husband is reputed a radical, and should he return to Hungary would have to undergo trial."

With regard to his refusal to pay the taxes on his estates in Czechoslovakia, the Count said that the amount charged to him had been excessive and the officials of the Czechoslovakian Government had seized some of his live stock. Since then the matter had been adjusted. He laughed when informed of the rumor that he was likely to have the crown of Hungary offered to him, and said that the idea was too absurd for discussion.

Mrs. George F. Baker Jr. also was a passenger with her two daughters, Miss Florence and Miss Edith Baker.

Dr. Emanuel de Mornay Baruch, Professor of Bacteriology at the Post Graduate Hospital, returned on the Majestic from Austria and Germany, where he had been lecturing and studying at the clinics for the treatment of cancer and tuberculosis.

Professor Baruch said that progress had been made in Berlin in the cure of tuberculosis, especially in the checking of the disease among young persons, before it had gone too far. The patients were innoculated with a vaccine in the same manner as it is done for typhoid and smallpox.

Otto Kahn, the banker, was at the pier to greet his daughter, Miss Margaret Kahn, who had been abroad for the Summer.

Mme. Helena Rubenstein also returned on the liner from a business trip to Paris. Others on board were Colonel G. Creighton Webb, Lady Peeks and Major A. D. Budd, U. S. A. The Majestic brought 526 first class, 373 second class and 227 third class passengers and 6,350 sacks of mail.

OBSERVES ARMISTICE DAY.

Italy's Celebration Centres at Tomb of Unknown Soldier.

ROME, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Italy today celebrated the sixth anniversary of the armistice which concluded her share in the World War, and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier was the centre of a popular demonstration of deep reverence and of enthusiastic reassertion of the ideals for which Italians gave their lives.

The official celebration of the day began with a mass in the Church of Santa Maria Angeli, attended by the royal family, members of the Government and of the diplomatic corps. After the service, there was a procession, accompanied by regiments of soldiers, to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where the sovereigns and Ministers added wreaths to the already mountainous collection of floral offerings which had been placed there in the early morning by the people.

During the noon hour, special ceremonies were held in military barracks throughout Italy and in the afternoon the various civilian patriotic organizations made pilgrimages to the nation's shrine. These organizations, with military units, gathed in the Piazza del Popolo, from where they marched through the Corso Umberto the Victor Emmanuel monument.

Social Economists in Buenos Aires Recommend Many New Laws.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 4.—The first International Congress on Social Economy, which opened on Oct. 26, closed today after the adoption of numerous recommendations intended to stimulate public interest and promote international cooperation in dealing with social problems.

The recommendations included the universal adoption of the eight-hour-day law, uniform social insurance laws, measures for the hygienic protection of workmen, the promotion internationally of associated cooperative marketing societies, the decentralization of population, recognition of the study of applied sociology as a profession and the establishment of an international secretariat for social economy, museums and similar institutions.

12 TAILORS ARE FINED.

Pressing of Trousers on Sunday in Long Island City Barred.

Fines of $10 each were imposed on a dozen tailors by Magistrate James J. Conway in the Long Island City Court yesterday when they pleaded guilty to violating the Sunday closing law. Since last Summer it has been the custom of tailors whose shops line Fulton and Main Streets, Long Island City, to keep them open on Sunday mornings to accommodate young men desiring to have their trousers pressed while they waited.

The Magistrate said he did not object to young men trying to appear as smart as possible on Sunday, but he could not permit violations of the law.

"Get your trousers pressed on Saturday evening, or go without creases in them," was his advice.

FINDS NEW STEEL METHOD.

Swedish Engineer Extracts It Direct From Iron Ore.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4.—Discovery of a method for extracting pure steel and forge iron directly from iron ore, eliminating the use of smelting furnaces, is announced by the Swedish engineer, Flodin, of the Hagfors iron works.

The invention, which is the result of extensive experimental work, has awakened keen interest among metallurgists and will immediately be submitted to practical tests on a larger scale.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Best Radio News

THE NEW YORK TIMES publishes in the Radio Department of the Sunday edition more important news about the new developments in radio than any other New York newspaper.

FREQUENTLY its information is published far in advance of any other newspaper. Every item is gathered at first hand or verified at unquestionable sources before being printed.

NEWS OF IMPROVEMENTS in broadcasting stations, increase of power, the development of the industry, is frequently given exclusively in THE TIMES.

BROADCASTING PROGRAMS are given in full—a distinct characteristic of THE TIMES Radio Department. Every Sunday a full page is occupied by the programs of about sixty broadcasting stations for the current week.

BIG BROADCASTING FEATURES of general interest, important happenings in politics, sport, art, science, etc., are always announced in advance.

NEW MEXICO FACES SCHOOL CODE FIGHT

Change From County Unit System Starts Movement to Enact a New Law.

INFORMATION SOUGHT HERE

Report of Survey Shows Benefits of Former Plan and Reveals Defects of the New.

In their efforts to bring about a change in the school code, teachers and organizations interested in solving the problem of education in New Mexico have organized a State-wide movement to force the repeal of the school code adopted by the Legislature of 1923 and bring about the enactment of a broader and more liberal law.

This was revealed in inquiries sent to the Department of Education recently, followed by a request for information about the school system in New York City. According to the letters received, there is widespread dissatisfaction with the present school code, which replaced the county unit law of 1917, a system which was said to have gone far toward solving the educational problem in that State.

A study of the situation made by John V. Conway, former Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction there, shows that the present school code is not working successfully or to the best interests of the schools, and that much of the good that had been accomplished by the county unit system has disappeared or is being swept away. In his report Mr. Conway divides the State into two distinct sections which differ widely in geography, dominant language and in customs. "If a line is drawn roughly on the map of New Mexico, beginning of the northeastern corner and extending southwest to the Arizona line," the report says, "it will divide the State into a plains section lying east of this line and a mountain section lying west of the line.

"The people who inhabit the eastern portion of the State are descended chiefly from Anglo-Saxon stock and have entered the State from other sections of the United States. The dominant part of this population has entered from the south. The population of the western part of the State, or at least the native population, is of Spanish descent. The Anglo-Saxon portion of this population has come to New Mexico not so exclusively from any one section of the United States, but is a mixture of Northern, Southern, extreme Eastern and Middle Western peoples, who have infiltrated the native Spanish-American population.

First Step Taken in 1915.

"In view of these facts, it will be seen that a law creating the county as a unit of taxation and of supervision had to cover the needs and peculiar problems arising from this divergence in geographical conditions, and also the differences in habits of thought and customs due to the different sources from which the population had sprung."

The report says that the first step toward the complete county unit system was taken by the Legislature of 1915, which provided for three types of taxation to care for the needs of the schools of the State—State tax, county tax and district tax. Collection of these taxes was supervised by the Board of County Commissioners. This, Mr. Conway found, furnished the initial stimulus which finally developed the county unit system. It was not until 1917, however, that the real system, providing for both taxation and administration, went into effect.

Under the provisions of this law County Boards of Education were created, each board to consist of five members, four to be appointed by the District Judge and the fifth member, the County Superindent of Schools, elected by popular vote. Not more than two members could belong to the same political party. The County Superintendent became the President of the board. "By these provisions," he report says, "political influence was removed from the schools; the board was made representative by the choice of members from the home districts of the County Commissioners with whom they had to work, and the influence of the cities, towns and villages which had been designated as municipal districts was minimized in affairs dealing with districts under the control and supervision of the County Superintendent, so that men and women sympathetic with the peculiar problems of rural districts had the dominating position on the board.

"The results of the changes in the system of public schools thus inaugurated soon became evident. In some of the counties, under the old system of administration, there had arisen and flourished the principle of nepotism in the choice of teachers. Dominant families were represented on local district boards either by their own members or by their satellites, who, acting under pressure, employed as teachers relatives of these family groups who might or might not be competent to administer the affairs of the school."

More Pay for Teachers.

Other changes described in the report included more uniformity in the length of the school terms, classes in isolated sections where no school had been held, a budget, better teachers and increased salaries. Quoting from the records, Mr. Conway's report says that in the years 1903 to 1916 there were established in the State thirty-seven high schools of standard rank, and that during the years 1917 to 1921, inclusive, there were established twenty-six high schools of standard rank carrying a four-year course of study. "Something must have happened," the report says, "to necessitate within a period of four years the establishment of two-thirds as many high schools as previously existed. These are the years in which the county unit system of administration was operative."

The report declares that the educators of the State feel that a decided step backward was taken in the adoption of the new school code, and that many counties already are finding themselves cramped for funds adequately to carry on the work of education within their boundaries. In a general summing up of the results of the survey the report finds:

"The period of New Mexico's educational progress lies roughly between the years 1916 and 1923. During these years the county unit law, administered by a non-partisan County Board of Education, was in force. These years witnessed the increase of teachers' salaries; the advancement of the personnel of the teaching force as regards preparation; the erection of school buildings; the purchase and installation of school equipment in isolated rural communities; the increase of eighth-grade graduates; the development of the State's high school system; the consolidation of rural schools; the transportation of pupils to centralized schools of a higher degree of efficiency than the one-room rural school; the passing of the third-grade teacher; the awakening of public interest in education; the growth and development of the State's higher educational institutions, fed by the flow of graduates from the eighth grade who had continued their work in their own home communities through a newly developed system of high schools. The county unit law probably was not responsible for all this development, but it is interesting to note that the development came only when the county-unit law was in effect.

"This period also witnessed the greatest increase of school and road taxes. The peak of this taxation increase occurred in 1921. The tax rate began to decrease before county boards of education were abolished. Schools and roads go hand in hand, and both cost money. If the increase in the tax rate is laid altogether to the county unit law, where certainly all of it does not lie, the mass of the parents of the State will agree that it was money well spent."

SAYS GOOD WORD FOR THE TURKEY

OUTPUT NOW CUT IN HALF

Annual Crop Only About 50% of What It Was 24 Years Ago—Expert Advice.

Twenty-four years ago there were 4,354,695 turkeys on farms in the United States. In 1910 there were 3,688,708 and in 1920 3,627,023. For this reason, and because of the ever-increasing demand for turkey for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner, the United States Department of Agriculture is taking steps to make turkey raising more profitable.

One of the outstanding reasons, the department says, why turkey raising has not been developed more extensively in recent years has been the failure to appreciate the value of the industry in supplying the nation with one of its principal articles of diet. There has been, it is said, a general lack of interest in turkey raising as an enterprise; there has been a dearth of knowledge as to the best methods in the management of the breeding stock, particularly the growing stock; there has been little investigational work in the control of diseases and other matters of primary importance in producing turkey meat at a profit.

To raise fat turkeys, the department advises, it is necessary to allow them free range on sweet and clean soil. Both the old and young turkeys must be protected from dampness and given sanitary quarters and hygienic methods of feeding. It is important, they say, in raising poults to keep them "just a little hungry."

Causes of Decrease.

Several causes, it is stated, may be assigned for the decrease in the number of turkeys raised. The rearing of the young stock, for one thing, requires more attention than is the case with other classes of poultry. The birds range widely and frequently trespass upon the property of neighbors, thereby causing much vexation, which tends to discourage turkey raising. However, turkeys can be raised successfully under very simple conditions with a very small outlay of capital if the flock is kept relatively free from disease and the soil where the pouts are fed sanitary. Moreover, the very fact that turkeys do range freely reduces the costs of raising, for in doing so they eat many insects and pick up much waste grain.

Under ordinary condition, the department experts decare, turkeys do not require much protection from the weather. However, during cod Winter weather, such as prevaisr in the Northern States, it is well to provide covered roosting sheds. In most parts of the United States there is little need for a regular turkey house, but during damp and cold or stormy weather the turkeys should be given protection of some kind.

Feeding turkeys, it is explained, is a simple matter. It is advisable to give them a daily feed of grain, such as a ration of equal parts of oats, wheat and corn. Considerable care should be taken to see that the grain is clean and wholesome, particularly the corn. During the cold Winter months the department advises feeding them grain twice a day and providing vegetables, such as potatoes, turnips, mangels or cabbage, occasionally as a substitute for the grain feed.

Predatory Foes.

One must be on the lookout for hidden nests, otherwise the turkey eggs may not be collected regularly, and they may become chilled or destroyed by predatory animals. Sometimes the hidden nest can be located by observing the turkey hen carefully as she makes her way to the nest, but a much easier and quicker method is to confine the hens early in the morning soon after they come from the roost and then let them out late in the afternoon. The hens that are laying will make straight for their nests in order to lay the eggs they have been holding. Sometimes turkeys will take to nests provided for them, and whenever this is done a great deal of trouble is avoided. Nests are easily made of boxes and barrels, which should be so placed as to be protected from animals.

The poults may be brooded either by chicken or turkey hens or by artificial brooders. Brooding by hens has the advantage of enabling the poults to be raised in small flocks and of readily providing free range conditions. There is a slight disadvantage, however, in that after the hens are allowed to roam with the breeds, they may wander too far and some of the poults may be lost through storms or by predatory animals.

Brooding the poults by hens is not a difficult matter, although there are several details which should always receive careful attention. As soon as the hatch is completed, and the poults begin to run out from under the sitting hen, the hen and her brood should be transferred to a coop. The coop should be moved to fresh ground every day. When the poults are about a week old the mother hen may be allowed to roam with her brood, but care should be taken to see that the entire brood returns in the evening and is protected. It is especially important that the brood be properly sheltered during rainstorms and damp weather, as nothing is so fatal as dampness and cold. The mother hens usually remain with their broods until about October, and then the pockerals frequently leave the pullets and range by themselves.

Losses From Overfeeding.

Probably more losses in raising turkeys, it is said, result from overfeeding than all other causes. Several combinations of feeds are used by different turkey raisers. The methods of feeding some of these combinations are:

Hard-boiled egg chopped fine and bread crumbs for the first week, and then whole wheat and hulled oats.

Stale bread soaked in milk and squeezed dry for the first few days, and then common chicken feed.

Clabbered milk seasoned with salt and pepper, and corn bread crumbs.

Equal parts "pinhead" cast, whole wheat and cracked corn.

Corn meal and wheat bran mixed in proportion of 3 to 1 and baked into a bread.

Milk, especially buttermilk, it is said, is excellent for young poults. Buttermilk seems to be especially beneficial in bringing the poults successfully through the early stages. A good plan is to keep the milk in front of the poults during the morning and water during the afternoon.

The marketing season for turkeys is very short, running from the middle of November to the latter part of December. Many turkey raisers sell their birds alive to paultry dealers, who either dress them or ship them alive to city dealers.

BELGIAN INDUSTRIES HIT.

Iron and Steel Trade Depressed by German Competition.

Several Belgian industries have been affected by the unsatisfactory industrial conditions recently. The iron and steel trade has had to meet a very severe competition on the part of Germany, and, not being able to continue making concessions, it has been compelled to slow down, while some smaller concerns intend to close down definitely if no revival sets in soon, says the European Commercial of Vienna. This industry is passing through one of the worst depressions experienced since 1918, it is said.

The general coal situation is unfavorable. The demand for industrial coals is absolutely nil and stocks at the pits are continually increasing. Regarding house coal, the demand from France keeps this section of the market more or less in a healthy condition, although prices have declined several points. The demand from Holland and Switzerland is negligible. These markets are at present being supplied with German coal. Prices of German coals, which are of a superior quality, are from 10 to 20 francs per ton below those quoted for Belgian coal. The situation in the glass industry is unchanged and prices of window glass have declined from 240 to 220 francs per case of 200 feet.

NOTES CRITICAL PERIODS IN MINES

Bureau of Mines Study Indicates Most Accidents Happen Between 6 and 9 A. M.

NIGHT GAS RESPONSIBLE

Poor Ventilation Also Blamed—Many Explosions Have Occurred on Monday Mornings.

It has been discovered by engineers on the staff of the United States Bureau of Mines, as the result of a study of 256 coal mine explosions, that there are two critical times of the day when such explosions are most likely to occur. The critical period in the morning ranges between 6 and 9 o'clock, with a peak at 7:30 o'clock, indicating an emphasized hazard from gas ignition in these hours. The critical period in the afternoon ranges between 3 and 7 o'clock, with a peak at 6 o'clock, hinging upon the practice of shot-firing in the evening. Between these morning and evening critical periods is one which might be called the noon period, that is, from 11 A. M. to 1 P. M., associated with the practice of shot-firing at noon.

The 256 coal mine explosions studied by the Bureau of Mines ranged over a period of fifteen years, killed 4,413 men and injured 570 others. As a result of its findings, the bureau urges that extra vigilance should be exercised in coal mining operations at these critical periods, particularly in the mornings, when many of the worst explosions have taken place, largely due to the hazard of accumulation of gas during the night.

The bureau points out that while fired bosses generally try to examine for gas before the men enter the mine in the morning, sometimes, owing to there being too many working places to inspect, or to taking a chance, some place is neglected, with the result that miners entering therein with open lights ignite an accumulation of gas. The period lapsing between the time of inspection and men entering workings is often too long, and although a working place may be clear when examined, a fall or other cause may result in an accumulation of gas which is accidentally ignited.

Sometimes a fire boss marks off a working place as being gassy, yet some miner with an open light takes no notice and goes in, with the only possible result—an ignition or an explosion, it is pointed out. Again, a pocket of gas may have collected, and is marked by the fire boss. He may attempt to remove it, warning the men not to approach with open lights, yet occasionally som cone does so, resulting in an ignition or explosion.

Danger From Carelessness.

Another fairly frequent cause of morning explosions is the leaving of ventilating doors ajar during the night. The air current is short-circuited thereby, and some workings will get no fresh air, consequently gas will collect, and the first man with an open light sets it off. This is not an uncommon happening, but luckily the accumulated gas is not always ignited.

In the afternoon and evening there are many explosions. It is noticeable that the number drops at 4 o'clock. As a rule the day shifts go out of the mine at 3:30 to 4 o'clock. In mines where the miners do their own firing, or where it is done by shot-firing foremen during the shift, one shot at a time, the firing would be completed at that time; but in mines where the firing is done by shot-firers when all other men are out of the mine it begins shortly after 4 o'clock, or if the mine has had a short day's run it may begin earlier. The dangers of rapid shot-firing by such special shot-firers is fully reflected in the number of explosions that take place between 5 and 6 o'clock. At 6:30 o'clock there is a drop and, then, at 7 o'clock the number again runs up. These explosions may result from gas, liberated by the shot-firing, or accumulations from other reasons, being ignited by the night shift when it reaches the face. Frequently the coal-cutting is done on the night shift.

While many blow-out shots occur in mines, not all stir up the coal dust and so start an explosion, which is fortunate. Likewise it is fortunate that at this time so few men, generally only the shot-firers, are in the mine. Yet in the aggregate a large number of shot-firers have been killed. There is a case where fifteen shot-firers were killed in one mine, nearly all singly; and there is another case where one shot-firer passed uninjured through five explosions.

A number of cases in the Bureau of Mines files describe explosions on Monday mornings. Mostly, these are the result of fans being stopped over the week-end. Fans should be kept working on Sundays, the bureau states, but, if they are stopped for repair or other reasons, the mine must be fully ventilated and tested on Mondays before men enter. Explosions have happened on Sundays from this same cause.

In view particularly of the number of early morning explosions, the following recommendations are made by the Bureau of Mines:

The area assigned to each fire boss should not be too extensive. In some States each working place must, by law, be examined within three hours before it is entered by the oncoming shift. To do this within the area assigned but a prefunctory examination can be made in some cases, because it is a physical impossibility for a man to cover the ground in the time required. One explosion costing nearly a hundred lives without doubt was indirectly caused by the evident inability of the fire boss to inspect his section. In fact, it was stated at the time of the explosion that two fire bosses had formerly been employed for the same section.

The system of ventilation should be so planned that a minimum number of doors will be necessary. It may be cheaper in the end to build a few additional overcasts than to pay for the cost of an explosion. Permissible electric lights and flame safety lamps should be substituted for open lights in all coal mines. The practice of shooting off the solid should be eliminated and permissible explosives should be substituted for black blasting powder. No person, except a regular experienced shot firer should be permitted to load and charge holes.

All electric power lines should be frequently inspected to see that they are properly installed, and that there is no danger from short circuits which might ignite a pocket of gas.

The results of these studies are contained in Serial 2628, "The Critical Time of Day for Coal Mine Explosions," by L. D. Tracy, coal mining engineer, and M. W. von Bernewitz, mining and metallurgical engineer, copies of which may be obtained from the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Mines, Washington, D. C.

THREE FARMING COURSES.

N. J. College of Agriculture Announces Winter Curriculum.

The New Jersey State College of Agriculture has announced that its Winter short courses in agriculture will begin on Nov. 17 and that three courses are offered—general agriculture and dairy farming, fruit growing and vegetable gardening and poultry husbandry. From the farms in New Jersey these courses bring about 150 students each year for a twelve weeks' course. Part of the announcement reads:

"Each of these courses is complete in itself and takes all the time of the student. Many in the past have returned in successive years so as to complete all three courses.

"Those enrolling in the course in general agriculture and dairy farming will have the privilege of enjoying the fine laboratories in the new dairy and husbandry building, which is completed and is now being equipped. Students will also spend considerable time in the new dairy barns, where they will have a fine opportunity to study stock judging, dairy feeding and dairy management.

"With the development of the new orchards and gardens, students in fruit growing and vegetable gardening are assured of plenty of opportunity to get some real experience.

"In poultry husbandry plans are being made to handle a large group of students. Special emphasis will be laid on poultry diseases and poultry house construction."

A Decade of Leadership

This year marks the tenth anniversary of the Rotogravure Picture Section of The New York Times. First in the field, it set the standard of quality in visualizing world news and in producing results for advertisers.

In ten months of 1924 The New York Times printed 751,530 agate lines of rotogravure advertising, 334,038 lines more than the rotogravure section of the next New York newspaper, a gain of 112,582 lines over the corresponding period of 1923.

The net paid circulation of the Sunday edition of The Times, of which the Rotogravure Section is a part, is 600,000 copies. It is read in every State of the United States and in every Province of Canada—8,000 cities, towns and villages. In the richest and most populous section of this country—New York City and within a radius of 150 miles—400,000 copies are sold.

PRESIDENT-ELECT COOLIDGE.

The triumph of President COOLIDGE at the polls is a resultant of political forces long visibly operative. They have made in the Republican Party for recovery and rebuilding. In the Democratic Party they have represented the inroads of disease, after deep and self-inflicted wounds, and a shock of discouragement following the National Convention, from which it proved impossible completely to rally. An extraordinary reversal of party outlook has occurred within the past ten months. Last Winter at Washington, when blow upon blow was falling upon the Republicans, it seemed as if their chances in this year's Presidential election were nil. But the Democrats proceeded to undo themselves, and the Republican campaign steadily gathered hope and head and swept on to yesterday's victory.

Mr. COOLIDGE was no mere bystander and beneficiary while this movement was going on. He himself had much to do with giving it impetus and direction. CALVIN COOLIDGE is not the innocent in politics that some would make him out. Scarcely had he entered the White House when he began to frame and execute plans first of all to make sure of the Republican nomination. When he appointed Mr. BASCOM SLEMP as his Private Secretary, it was plain notice that the President was going to play the political game. Soon after came the choice of Mr. BUTLER of Massachusetts, well supplied with funds, to take charge of Mr. COOLIDGE's fortunes in Republican primaries and conventions. Nothing was left to chance. It was not in Mr. COOLIDGE's mind simply to wait passively for his party to discover whom it wanted to nominate for the Presidency. The Coolidge thoroughness was shown in making assurance doubly sure and taking a bond of fate through a skillfully organized and effectively sustained fight for the nomination.

That was far from being the whole story. Mr. COOLIDGE's political resourcefulness was shown also by the way in which he impressed himself upon the country. He did it in an original fashion. It is still true that the world is ruled by imagination, and President COOLIDGE undoubtedly made a strong appeal to the imagination of the American people. But it was along novel lines. He never sought to set himself up as a hero or a romantic figure. Rather it was the dutiful doer of the day's work; the calm man of iron industry; the Executive who labored for economy and order in government; the President who worked for a reduction in public expenditures, and also managed to stand before the eyes of his fellow-citizens as the man who was striving to save their money and to cut down their individual taxes; who illustrated the humdrum but indispensable virtues of efficient administration—in these guises Mr. COOLIDGE not only compelled recognition as the chief asset of the Republican Party, but more and more won a hold upon the plain and steady-going masses of the people.

His success is that of a new type in our national politics. He has shown that leadership may fulfill itself in many ways, some of them unexpected. Perhaps the strategic moment had come for such a victor. The nation had had a series of forceful and glittering personalities at the head of affairs. Possibly the time had come to play upon other strings of popular sentiment. Mr. COOLIDGE has certainly done it, and that without departing from the character in which he had been known for years. It cannot be denied that he has had aid from a kind fate. The traditional "Coolidge luck" has been abundantly seen in the course of this year's campaign. The bounty of Nature stilled discontent in the Republican States of the West and Northwest faster than LA FOLLETTE could stir it up. But when all is said, it has to be admitted that President COOLIDGE showed great political sagacity in sticking throughout to the rôle in which he had cast himself. It is something to have demonstrated that the American people will rise to a leader who puts work above talk, as well as to rhetoricians stalking back and forth on the windy plains of Troy, or to fighters forever waving swords and gesticulating.

The hope of the country is that Mr. COOLIDGE, after the mandate given him yesterday in his own name, will hereafter be every inch a President. No one will expect to see him boast or bluster, but in his quiet way the people will desire him to assume the full right and powers of leadership. With the great honor done him a great responsibility has been laid upon him. That he may rise fully level with it and make of his Administration a positive source of good for the United States, and of courage and help in solving those world problems from which this nation cannot shake itself apart, will be the earnest wish today of all patriotic Americans.

GOVERNOR SMITH.

Again ALFRED SMITH has demonstrated his unrivaled hold upon the affection and confidence of this city and State. Time and repeated campaigns have not dulled the instinctive desire to delight to honor a man who has risen from the people to be so faithful an exponent and servant of the people. Nothing finer has been seen in the history of democratic institutions. For it is not a case of running after a demagogue or a charlatan, but of flocking to the support of a public man of approved integrity, extraordinary capacity and humaneness of spirit. In addition to reading in the election returns an unexampled personal triumph for Governor SMITH, we must also read in them heartfelt and intelligent approval of his record as a statesman. Fairly against his will, the people have taken the thing into their own hands and insisted upon his being Governor of New York for another term.

Throughout the country his amazing victory will carry reproach and perhaps remorse to thousands of those narrow-minded and frightened Democrats who allowed religious prejudice and dread of the Ku Klux Klan to sway their action in the National Convention. Belated regrets are useless. Nor can any one positively affirm that if Governor SMITH had been nominated for the Presidency he could have defeated Mr. COOLIDGE. But this at least shines out in his triumph in New York, that courage is a better counselor for politicians than timidity, and that honesty and square dealing are all the armor a public man needs to turn the darts of intolerance and un-American scheming.

A PATTERN IN POLITICS.

In the campaign just closed the outstanding and redeeming feature has been Mr. DAVIS's contribution. In the spirit, manner and substance of his public discussions he has augmented the "heritable excellence" of our national life. He has been a model in his poise, in his fairness, in his clarity and cogency of thought, and in his grace and strength of speech. It is in such temperate yet incisive discussions that we have glimpses of what a real democracy should be—reaching its conclusions without the swaying of emotion or the restraint of tradition or partisanship through the deliberate weighing of the attainable truth. WALTER BAGEHOT in one of his essays said that if a nation has gained any considerable degree of capacity to discuss with freedom political questions of high and urgent import, "to argue politics and not to argue ruinously," an enormous advance in other kinds of civilization may be predicted for it. He would no doubt have inferred from Mr. DAVIS's utterances rather more of an advance than we as yet have made as a people.

The power of discussion which another great English essayist has found in the poetry of SHAKESPEARE, the prose of BACON, the "orisons of "LONGLEAT and the stately pinnacles "of BURLEIGH" is to be found even in the hurried campaign speeches of Mr. DAVIS, suddenly called to take the leadership in the expounding of a liberalism which, though disposed "the old thought to retain," is yet ready "to consider it again," and to discuss questions ranging from the problems of irrigation in the West to those of our relations with the rest of the world. He showed an amazing power in analyzing the facts, but an equally amazing power in synthesizing them and then presenting them in his own persuasive, convincing way. But the man who had argued successfully for the Government before the United State Supreme Court the International Harvester case and two days later the Steel case, each involving a familiarity with volumes of evidence, was not unprepared when the call came to take the case of those who have sought the preservation of equal opportunity at home and a more neighborly policy abroad before the only higher court.

There he has argued his case in a way that has challenged the admiration even of his opponents. He has done it with "animated moderation" and without malice. He has shown "spirit with reasonableness." He may rest assured that, in the language which he quoted in his closing speech, the human race will climb a little higher because of the protest he has made, and because of the voice he raised "to speak and speak again to right the wrongs of many."

No one who supported Mr. DAVIS has any reason for regretting it. He has made himself a national figure, whose counsel and whose services in humane causes will often be sought.

THE ZINOVIEFF LETTER.

RAMSAY MACDONALD devoted his last days in office to the investigation of a "plot" which contributed to his undoing. The finding of the committee with the retiring Prime Minister at its head is that there was no plot in the sense that the Zinovieff letter so dramatically made public by Mr. MACDONALD'S own Foreign Office on the eve of the election is now declared to be authentic beyond any doubt. This is contrary to the note struck by a number of London correspondents of American newspapers who spoke of the Zinovieff "forgery." That the letter was authentic has been fairly evident from the beginning. RAKOVSKY, the Bolshevist representative at London, could raise no more serious point against its authenticity than a slight error in ZINOVIEFF's official title accompanying the signature. It is inconceivable that MACDONALD could have allowed, even by inadvertence, the letter to be made public if he were not morally convinced that it was genuine.

Once the letter is shown to have been written by ZINOVIEFF, we can hardly accuse any political party of plotting against its opponents if it set out to capitalize the incendiary document for its own purposes. The only suspicion of conspiracy arises in connection with under-officials in the Foreign Office who might be accused of playing MACDONALD false by giving the document out prematurely. It would be a case of Conservatism entrenched in the Foreign Office setting out to ditch a Labor Prime Minister. But even this hypothesis has little justification in the facts. MACDONALD's own explanation of the incident is that he had approved the dispatch of the note to the Moscow Government subject to the final establishment of the authenticity of the incriminating letter. It is a reasonable supposition that the Foreign Office investigated and came to the same conclusion as the Prime Minister's own committee. The publication of the letter and the protesting note may have been actuated, as a matter of fact, by the utmost loyalty to MACDONALD. The situation was simple: a dangerous document was in possession of the Opposition newspapers and party leaders, and it was to MACDONALD's interest to expose the affair instead of waiting to be exposed.

If any plot is tied up with the Communist call to revolution in England, the real plotter would be the author of the letter, ZINOVIEFF. It would be in line with the Communist strategy. The Russian treaty, as Moscow recognized, was done for. MACDONALD was sure soon to be out of power. Between him and Moscow there was never any love lost. The publication of the Zinovieff letter, by making trouble for MACDONALD in his own party, would thus be regarded at Moscow as a move toward bringing confusion into the ranks of British Labor; and this is precisely the Moscow policy with regard to every non-Communist Labor and Socialist party in Europe.

OUR UNPROTECTED FORESTS.

Bad as is the destruction by forest fires in the Eastern States this year, due to the excessively dry Autumn which has made the leaves and grass almost as inflammable as tinder, it is but a repetition of what has happened many times before, since the white men first pushed the line of civilization westward. The Indians, more chary with fire than ourselves, never caused the wanton damage that so many white men have done, to their shame; and, although lightning has often started a blaze, the destruction from natural causes never equaled that which results from the carelessness and negligence of our own people. The forest area of the United States is estimated at about 550,000,000 acres. Of this, according to Messrs. ZON and SPARHAWK, two of the principal forestry experts in the country, about half has no fire protection of any sort. In the remainder, which is composed of national and State forests and a few large preserves belonging to great lumber companies, a handful of rangers are kept and watch towers have been built. All of this is a recent development. It came too late to save the vast areas in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota which have been burned up during the last half century. People up-State still remember the great clouds of smoke and dust that used to dim the horizon when a big fire was raging in the Middle Northwest. These would sometimes travel a thousand miles from the scene of the conflagration, riding in the upper air like a dim haze.

The forests in New Jersey and New York are suffering irreparable injury this season. Due to the dry soil, there has been more underground burning than usual, with the result that not only are the roots of the trees and plants destroyed, but the dried vegetable matter in the soil itself has been scorched. This means that it will be years before such areas can be reforested. Much of the land that has been burned over is privately owned, but State preserves have not escaped. If systematic planting were resorted to, the damage might be more rapidly repaired, but the publicly owned forests are supported by insufficient appropriations for such work, and most private owners will be unwilling to go to the great expense of large-scale replanting.

To prescribe a preventive for forest fires is almost impossible. Eternal vigilance is required and an enlarged force of forest rangers on all public lands. It may also be necessary to extend the system of fire lanes used in some parts of the world, by which the forests are divided into sections with cleared spaces intervening. In this manner efforts can be made to isolate fires. Unless these lanes are kept well cleared and constantly patrolled, however, they may prove ineffective. In high winds big fires usually jump them.

Carelessness is the greatest enemy of the forests. Nine fires out of ten are started through negligence. To forbid the culprits access to the forests would, of course, be ideal; but unfortunately it is even impossible to catch them. If only every camper and hunter could be led into the woods through an area of fire-swept country, he might take heed to his ways.

RESTORING FRENCH CREDIT.

The French "rentes," or 3 per cent. perpetual Government obligations, have sold below 50 for the first time in their history. Although there is a connection between this fact and the proximate issue of a new Government internal loan to yield more than 8 per cent., it is a further sign that the French people themselves are at last beginning to realize the extent to which the credit of their Government has fallen during the last five years, thanks to the failure to take adequate measures really to balance expenses by receipts. The fall of the franc below 100 to the pound sterling and 20 to the dollar a year ago produced the first marked awakening among the French people. Before that time they had accepted the honeyed words of the politicians, and closed their eyes to the fact that the Government was pyramiding loans, and trying to lull the people into a belief in the soundness of public finance by insisting on the fiction of "recoverable" expenses. It was that violent fall of the franc that forced POINCARE to provide for increased revenues last March. The knowledge that the foreign exchange rates reflected loss of confidence in French credit abroad gave rise to a serious study of conditions which resulted in a saner attitude toward the entire problem.

The fall of the "rentes" below 50 is more than likely to have a similar psychological reaction today on the French people. It brings home to the holders of French bonds, who are many, that the Government's finances are in greater need of housecleaning than the people had realized. By increasing the demand for funding the floating debt and pulling together the loose ends of the nation's finances it should make it easier for the Government to impose added taxes and to stress the necessity of the only sound method that France can follow—making receipts even greater than expenditures.

The improvement, both actual and theoretical, during the last year has been great. Not only have higher taxes been levied and larger sums actually collected, but the budget for the coming year makes the first serious effort since the armistice to balance expenses with income. All of this is excellent. But France, which may be said to have passed successfully through her financial Verdun, has still a hard fight against the enemies, within and without, who would tempt her to financial ruin by luring her down the paths of inflation and renewed borrowing on a large scale. Fortunately her people have a habit of facing an ordeal with determination, and of holding out until they have won. The knowledge that the price of the "rentes" is an indication of the straits in which they find themselves has therefore its good as well as its bad aspects.

THE PROTOCOL AND "DOMESTIC QUESTIONS."

As Mr. THEODORE MARBURG has pointed out in a letter printed in THE TIMES, the Protocol of the League of Nations does not provide for the submission of domestic questions to "determination" of a "group of Powers." In saying or implying that it does, Secretary HUGHES fell into a looseness of phrase remarkable in one of his legal talent and training.

The working draft of the Protocol provided that when the World Court had declared a matter subject to domestic jurisdiction the League should keep hands off. That was in harmony with the dominant spirit of the Covenant, which everywhere avoids trenching upon the sovereignty of member States. But Japan is confronted with problems which, though they threaten to disturb peace, are still, from the point of view of the nations individually, purely domestic problems. Dangerous as this situation is, it was rendered doubly dangerous by the plan for deciding when a nation is an aggressor. If the expanding nation disregarded the finding of the Court, continuing to press its claims upon the Council, it might, according to the technical terms of the draft Protocol, draw down upon itself the combined forces of the other members of the League.

ADATCI's proposal to modify the draft so as to permit discussion of problems which, though technically "domestic," in reality contained the seeds of war, was at first strenuously resisted by representatives of Great Britain and her Dominions, even by Senhor FERNANDES of Brazil, who is a distinguished authority on international law. Eventually the strength of the Japanese position was recognized and full warrant for it was discovered in Article XI. of the Covenant. There was no question of the "determination" of domestic questions. The final draft provided only that they might still receive "consideration" by Council or Assembly. This was all Japan asked. When it was granted, her representatives voted for the Protocol.

It is a curious fact that the situation which at first staggered the legal luminaries at Geneva is an open book to Secretary HUGHES—or was before the present campaign. As Professor BUELL of Harvard lately showed, it is clearly outlined in Mr. HUGHES's speech of last year before the Canadian Bar Association:

> Perhaps the most troublesome sources of irritation are to be found in the subjects which States properly decline to regard as international in the legal sense. Every State, jealous of its sovereign rights, refuses to permit the intrusion of other nations into its domestic concerns. In every plan for the arbitration of international controversies, domestic questions are perforce excluded. But in these days of intimate relations, of economic stress, and of intense desire to protect national interests and advance national opportunity, the treatment of questions which, from a legal standpoint, are domestic, often seriously affects international relations. The principle, each nation for itself to the full extent of its powers, is the principle of war, not of peace.

As to the practicability of the Protocol in the present state of enlightenment, there may be room for a difference of opinion. But, taken in its connection with the Covenant, it is the most fundamental as it is the most intelligent and comprehensive effort yet made to substitute reason, conciliation and law for the brutal passions, the cruelty and the waste of war.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Triumph Not Based on Election.

Of all the candidates at this election, only one, WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, won before the ballots were counted. At any rate, Mr. WHITE, on the day before the election, declared, and sincerely, that he had won, not in the familiar manner of prophecy posing as certainty, but in a far more convincing way, telling exactly what it was that he had won and proving it by the enthusiasm of his description.

Mr. WHITE, nominated chiefly by himself, has been engaged for some weeks in what seemed to be running for Governor of Kansas on a platform that consisted almost wholly of defiance of the Ku Klux Klan. In the course of peregrinations that covered the larger part of his State, he necessarily applied most of the harsh epithets there are to the Klan, for he told pretty nearly the whole truth about that organization, its organizers and its members. But it was all done in the William Allen White style, long since made known to a considerable share of the country's population, and he achieved the difficult feat of being at once savage and humorous.

This he often has done before, and then, as in this instance, Mr. WHITE has shown the underlying seriousness that characterizes every true humorist as distinguished from the more numerous makers of jests and jokes that have no depth to them. The object with which he began his canvass, he said, was not to become Governor, but to demonstrate that there was no need to be afraid of the Klan—that it could be "kicked in the slats," as he put it, without any other results than that of disclosing what a poor, wooden thing it was. So he gave the people of Kansas what the big parties had denied them—a chance to express by voting for him their detestation and derision of the group that has frightened so many "practical politicians" into trembling silence.

Incidentally, he saw a lot of Kansas scenery, and in that alone, if he had gained nothing else from his candidacy, he would have been rewarded nobly—so he says, anyhow. Some of us who have viewed the Kansas landscape more or less o'er wonder a little at the fervor with which Mr. WHITE praises it, but that may be because he has a proprietary interest in the State.

Why Men Join the Klan.

Even in discussing the Ku Klux Klan, WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE—at least sometimes—can give it the sort of forgiveness that comes from understanding. He is quoted in The Washington Star as replying, when asked why men join the Klan, that they do it in order to escape the boredom that is inseparable from civilization and its innumerable restrictions and prohibitions. Between that organization and others that permit the wearing of uniforms more or less gorgeous and absurd, he only drew the line as between means and end. If "regalia" is an end he apparently found it innocent, though childish, but when it becomes, as in the case of the Klan, a means of enforcing otherwise unenforceable rules of conduct on neighbors, then it is guilty, though still remaining absurd.

The distinction is valid, and there is more than humor in Mr. WHITE's theory as to the tedium which goes with civilization. The atavistic yearning for excitement and adventure has little chance for gratification when men live in communities competently ordered and policed. Life then becomes safe, but it also, for most, becomes dull, and for some it becomes intolerably dull. Mr. WHITE knows how to enliven it without returning to savagery or barbarism, but then he has the saving grace of humor, can laugh at himself as well as others, and he even can attack wicked giants without pulling a long face or expecting the end of the world if he does not attain immediate success.

His recent invasion of politics as a nominal office hunter lent a welcome variety to the campaign. He is not alone among the candidates in exciting laughter, but people laughed with, not at, Mr. WHITE, and that makes a big difference.

An Unusual Note in Unionism.

Down in Tennessee the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America has done something which not too many labor unions have done—it has demonstrated appreciation of the fact that a union can put before itself other objects than the attainment of higher wages and shorter hours. The pressmen and their assistants are not by any means indifferent to higher wages and shorter hours, and they often have fought for them, not unsuccessfully, but they also have realized the wisdom of improving the quality of union work and the quantity of its production, and at their place in Tennessee they have established a school of the typographic arts, as well as a "home" for members who need one.

Thence there just has been issued a volume that is notable for more than its handsome printing and illustration. It reveals that the members of this union want to make their work an art rather than a trade, that they have an eye for beauty as printers and pressmen can produce it, and that they sense the possibility of having between themselves and their employers a relation of harmony and cooperation rather than of hostility thinly veiled or not veiled at all.

The volume which the pressmen have produced deals with all of the many activities involved in the physical production of books, newspapers and other printed matter. It contains articles contributed by experts of many kinds, and some of these review the history of the auxiliary industries, such as press, ink and paper making, in addition to presenting, besides the opinions of union pressmen, those of editors, news collectors, the builders of presses and many others.

Broadcasting Worthy of the Name.

So familiar nowadays has become the sending out simultaneously from many broadcasting stations of the speech which one man anywhere in the country is making on an occasion for some reason notable, that nobody is surprised by the accomplishment of what not many months ago was regarded as little more than a possibility of the future as seen by radio optimists. Now it can be done, and is, by anybody able and willing to pay the incidental cost—which still is not small—or for anybody whose position is such that he can command the gratuitous rendering of such services.

When General PERSHING a few weeks ago took farewell of old companions in arms scattered all over the United States there were no bills to pay by him or them; the corporations concerned did it as a demonstration of ability. When Mr. DAVIS and Mr. COOLIDGE Monday evening spoke the very last of their campaign speeches like facilities were at their command, but presumably somebody met the expense. The expenditure, however large, was entirely "legitimate" and no investigator is going to pounce on it with cries of well-simulated horror.

In his message to the managers of the radio exhibition, sent on the evening of its opening, Mr. MARCONI foretold the coming, he thought soon, of the day when a single speaker, with no strain on his voice, can make himself clearly heard, not only over a whole big country, but all over the world. When that day does arrive people only will wonder why it was so long delayed, for they have come to expect from the radio a daily miracle.

An Appeal for Louvain.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The other day I had the privilege of visiting Louvain and of being shown the building designed to house the new library that is to replace the famous one so ruthlessly destroyed by the Germans in 1914. As many of your readers know, this undertaking has had much support from Americans. The architect is an American, the builder is an American, and many Americans, particularly in our universities and colleges, have contributed.

It was, however, somewhat disconcerting to learn that the task of completing the building is hampered for lack of funds. There is, therefore, need for the friends of the University of Louvain to rally to its support and to finish the work so nobly and so generously undertaken.

Many Americans have visited Louvain this Summer, and I am sure they are proud of the fact that the new library is to be a symbol of regard and of sympathy for the ancient university. As one who has recently been on the spot, I cannot refrain from expressing the opinion that the completion of the library will have a very wide appeal.

In the first place, we all admire the noble man, Cardinal Mercier, the patron—I had almost said the patron saint—of Louvain. He stands out as one of the great figures of our time, and many will hope that the library will be completed in his lifetime.

Then, again, the culmination of the task will be a warning to all militarists, past, present and future, that in the long run frightfulness does not really pay. If the library of Louvain can be, in large measure, restored and strengthened, not only materially but morally and spiritually, it will be a token of international good-will, and a sign that in the future it will be well to let institutions of learning alone.

In these days when many are aiding by loans and otherwise to restore economic conditions in Europe, surely the American people will not forget Louvain.

Waste Paper in Central Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mayor Hylan's recent utterance anent newspaper rubbish in Central Park reminds us of the German in the famous play "Squatter Sovereignty" at Harrigan & Hart's Theatre, forty years ago. He had captured a goat from one of the squatters, and had imprisoned it in his pantry, with a consequent havoc among the china. His wife expostulated with him, and, with stolid German humor, he replied: "You no like dot goat? I fill de house mit goats!" So Mayor Hylan answers, in effect, the complaint of citizens that Central Park is filled with newspaper rubbish: "You no like dot rubbish? I fill de Park mit rubbish!"

A Correction.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In my letter of Oct. 27 concerning Countess Karolyi's record, I made a disturbing mistake. It was not Count Joseph Karolyi who persecuted Count Michael Karolyi, but Count Emerich Karolyi, his cousin.

FALLING.

Red and yellow leaves—
Silently they slip
Like a quiet drip
Under Autumn eves.

So, too, slip the sere,
Disinherited,
Desultory dead
Of a city's year,

Unremarked, unmissed,
Composting old roots
For the future's fruits—
Life's perennial grist.

THE SITUATION IN BRAZIL.

Consul General Denies That the Rebels Still Disturb the Country.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in today's issue of THE TIMES a dispatch from Buenos Aires conveying the information that the so-called revolution in Brazil is still going on, with advance of the rebel troops in the State of Rio Grande do Sul, with the purpose of occupying the capital of that State.

I do not wish to comment any further upon the credibility of news coming from that source, since the part of the American public which is interested in Brazil is well aware of the prejudice underlying such news. I would dwell, however, upon a few facts which very well show that the situation in Brazil subsequent to the military uprising of São Paulo is far from being what the telegrams from Buenos Aires seem to depict.

The remainder of the rebel troops, after they were expelled from São Paulo by the Government forces, fled to the interior of the country, being at present in Porto Guayra and other points in the municipality of Foz do Iguassu, in the State of Paraná. A few weeks ago General Rondon, well known in this country as an explorer who accompanied President Roosevelt in his expedition in Brazil, was appointed commander of the troops which are fighting the rebels in their last redoubts.

President Bernardes has the entire support of all the State Governors and of the entire people of Brazil, who eagerly desire peace in order that they may attain the economic prosperity to which Brazil is bound. The present Administration is now chiefly occupied with economic and financial problems from which its attention had been diverted when the uprising occurred in São Paulo.

The proof of this is the communication by the President of the Bank of Brazil to the effect that that establishment was initiating the redemption of the paper money according to the contract entered into between that bank and the Government. At the end of September the President of the bank had sent to the amortization caisse, in order to be incinerated, the amount of six thousand contos in paper money issued by the Federal Treasury. That amount corresponds to redemption relative to the months of July, August and September of the current year. From Oct. 1 on, the bank expects to redeem five hundred contos weekly until December. This is the first time in Brazil that the policy of redeeming the fiduciary currency has been carried out, which shows the intention of the present Administration to put the finances of the country on a sound basis.

At the same time that this beneficial measure is being initiated, the committee appointed by President Bernardes, along the lines of the Geddes committee of England, to advise the Administration on matters pertaining to the finances of the country, presented its report of the Ministry of the Treasury, in which a careful survey is made of all the financial problems of Brazil, and an economy of about one hundred and twenty thousand contos is recommended. A complete scheme was also devised by that committee in order that Brazil may balance its budget, doing away with one of the most serious sources of financial difficulty that Brazil has encountered.

The State of Amazonas, which has experienced, since the war, great financial setbacks, due principally to the fall in the price of rubber, and which has been suffering from political inability, is also occupying the attention of President Bernardes, who lately obtained the authorization of Congress to intervene in that State. An interventor has already been appointed, and it is expected that, upon his assuming charge of the Government, Amazonas will enter the road of normalization.

All this goes to show that the situation of the present Administration is in no way critical, but that it has the support of the whole country, and that it is strenuously working for the financial and economic betterment of Brazil.

A NEW ERA IN MEXICO.

Calles Is Looked Upon as the Man to Restore Their Rights to the People.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mexico is today on the threshold of a new era. Four centuries of economic, political and spiritual slavery; four centuries of sweat and blood are to come to an end this year. May it be granted to the suffering Mexican people that this transition be effected in peace, for a disturbance on the part of the dethroned privileged classes, backed up by unprincipled army chiefs, would force the liberated peasants and workers to forego the policy of forgiveness and conciliation counseled and practiced by the Obregon Government, before, during and after the de la Huerta rebellion, and to take direct action in the most violent and pitiless fashion Mexican history has ever recorded.

Twelve years of cruel civil war have been necessary for the Mexican people to come again into possession of their inalienable rights—life, land, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The Mexican people have achieved their aims, they have what they had a right to, they now want peace to enjoy the fruits of their bloody and heroic victory. The de la Huerta movement not only failed to attract the masses, but the peasants and workers, in an endeavor to maintain peace to reconstruct the country, flocked to the armies of the Federal Government. The Mexican peasants and workers are war-weary, but not so tired as to buy peace at the price of their inalienable rights. May they not be forced to defend those rights as a class-conscious element. Only the timely intervention by the United States Government prevented such a class warfare last year.

General Plutarco Elias Calles is regarded by the Mexican masses as their leader. Calles is pledged to carry on the program of national reconstruction and international good-will of the Obregon Administration. Adolfo de la Huerta was regarded by the privileged classes as their leader. De la Huerta was pledged to amend the Constitution to suit the interests of his bosses. The Obregon Administration was bound, therefore, to look with favor on the election of Calles. The election of Calles, however, was assured by an overwhelming vote to be cast by organized workers and peasants, who constitute the majority of the population. And if interference by the Federal Government in the elections was ever justified to protect the people from falling into the hands of the elements they had fought it was at this time. Calles, under the circumstances, is the only man capable of bringing peace and prosperity to Mexico. The people will stand by him.

I am not threatening the enemies of the incoming Administration. I am warning the American people against the propaganda that will soon be started to discredit and to hinder the work of the Calles Government and against the grave consequences of further armed opposition to it in Mexico.

A TRIBUTE TO A DIPLOMAT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to congratulate you on your able editorial, published on Oct. 29, relating to the career of Edward Bell, who died during the past week while on duty at his post in Peking, where he was serving as Chargé d'Affaires of the American Legation. He was indeed, as you stated in the editorial, "the type of American professional diplomat of which the country stands in greater need than ever."

His career in the diplomatic service included service at Cairo, Teheran (at the time of the Morgan Shuster episode), Havana, London (during the World War), Tokio and Peking. He also served on special details with the State Department in Washington and with the American delegation at the limitation of armaments conference. As a result of this extensive and varied service he had gained that insight into the science of diplomacy which can only be learned through being constantly brought into actual contact with diplomatic realities. In addition to his great practical knowledge of the subject he was a profound student of international law and diplomatic history, which, added to his brilliant intellect and charming personality, made him the master that he was of the art of diplomatic negotiation. In spite of all this his work as a diplomat is little known throughout the country, and it is to be regretted that such is the case, as few men in public life have rendered more valuable service to the nation in recent years than Edward Bell.

It was my privilege to serve under him as third and as second secretary during the entire period that he was Chargé d'Affaires of the American Embassy in Tokio. During this period (1920-21) he was called on to handle some very difficult problems which might have resulted in international complications but for his resourcefulness in dealing with and disposing of them. Certainly no man could have done more than he did while on duty at Tokio in the way of improving our relations with Japan. I may also state that the manner in which he upheld American prestige in the Far East during this period is something which can only be understood and appreciated by Americans who were then residing in China and Japan.

I emphasize this last matter for the reason that Edward Bell was never one of those idealistic international theorists who believed in sacrificing the vital interests of their country in order to gain the good-will of another nation. Indeed, he was intolerant of the man who acted on or who proposed such a procedure, although nobody believed more strongly than Mr. Bell did in the necessity for international cooperation.

In his diplomatic negotiations it was clear that Edward Bell was always guided by two motives—first, to carry out the instructions given him by the State Department in the most efficient manner possible, and, secondly, ever to keep the good-will of the nations involved in the negotiations in question. And he never failed to accomplish both of these objects. I do not believe that any American diplomat who served in Japan—not even the great Townsend Harris himself—was more popular with or more respected by the officials of the Japanese Government than Edward Bell. In fact, I shall always be convinced that one of the reasons why the Imperial Japanese Government acted on the invitation of the United States to attend the limitation of armaments conference in the spirit that characterized the island empire's acceptance of that invitation was largely due to the work which Mr. Bell did as Chargé d'Affaires in Tokio.

That keen student of contemporary politics in the United States, Senator Albert J. Beveridge, has declared in a recent work, "The State of the Nation," that "we have few trained diplomats to meet the finished professionals of old nations." The Senator accordingly concludes that "so it has come about that notwithstanding the great ability of our men we have been beaten, with few exceptions, in our more important diplomatic encounters." It must be admitted that there is considerable justification for this conclusion, and it accordingly shows how necessary it is for the American nation to put the conduct of its diplomatic negotiations in the hands of men who are thoroughly familiar with the science of diplomacy. The amateur cannot hope to cope with the professional in diplomacy any more than in anything else—perhaps less so, for there is no career which calls for a more intensive training and a more extensive experience than a diplomatic one.

I join with you in expressing the hope that the new foreign service law will produce more men of the type of Edward Bell. His special abilities are, as you stated, "not easily duplicated," but there is much to be expected from this new law, which should have the effect, if it is duly administered properly, of giving the American people a foreign service which will be the equal of the foreign service of any other nation. And certainly we need such a service, for, to quote your words, "each year finds our country more enmeshed in world affairs and thus needing more than ever the best available men in its foreign service. In peace and commerce they constitute the nation's first line of defense."

Would Register All Citizens.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the article in today's TIMES on the subject of the unparalleled lawlessness of the United States, and with special reference to the frequent failure of the police to detect and capture criminals, is it not folly for us longer to postpone the registration of all citizens—or rather, all inhabitants of the United States?

Merely as a matter of common sense, it seems to me, every nation should have a roll of its citizens, and I cannot believe that honest citizens, having nothing to conceal, would object to such registration, as it would enable any one readily to prove his identity. On the other hand, it would greatly aid the police in detecting crime and would make the capturing of aliens smuggled into the country in violation of the immigration laws a much easier task.

There is every reason why we should be registered, and there is no reason that I can think of why we should object, unless we have a prison record or are engaged in illegal pursuits.

Hylan and the Sixty-Cent Dollar.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mayor Hylan says that "if the purchasing power of the dollar was worth more than the 60 cents which it is today, our 1925 budget would not be in excess of $300,000,000," instead of $338,964,228.

If I am not mistaken, the payrolls form a considerable portion of the budget, and in the large majority of cases the dollar is still purchasing a dollar's worth of service. That is, salary increases have by no means kept pace with the decline in the purchasing power of the dollar, nor with salary increases outside of the civil service. Therefore, the present value

P. A. B. WIDENER 2D WEDS MRS. PEABODY

IN THE REMBRANDT ROOM

Bride Is a Recent Reno Divorcee—Couple Sail Today for a Honeymoon in Europe.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Gertrude T. Douglas Peabody and P. A. B. Widener 2d were married today at the home of Mr. Widener's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener, Lynnewood Hall, Elkins Park, near here. The ceremony was performed in the presence of twenty relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom by the Rev. Charles S. Hamilton, pastor of Victoria Union Chapel, Swarthmore, Pa. It took place in the Rembrandt Room, containing fourteen Rembrandts of the Widener art collection. Mrs. Widener was formerly the wife of Frederick S. Peabody, Troy, N. Y., from whom she obtained a divorce last month.

The newly married pair will sail on the steamer Berengaria for a honeymoon in Europe and upon their return, before the Christmas holidays, will reside on the Widener estate at Elkins Park.

That Mrs. Peabody and Mr. Widener were to be married was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Oct. 22, a few days after Mrs. Peabody had returned from Reno, where she obtained a divorce from Frederick S. Peabody of Chatt, Peabody & Co., manufacturers of collars and shirts at Troy, N. Y. Mr. Widener's fortune is estimated at $30,000,000.

Mrs. Widener, who was Miss Gertrude T. Douglas, is a daughter of Mrs. Curtis Douglas of Albany and niece of ex-Governor Dix of this State. She has a daughter, Joan Peabody.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Thomson Douglas, and Miss Janet Adamson of this city was the only bridal attendant. Harry Freeman of Boston was best man. Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice of 901 Fifth Avenue went to Philadelphia to attend the ceremony.

Mr. Widener and his bride came to this city yesterday and spent last night at the Ritz-Carlton, and they will sail this noon for Europe on the Berengaria. They plan to spend the greater part of their wedding trip in Paris and the south of France.

SYLVIA CABOT'S BRIDAL.

Boston Girl's Marriage to Dr. Arthur M. Walker to Take Place Nov. 29.

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—Miss Sylvia Cabot, daughter of Philip Cabot of Milton and Lucy Fuller Cabot, and Dr. Arthur M. Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Walker of Chicago and Stockbridge, will be married Saturday, Nov. 29. The wedding will take place in the Unitarian Church at North Easton and the ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Frederick Lewis, minister of the church. Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the home of Mrs. Winthrop Ames at North Easton.

Miss Cabot is a member of the sewing circle and the Junior League, and Dr. Walker is a member of the staff of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The engagement of Miss Cabot to Dr. Walker was announced early in July, when she was taking a course in the training school for nurses at the Massachusetts General Hospital. Dr. Walker is a graduate of Williams College. He temporarily gave up his studies to go into war service overseas, where he won honors. He later entered the Harvard Medical School, from which he was graduated in 1923.

GEN. C. J. BAILEY TO WED.

Commander in World War Engaged to Mrs. Elizabeth H. Bailey.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 4.—An announcement was made today of the engagement of Major Gen. Charles J. Bailey, retired, who commanded the Eighty-first Division, American Expeditionary Forces, in the World War, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hegeman Bailey of this city, a granddaughter of Reuben E. Fenton, Civil War Governor of New York and later United States Senator.

AERIAL HONEYMOON ENDS.

Mineola Couple Flies to Elkton, Md., and Back.

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. J. King Wallace were at home today after their aerial honeymoon trip, the first of the sort to be taken in this vicinity.

Mr. Wallace and his bride, who was Miss Madeline Wells, flew to Elton, Md., Saturday afternoon from Curtiss Field, in a Curtiss "Oriole," were married at Elkton, flew to Philadelphia, spent Sunday and Monday forenoon with relatives of the bride, and flew back to Curtiss Field Monday afternoon.

MRS. HARDING IS BETTER.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Warren G. Harding is not out of danger, but her condition is much improved tonight, according to Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, her attending physician.

"Mrs. Harding evinced a deep interest in the election today," Dr. Sawyer said, "and she was otherwise very cheerful. This is a pretty good sign."

Mrs. Harding suffers considerably from an abdominal trouble that has not been fully diagnosed. This, Dr. Sawyer says, may be caused by a growth, or may be due to a bad liver.

"All in all, we feel considerably encouraged," Dr. Sawyer declared, "although in Mrs. Harding's case one can never tell what may happen any moment."

Throughout the city prayers are being sent up tonight for Mrs. Harding's recovery. The prayers come from hundreds who have been befriended in some way by her in the past.

Perhaps no resident of Marion was ever so greatly loved as this former mistress of the White House, and on every side there is profound sorrow because of her grave illness.

Dr. William C. Farabee Better.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 4.—Dr. William C. Farabee, eminent scientist and head of the University of Pennsylvania Museum of Philadelphia, was reported as improved today following a slight relapse a few days ago. Dr. Farabee has been able to live only through a series of blood transfusion operations. His condition took a turn for the worse a few days ago, but tonight he was stated to have shown improvement and to have gained the normal state of health enjoyed by him since he commenced his fight against death several months ago.

Dr. Marion L. Burton Weaker.

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—The condition of Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, President of the University of Michigan, was regarded as less favorable today. Dr. Burton has been suffering for the last few weeks with bronchial pneumonia.

Attending physicians today said Dr. Burton passed a restless night. "It became necessary," their report said, "to operate on the parotid gland, in which an abscess had formed, causing complications in the throat. Symptoms of failure of the circulation developed."

SOCIAL NOTES

New York.

REGINALD RONALDS DIES ON MOUNTAIN

New York Social Leader Stricken With Heart Disease While Climbing in Mexico.

Rough Rider With Roosevelt Was Owner of Properties With J. S. Cosden and Ralph Bloomer.

Reginald Ronalds, one of Col. Roosevelt's Rough Riders and for many years a prominent figure in New York society, a son of the late Pierre Lorillard Ronalds, died a few days ago, probably last Thursday, of heart disease while climbing a mountain near El Limon in the State of Sinaloa, Mexico, where he was inspecting gold and silver mines in which he was part owner with J. S. Cosden and Ralph Bloomer. A telegram received by Mr. Bloomer from the local mining engineer did not state the date of Mr. Ronald's death. The body has been sent to this city.

Of recent years, and to a lesser extent throughout his life, Mr. Ronalds had spent a good deal of time abroad. His mother resided for years in London, where she held an important social position as a favorite of Queen Victoria. Mr. Ronalds was about sixty years old. He graduated from Yale in 1886. He never engaged very actively in any business or profession until a few years ago, when he acquired a share of the Mexican mining properties. He was accustomed to visit them at this time of the year, usually with Mr. Bloomer, a neighbor of his at Garden City he had often visited while in this country. Only a few weeks ago he returned from a Summer abroad, with his sister, Mrs. T. Hay Ritchie, in London, and his brother, Lorillard Ronalds, in Paris.

Mr. Ronalds was twice married. His first wife was Thora Strong, daughter of President Charles H. Strong of the Erie & Pittsburg Railroad. They were married in 1906 and divorced four years later, the mother retaining custody of their daughter, known to the public as the "trapped baby" on account of the cold storage methods used to cure a childish illness.

On Oct. 4, 1917, Mr. Ronalds married Mildred Barger Combs, a divorcee, making over to her all his property, worth about $100,000, by a pre-nuptial contract that was sustained by the Supreme Court in an action brought by the Guaranty Trust Company to set it aside. Mrs. Ronalds obtained a divorce in Paris last May, with custody of the only child, a girl.

Francis J. Martinka.

Francis J. Martinka, for thirty-eight years a dealer in properties for magicians, whose little store in Sixth Avenue near Twenty-ninth Street was once familiar to New Yorkers, died yesterday of a complication of ailments at the home of his brother-in-law, A. H. Hejdemeyer, 73 Fourth Street, New Dorp, S. I. He was about eighty-three years old, and lived with his wife, Pauline, at 146 East Fifty-fourth Street. About five years ago he retired from business, stating that the popularity of magicians had waned of recent years. He spoke regretfully of the days of Hermann, Kellar and de Kolta, all of whom sought elaborate mechanisms from him. Services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, First Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street. Burial will be at Woodlawn.

Thomas J. O'Neil.

Thomas J. O'Neil, President of the Bank of Nutley, N. J., and Treasurer of the safety paper firm of George La Monte & Son, 61 Broadway, died yesterday at his home in Nutley of heart disease after a two years' illness. He was born in Easton, N. Y., in 1865 and settled in Nutley thirty-five years ago, thereafter taking a prominent place in the community. He was a Director of the Washington Trust and Eagle Fire Insurance Companies of Newark and a trustee of St. Mary's Church in Nutley, where services will be held at 9:30 tomorrow morning. His wife, two daughters and a son survive.

Funeral services for Supreme Court Justice Thomas F. Donnelly, who died Saturday at his home, 151 East Ninety-second Street, were held yesterday morning at the Church of St. Francis de Sales, Lexington Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street. The high requiem mass was celebrated by Monsignor John F. Brady, assisted by Fathers Donigan, Conran and O'Connell. Nearly every Supreme Court Justice, and many Judges and Magistrates from other courts, walked behind the hearse from the house to the church. Delegations were present from several social and political organizations of which Justice Donnelly was a member.

Edward C. Burrell.

Edward C. Burrell of 639 Lexington Avenue, general manager of the shipping firm of Funch, Edye & Co., 25 Broadway, died yesterday at the Neurological Institute, Lexington Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street, in his fifty-fifth year. Last August he was operated on at the institute for a cranial affection, and his condition then was considered serious. He came to this city from Augusta, Ga., and for a time was in the business department of THE TIMES. During the World War he was Assistant Director of Transportation for the British Ministry of Shipping. Burial will be at Augusta.

Judge Bertram L. Smith.

BANGOR, Me., Nov. 4.—Judge Bertram L. Smith of Patten, Justice of the Penobscot County Superior Court, died suddenly of heart disease early today as he was about to enter his automobile at a garage here. He was 68 years old. Prepare for Grand Duchess Cyril.

Mrs. Robert Lansing came from Washington, D. C., yesterday as the representative of a group of prominent women there to make arrangements with the Advisory Committe of the Monday Opera Supper Club for the visit of the Grand Duchess Cyril in Washington. The Grand Duchess will arrive in this country Dec. 1, as a guest of the club, and her visit will be so limited that she will be able to be in Washington only one day, Dec. 11. A large reception will be given there for her at the New Willard Hotel.

Chris Evans.

Chris Evans, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor from 1880 to 1894, and one of the veterans of the United Mine Workers of America, is dead at New Straitsville, Ohio. He was considered the originator of the joint conference system of reaching agreements between miners and operators. He proposed this plan after a series of disastrous strikes ending with the one at Hocking Valley, Ohio, in 1884. For many years he was the statistician of the Miners International Union, and at the time of his death was compiling a history of the miners' organization, of which two volumes have been published.

GABRIEL FAURE DIES, FAMOUS COMPOSER

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Gabriel Faure, one of the most famous contemporary composers, died at his home in Paris this morning. He was 71 years old. He was born in Pamiers in Ariege and commenced his musical career at the Niedermeyer School, where he was considered a prodigy.

His compositions were varied and included symphonic poems like "Pelleas," comic operas like "Penelope," ballets like "Masqués et Bergamasques," besides a number of songs and chamber music. One of his outstanding compositions was a requiem.

In 1909 he was made a director of the Paris Conservatory and in the same year he was elected a member of the Institute.

DR. EDWIN STERNBERGER.

Rites for Prominent Physician Held in Temple B'nai Jeshurun.

Funeral services for Dr. Edwin Sternberger, who died last Saturday at his home, 55 West Forty-ninth Street, were held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in Temple B'nai Jeshurun, the Rev. Dr. Goldstein officiating. The honorary pallbearers included associates of Dr. Sternberger in the medical profession. Dr. Sternberger died after an illness of several months.

Up to the beginning of this year he had been actively engaged in the practice of medicine. He was graduated from Cornell University and in 1890 from the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons, and had at various times been visiting physician at Mount Sinai, Bellevue and Sloan Maternity Hospitals. He was a Fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine.

During the World War he served overseas as Major in the Medical Corps, first with a field hospital and then as chief medical officer of the American hospitals in Paris. He returned to this city in March, 1919, and resumed private practice, both in New York and at his Summer home at West End, N. J. He is survived by his wife, three brothers and a sister, all of this city.

MORGENTHAU QUITS, REFUGEE TASK OVER

Negotiates Loan of at Least £6,000,000 as Head of League's Greek Commission.

OTHERS WILL ADMINISTER

More Than 1,000,000 Exiles From Turkish Territory Are Saved From Starvation.

Henry Morgenthau, former United States Ambassador to Turkey, has resigned as head of the Greek Refugee Settlement Commission, which administers the affairs of the Greek refugees under the League of Nations.

Mr. Morgenthau said last night that when he accepted the position it was for a term of one year only. The year has elapsed, and Mr. Morgenthau feels that as he has completed arrangements for a loan of from £6,000,000 to £10,000,000, to be used in aiding the refugees, the details of administering the fund should be worked out by his successor.

Mr. Morgenthau said that he had completed the work he set out to do and that now the mantle should fall on the shoulders of a younger man. He would not say who his successor would be.

Associated with Mr. Morgenthau on the commission are John Campbell of Great Britain and two prominent Greeks. The commission had the task of re-establishing a homeless refugee population, the greatest probably in the history of the world. More than 1,200,000 Greeks were driven out of Turkish territory by the Turks.

The refugees crowded into Saloniki, Macedonia, and other points from western Thrace, dependent upon Government doles and whatever assistance could be given by American and English relief organizations.

The commission obtained a loan of £1,000,000, which was followed by a loan of a like sum from the Bank of England last May to carry on its work until the Winter.

The loan that has now been arranged by Mr. Morgenthau and his associates will be subscribed by the Bank of England, the Bank of Greece and the Greek Government, and will be protected by the Greek Government, which has assigned certain revenues for the purpose. The money will be used to establish the refugees in the farming districts of Macedonia with land, buildings and equipment. These ultimately will be offered to them for purchase on the instalment plan.

MEXICAN DIVORCES ARE NOT LEGAL HERE

Embassy at Washington Declares That They Must Be Approved by the American Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Americans have asked many questions of the Mexican Embassy whether divorces granted in the State of Mexico have legal status in the United States. In response, the Mexican Embassy stated today:

"In accordance with general rules of law, decisions handed down by Mexican judicial authorities have no legal effect in the United States until such decisions may have been passed upon and approved by the appropriate courts of justice of the United States. Therefore, divorces granted by the courts of Yucatan will not be valid in the United States until they may have been approved by the respective courts in this country."

SEIZE ARMS IN KLAN RAID.

Loaded Pistols and Rifles Found by Militia in Town Near Niles.

NILES, Ohio, Nov. 4.—Troops here today dragged Mosquito Creek in an unsuccessful effort to locate bodies reported thrown into the water during Saturday's Ku Klux Klan-anti-Klan riot. Reports had been current that men were killed in the rioting and their bodies spirited away. Colonel L. S. Connelly, in charge of Ohio National Guardsmen still here, ordered the creek dragged.

A number of loaded pistols, shotguns and rifles and a quantity of ammunition, which, the authorities believe, were intended for use here Saturday, were seized by the militia in houses and shanties in McDonald, a steel town, two miles east of here today. The raiding party also procured information which is expected to uncover more firearms and ammunition and result in further arrests.

Lazo Demir was arrested and charged with illegal possession of weapons and insubordination. He was seen to leave a train with a rifle and was followed home, the raids resulting.

More than fifty witnesses have been examined by the military board of inquiry into Saturday's rioting. Eight arrests were made today, a majority for carrying weapons.

SEAMAN HELD FOR STABBING

When the tanker J. M. Dansiger, owned by the Pan-American Petroleum Company, arrived yesterday from Tampico detectives Winkelman and Dardis boarded the ship and arrested Jacques Rippe, a seaman, 24 years old, of 25 South Street, New York, on a charge of stabbing E. Newman, first officer of the American steamship White, in Tampico Harbor.

According to the seaman's story he was turned in forward on the night of Oct. 18, when the first officer came to the forecastle and ordered him to sweep the decks. When Rippe protested against the order he said Newman struck him and he stabbed the officer, who now is in the hospital in Tampico in a serious condition.

The United States Consul ordered Rippe to be sent to New York on the J. M. Dansiger and notified the New York police to arrest him on arrival. He will be arraigned today before a United States Commissioner in the Federal court.

STATEN ISLANDER STABBED.

Frank Traynor Seriously Injured—Two Others Are Accused.

Frank Traynor of 171 Winant Street, Elm Park, Staten Island, was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, West New Brighton, S. I., in a serious condition yesterday, having been stabbed on the chin. Two men who admitted having been with him were arrested on felonious assault charges. They were Walter Smith, 67 Cottage Place, Port Richmond, who had lacerations on his head, and Walter Garrigan, 22 Innes Street, Elm Park, who had lacerations on his neck.

A bloody breadknife was found near a candy store into which Traynor staggered, bleeding profusely. Twenty stitches were taken in his wound at the hospital. According to the police, Smith admitted having been in a fight with Traynor. Traynor was made a prisoner at the hospital and charged with felonious assault.

PROTEST GIFT FROM KLAN.

Jewish Congregation at Freeport Condemns Board of Education.

FREEPORT, L. I., Nov. 4.—The congregation of the Hebrew Temple Israel here, through its President, Louis Bender, made public today a resolution, passed Oct. 28, condemning the local Board of Education for accepting a flag and flagpole from the Ku Klux Klan.

In effect, the resolution stated that, since the schools were owned by people of all creeds and were maintained by money collected in taxes from all the people, the congregation objected to having the School Board accept favors from the Klan, which is avowedly opposed to Catholics and Jews.

On behalf of the Catholics, the local Council of the Knights of Columbus made a formal protest against acceptance of the Klan gift before the presentation was made.

LINER HERE ONE DAY LATE.

Countess D'Ars Among the Passengers Arriving on the De Grasse.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday from Havre on the French liner De Grasse was Countess F. De Brimond D'Ars, who is associated with Miss Anne Morgan in the reconstruction of devastated France. The husband and son of the Countess were officers in the French army and both were killed in the war.

Another passenger was Professor Henry J. Cox, who is in charge of the Meteorological Department of the United States Weather Bureau, Chicago District. He attended the International Scientific Conference at Madrid.

The liner arrived a day late because of heavy weather which began soon after leaving the Bay of Biscay. Captain Jules Robert, master, buried his wife at Havre the day before he sailed.

BEATEN AS HE LEAVES BUS.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Nov. 4.—Police are investigating an attack made on a passenger of a motor bus at Stratford. As he alighted and the bus drove away, somebody struck Samuel Campbell of Kirkwood on the head. Campbell walked to his home, a half mile away, and fell unconscious. He had been visiting a young woman in Haddon Heights prior to the attack. He is in a serious condition.

Mrs. J. Weiss Dies After Voting.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., Nov. 4.—Mrs. Jacob Weiss, wife of the organist of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church here, dropped dead on her return home at 5 Adams Street from the polls just before noon today. Mrs. Weiss suffered a paralytic stroke, according to a physician who examined her body, and death was almost immediate. She recently celebrated her twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

We Ordered 1,000 Fine English Wing Chairs

To Get the Price Down to $57.50

The year 'round price is $90

Such comfortable, cosy chairs as they are! Copies of one of the fine old models that used to sit sedately by a roaring English fire, while its occupant busily read Mr. Addison's Spectator and thought of the humming London of his day.

To-day a humming factory is busily turning out these fine chairs for you to sit in. To relax after a day of work. Just to sit in one of these chairs induces rest. They are so roomy. So comfortable. So carefully designed to place the body at ease. And they are ready for you now.

Covered with fine velours in plain or figured patterns. Oy in foliage tapestries, good to look upon. Made sturdily, as is all Wanamaker furniture. Made to last a lifetime and more. To become, one day, heirloom furniture.

As soon as the news gets around they will go out like hot cakes. To avoid disappointment, come in now, while choosing is ample.

Martha Washington Sewing Tables at $19.50

for the $25 grade
(With Colonial glass knobs, $20.50)

The famous sewing cabinet that has been popular since the days of powdered wigs and courtly manners. The cabinet that every woman needs—that most women want. Offered now at an extremely low price—because we have contracted for 1,000 of them.

Made throughout of solid mahogany, except for the drawer bottoms, which are of veneer, to guard against warping. Generously sized, with three drawers and capacious side pockets. Fluted legs. Concealed hinges in the top. In every way, true Wanamaker furniture.

"I Might Have Spent My Time to Better Advantage"

So many of us have to say this of ourselves.

The waste of time for want of planning its best uses is the costliest expenditure of our lives.

"Time is money," and it is much more than money.

To spend parts or all of our days in dawdling or gadding or in reading useless or bad books or upon wishy-washy amusements leads to all kinds of bankruptcy.

This applies to each of us personally.

BELMAISON
Reproduction Furniture

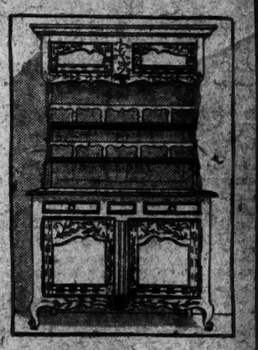
Provincial Furniture



Belmaison is particularly fortunate this Fall in its many charming reproductions of 18th Century French rustic furniture—those engaging pieces from Brittany, from Lorraine and the other provinces of France which are so rich in character and so adaptable to modern living. The reproductions are all imported and are, in all cases, accurate copies of existent pieces, faithfully reproducing the expressive lines and happy proportions of the originals. The prices are notably low.

A Louis XV. Breton Dressoir

Here are examples for various rooms, pieces which, by the way, one may quite consistently use with early American furniture, another of the many points in their favor. One of the most delightful is the Breton walnut dressoir, illustrated, rich in the highly decorative flower carving, so characteristic of Breton cabinet work. The two little vitrines above the open shelves are an amusing part of its very individual character. It is 7 ft. 4 in. high, 4 ft. 3 in. long and 18 in. deep. $250.

A walnut finished birchwood draw-top table, which would be appropriate to use in a room with this cupboard, is $90. A larger draw-top table of admirable Louis XV. design is $125. It is 4 ft. 3 in. long, extending to 7 ft. 6 in., 3 ft. 3 in. wide and 30 in. high.

A Carved Provincial Bed

A charming beechwood bed with richly carved ends of graceful Louis XV. contour is another particularly fortunate example in this interesting collection. 6 ft. 2 in. long, 3 ft. wide. $300.

And there are innumerable agreeable little inlaid poudreuses, tables de chevets and commodes, both large and small, to associate with it.

Peasant Arm Chairs

These with their gay coverings of quilted peasant petticoats most decoratively fill the need for a comfortable arm chair of a moderate size. $95. And one must by no means forget the hanging book-shelves and etageres of different types and sizes, as well as the many small tables of which 18th Century France created so many charming types.

MACDONALD QUITS; BALDWIN IS PREMIER

Labor Cabinet Holds Final Meeting and Decides to Drop Reins at Once,

KING SENDS FOR TORY CHIEF

Make-Up of New Government Is Expected to Be Announced Thursday Night.

ZINOVIEFF INQUIRY DROPPED

Labor Ministry Committee Finds It Impossible to Pass on Letter's Authenticity.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald this afternoon handed to the King the resignation of the Labor Cabinet.

King George immediately summoned Stanley Baldwin and entrusted him with the duty of forming a new Ministry. Mr. Baldwin accepted and sent out tonight his invitations to prominent members of his party to join his Cabinet. The full list is expected to be announced Thursday night and the actual transfer of office will take place Friday.

The committee of the Labor Ministry which has been investigating the Zinovieff letter issued tonight a statement announcing that it was impossible with the evidence before it and considering especially that only a copy of the letter had reached any Government department, to express an opinion on its authenticity.

The last meeting of the MacDonald Cabinet was held this afternoon at 10 Downing Street at 3 o'clock. A crowd of several hundred persons watched the members arrive, but the police closed the street, with the result that there were only a few sightseers present when about 5 o'clock it became known that the Cabinet had decided to resign forthwith. They raised a cheer as MacDonald left shortly afterward in his famous automobile to go to Buckingham Palace.

His arrival there was unnoticed and only half a dozen persons besides reporters waited for his departure from it. His interview with the King was over in three-quarters of an hour.

Meanwhile word had been sent to former Prime Minister Baldwin at his Secretary's house near Reading to be at the Palace by 7 o'clock. He came to town by train and was recognized and cheered at Paddington Station. He left the Palace a little before 8 o'clock and drove in a taxicab to his home in Eaton Square.

Will Choose Cabinet to Suit Himself.

Asked for news by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent as he alighted, Mr. Baldwin replied:

"I have been asked by his Majesty to form a Government.

"It may be presumed that you have accepted?" the correspondent said.

"Is it not the duty of every subject to obey the commands of the King?" came the counter query, and then Mr. Baldwin requested news of the American elections.

It had been said in Conservative quarters that Mr. Baldwin would form his Cabinet entirely to suit himself, that he had told no one of his intentions and would send out his invitations tonight to those whom he desired as Ministers without sounding their views or consulting any one.

Asked if these reports were authentic, Mr. Baldwin replied:

"Yes, they are substantially correct."

The following statement was issued tonight from Downing Street:

"The committee appointed on Oct. 31 to examine the authenticity of the Zinovieff letter, after hearing the departments concerned, found it impossible on the evidence before them to come to a positive conclusion on the subject. The original letter has not been produced to or seen by any Government department and action was taken on what was not claimed to be more than a copy.

"Unfortunately, in the short time available the committee found it was impossible to obtain evidence throwing further light on the matter."

Herbert Albert Fisher and Sir Martin Conway were re-elected yesterday as Liberal and Unionist Members of Parliament, respectively, for the combined English universities, embracing those of Durham, Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds, Sheffield, Birmingham and Bristol.

Lord Hugh Cecil Re-elected.

LONDON, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Stanley Baldwin, the new Prime Minister, will also be First Lord of the Treasury.

Sir Charles Oman and Lord Hugh Cecil, Conservatives, were re-elected to the House of Commons from Oxford University, according to the returns from last week's elections there, which were announced today. Sir Charles received 2,968 votes, Lord Hugh Cecil 2,901, and Professor Gilbert Murray, Independent, 2,832.

PASTOR, DANCE FOE, TO QUIT

The Rev. Dr. Charles W. Dane has resigned as pastor of St. Mark's Congregational Church, 461 Decatur Street, Brooklyn, and the principal reason is that some of the young people want to have dances in the church basement and he is opposed to dancing in any part of the edifice.

The congregation will hold a meeting Wednesday evening, Nov. 12, to act on the resignation, which Dr. Dane read to the congregation last Sunday.

Dr. Dane gave three reasons for proposing to end a pastorate of seven years.

"The pastor feels that he cannot conscientiously continue to serve a church where even an active minority insists on desecrating the house of God by using it for modern mixed dancing," he gave as his chief reason.

"The first was that he might have "freedom to accept a call elsewhere." The second was "inadequate financial support."

Trouble began last March, after a minstrel show in the basement of the church, when some of the young people started to clear the floor for dancing. Dr. Dane announced there would be no dancing there while he was pastor. The Vice President of the Board of Trustees said there would be dancing. Dr. Dane prevailed and the crowd dispersed. But the trouble recurred repeatedly.

Ship Cuts Ice Ten Miles to Save Teller, Alaska, From Starving

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Cutting through ice of the Arctic Ocean ten miles to deliver thirty-six tons of provisions, the United States Coast Guard cutter Mojave saved the people of Teller, sixty miles northwest of Nome, from starvation, according to members of the crew of the Mojave, which arrived today.

HERRIOT WINS FIRST FIGHT IN CHAMBER

ATTACKED ON MORGAN LOAN

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Amid even more than customary tumult, the French Chamber of Deputies met today to begin its new session. It spent the whole afternoon trying to fix a program for the next two months. The Government sought to have discussion of the budget begun immediately, with intermissions on Fridays for discussion of twenty-five interpellations which have been demanded, taking first in order those related to the high cost of living.

Premier Herriot made his request a matter of confidence and obtained 410 votes against 171.

Disturbance during the whole discussion was organized and incessant. Once two would-be orators tried to mount the tribune at the same time and President Painlevé was forced to suspend the session. On both sides of the Chamber it is evident political passion has developed during the recess to a point which foretells danger for any Government.

Among the subjects of attack was the renewal of the Morgan loan, but there Herriot scored heavily over his opponents. Pottou Duplessis of the Right bloc wanted to know why the Government was renewing a loan which, when in opposition, it criticized vigorously. Herriot rose immediately and replied that he was in no way embarrassed by the question, for conditions of the loan were quite different from those imposed last Spring.

"The advance made to France, for which we have to thank our American friends," he said, "was then qualified by an engagement on our part not to incur any new expenditure, notably for the devastated regions. I and my friends regretted the simultaneous character of these engagements. This time our American friends have proposed a renewal of the whole operation, but without condition, and the Finance Minister is now engaged in transforming this short term into a long term loan."

This answer was enthusiastically received by the Government's supporters, but failed to satisfy Duplessis, who continued to demand further information on the nature of the conditions of the Morgan loan until application of the ten-minute rule forced him to leave the tribune with the prophecy on his lips that he and his friends of the Poincaré party would be back in power sooner than anybody expected.

Among the subjects on which the Deputies are asking information and criticising the Government are the progress of the negotiations for a commercial accord with Germany, intentions of the Government to revise customs rates, status of the railroad companies and their relation to the State, speculation in flour and the attitude of the Government toward functionaries.

The Senate also met today and fixed Nov. 30 for the debate on the amnesty bill, which may cause the defeat of the Government in the upper house.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The settled policy of the Administration is against favoring loans by American bankers to countries to be used for military purposes, according to an interpretation made by a White House spokesman today in discussing the proposed loan to France.

The general policy of the Government, it was asserted, is to look with favor on loans made to sustain a monetary system, or install a new monetary system, such as were made recently to Austria and Germany. If the French loan comes within the purposes above and is not to be used in any military way, the President favors it.

WOULD BAR NOBLE TITLES.

Chamber Bill Seeks to End Legal Status of Nobility in France.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—A bill to stop official cognizance of the nobility and its prerogatives was introduced this afternoon in the Chamber of Deputies by Rene Renoult, the Minister of Justice. The bill does not attempt to abolish the titles, but by eliminating all Government recognition and protection, it would tend to gradually rob them of value and significance.

The actual object of the bill is to abolish the registering of titles with the Chancellery of the Ministry of Justice and the prohibition of the use of titles in any public acts.

At present, although France is a republic, the titles of her nobility not only are recognized, but they are protected. It is a crime by law to assume a title to which one is not entitled and it is a misdemeanor even to place "de" without warrant before one's name.

In explaining the purpose of the bill, the Minister of Justice said:

"It is not a question of abolishing in every-day life the use of titles of nobility which can be recognized as distinctions. The Republic has demonstrated by more than fifty years of existence that it has nothing to fear from this survival of the past. We feel, however, that there is reason to take from these titles all official character by suppressing their registration."

Leonard Reid Trial Set for Nov. 17.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Nov. 4.—Leonard Reid, son of the late Sir William Reid, who was President of the Reid Newfoundland Railway and other Colonial enterprises, pleaded not guilty today when arraigned in court, charged with manslaughter. Six men were killed, two of them British naval officers and two World War veterans, when Reid's car crashed into a group of veterans and then overturned, in an accident in the early morning of Sept. 16, as the veterans were beginning to return home after attending a reunion. Trial was set for Nov. 17.

CHI RESUMES WAR IN CENTRAL CHINA

HOPES TO USE 21 BRIGADES

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 4.—A general renewal of the war was declared tonight in an official communique issued from the headquarters of Marshal Chi Haieh-yuan of Kiangsu, stating that the Provinces of Chekiang, Hupeh, Shantung, Honan, Shensi, Anhwei, Kiangsu and Kiangsi have agreed to send twenty-one mixed brigades against the "Christian General" and his associates, General Chang Tso-lin of Mukden and the Anfu leader, Tuan Chi-jui.

The Chinese navy, stationed on the Shantung coast, has also declared allegiance to General Wu and is said to be assisting in the expedition against the present rulers in Peking.

Although no news is available here tonight regarding the destination of General Wu, who sailed secretly from Tientsin yesterday morning with troops, it is generally believed to be a Yangtze port, either Nanking or Hankow. Both places are virtually impregnable from attack from the North, on account of the distance and the difficulties of travel.

Would Block Wu's Plans.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PEKING, Nov. 4.—General Wu Pei-fu is aboard a Chinese cruiser with a bodyguard of 600, but his destination is uncertain. General Tuan Chi-jui has begun building an army independent of, but possibly including troops of Chang Tsao-lin and Feng Yu-hsiang. General Tuan said today that he had telegraphed the coastal Yangtze Provinces not to permit General Wu to attempt to establish a government.

General Wu delayed his flight until the retreating elements reached him, when he advised them to re-enlist in General Tuan's army. General Tuan is not likely to come to Peking now, but will probably remain in the British concession in Tientsin until his plans are formulated.

He is said to anticipate friction with the present Cabinet, which is endeavoring to negotiate a final Sino-Russian treaty before General Tuan becomes Dictator. General Chang Tso-lin is prepared to cancel the Manchurian independence provided he is cared for in the new Government, it is reported.

Tuan Bids for Wu's Soldiers.

TIENTSIN, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—Tientsin was quiet today after a peaceful night, the troops giving no trouble. The East Station still is crowded with the soldiery of Wu Pei-fu, deposed Peking war lord who has fled from this part of China. Some are armed, others are not. The soldiers of General Feng Yu-hsiang, who recently ousted Wu Pei-fu from power, have not occupied the station, although they are reported to be all around it.

It is not clear exactly what is happening, but apparently representatives of Tuan Chi-jui, a former Premier, are negotiating with the soldiers to transfer their allegiance, and are not disarming those who agree. It is reported Wu, before leaving here, instructed his troops to take orders from none but Tuan Chi-jui. Tuan also has sent delegates to Tangku, the nearest gulf port, to endeavor to pacify the soldiers there.

Although the soldiery here appear restive, there is no sign of any desire to renew the struggle, and many express a wish to be sent back to their native localities.

A private telegram from Paoting, southwest of Tientsin, said that fighting had started north and south of there yesterday.

TALE OF MONKEY-BEAR FORCE.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Oct. 8.—Peking is the centre of highly original war rumors, and the most freakish thing that has been put into print this week is the announcement that a brigade of bears and monkeys has been sent to the Northern front.

The monkeys, 'tis said, do scouting work by peeping over mountaintops, sniffing out the enemy before he is within gun range, and giving warning."

The bears are praised as experts in digging up and exposing mines.

Needless to add, "mixed brigades" assume a new meaning in the light of such statements.

It has suddenly been discovered that there is a lack of machinery for the manufacture of gas, gas masks and material for producing smoke screens, and agents of the military authorities are endeavoring to place orders for these now.

Not so very long ago some one in the Ministry of War, it is said, rejected a very favorable offer for bullet-proof waistcoats. All of these things are known to be in the equipment of the Northern forces.

PAPAL NUNCIO IN PARIS PROTESTS TO HERRIOT

Says Cabinet Minister's Criticism of His Speech Calls for an Official Apology.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Criticism by the Minister of Education, in a public address last week at Valence, of the recent speech made before the Catholic Institute in Paris by the Papal Ambassador to France resulted in the Nuncio today making a personal protest to Premier Herriot.

Minister Albert, in his discourse, objected to the term.

The Ambassador at once consulted with several other members of the Diplomatic Corps in Paris and in a "friendly protest" to M. Herriot he declared that the attack by a member of the Government injured his diplomatic prerogatives. In view of this fact he asked for explanations and expression of regrets.

It is understood that if the Nuncio does not receive satisfaction, he intends to call a meeting of the Diplomatic Corps and lay the matter before it.

Brazilian Warship Crew Mutinies, Fights Forts; Garrison at Pernambuco Also in Revolt

LONDON, Nov. 4.—News was received tonight at the Brazilian Embassy in London that a mutiny broke out today aboard the Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo, lying in the harbor of Rio de Janeiro.

The ship left the harbor, whereupon the forts at the entrance opened fire on her. The Sao Paulo returned the fire and at the time of cabling the fight between the battleship and the forts was still raging.

The rest of the navy apparently remained loyal to the Government. The Minister of Marine is aboard the battleship Minas Geraes in command of the loyal naval forces.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 4.—The Brazilian Embassy here today confirmed reports that the crew of the Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo had mutinied, seized the vessel and sailed outside of Rio de Janeiro harbor.

The embassy statement indicated that the battleship subsequently anchored outside and was being fired at by the harbor forts.

The garrison at Pernambuco has revolted, according to La Nacion's Montevideo correspondent, quoting a dispatch from Melo, near the Brazilian frontier.

ROGERS'S DEATH LAID TO POLE SPLINTER

FOUL PLAY THEORY DROPPED

Youth Who Called Doctor Testifies There Were Two Women in the Party.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—Coroner Eli Mix will file tomorrow his report on the death of Charles S. Rogers, nephew of Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid of New York, in an automobile accident about midnight Saturday night while he was returning with Miss Marjorie Schneider of 277 Lighthouse Road, and, it is believed, another girl, from a Wallingford inn after attending the West Point-Yale football game.

The Coroner said tonight he was satisfied that there was no basis for a foul play theory and no reason to believe that Miss Schneider's car, in which the party was driving, had been struck by another automobile.

A theory which the Coroner would not confirm, but which was reported to have been inferred by the evidence taken by him this afternoon, is that the open door of the Schneider car was struck by a telephone pole beside the North Haven turnpike or a sign projecting from it, the collision causing the car to careen toward the pole, which then struck the windshield at a point. This theory would account for the damage done to the windshield and door.

Rogers, it was learned today, was injured playing football when he was a student at Yale University several years ago, contracting a muscular trouble in a leg for which he underwent treatment in a New Haven hospital about a month ago. Because of the condition of his limbs he had opened the door of the automobile and had stretched his leg out. Miss Schneider was driving. It was stated, and just before the accident Rogers had suggested that she seemed to be driving a little toward the centre of the turnpike. She turned to the side of the road, and the open door struck the object projecting from the pole, it is thought.

An examination today of the automobile showed that the door and the mudguard directly in front of it bore the marks of a collision. The top of the car and the windshield were torn loose and the frame was warped as a result of the collision occurred a telegraph pole with splintered grain was found. A splinter protruded from it, and blood spots were visible on the turnpike a short space from the pole.

A statement made on excellent authority tonight was that Rogers's skull was penetrated by the object which hit the car. There was a hole in his skull about an inch deep, but it is understood that there was no fracture of the skull.

Miss Schneider is the daughter of August L. Schneider, proprietor of a large toy store at 373 State Street. She is a clerk in her father's store. All members of the family today refrained from making any statement. The family is prominent in church and social circles.

The accident was seen, it was learned, by two Wallingford boys, August Schultz and Clifford Johnson. They testified before Coroner Mix today.

Johnson said there were two girls in the car when he and his companion left the scene ofth e accident to call a doctor. But when, following a telephone call by Johnson, the police stopped a car he had described, they found it contained only Miss Schneider. Rogers, it was learned, had been in this city about four months and had been engaged to a prominent society girl here. The engagement was broken last month, it is understood.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The funeral of Charles S. Rogers, nephew of Mrs. Ogden M. Reid, who was killed in an automobile accident at North Haven Saturday night, was held at 6 o'clock this morning at Christ Episcopal Church at Rye. The Rev. Richard Henshaw, the pastor, conducted the short Episcopal service. The body was then taken to Grand Central Station, where it was placed on a train for Fond du Lac, Wis. Funeral services will be held in the Fond du Lac Cathedral on Wednesday afternoon.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Reid and Bishop B. T. Rogers of Fond du Lac, father of Charlie Rogers.

The body was accompanied west by Bishop Rogers and Mrs. Reid.

24 FAMILIES ROUTED BY FIRE IN HOBOKEN

None Injured, Though Several Women Become Hysterical—Four Blazes in an Hour.

Twenty-four families occupying four frame buildings at 114, 116, 118 and 120 Grand Street, in the Italian section of Hoboken, were driven to the street last night by fire, which was the fourth blaze to be reported in that city within an hour. None was injured, although five women became hysterical and required treatment by an ambulance surgeon from St. Mary's Hospital, and other excited tenants struggled with the police in efforts to return to the burning tenements and recover their possessions.

The fire was first observed in a woodshed attached to the rear of No. 116. Its origin was not determined. Smoke quickly filled the first structure, and, as flames appeared, the occupants of the other buildings were ordered out. Two alarms were turned in. Smoke spread to Nos. 114 and 118, which were rendered unfit for further occupancy by soot and water. No. 120 was not damaged, although the walls were wet down. Only the upper part of No. 116 was destroyed by flames.

PEEKSKILL BURGLAR FOILED

Policeman Interrupts Robbery of Clothing Store.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, Nov. 4.—A clothing burglar was foiled here early this morning by the opportune arrival of a policeman in the alley at the rear of Nathan Rood's store.

The thief took a stepladder he found in the vicinity and used it to enter the store through a window. As the policeman entered the alley he heard footsteps. Investigating he found twenty suits of clothes piled up and the door of the store open. The thief got away, but $500 worth of clothing was recovered.

EX-CONVICT SLAIN, FOILED IN HOLD-UP

"PAL" ESCAPES IN A TAXI

Proprietor, Whose Bullets Routed Thieves, Arrested for Violating Sullivan Law.

John J. Clark, alias John Murray, was released from Sing Sing Prison two months ago. Early yesterday morning, ten minutes after he had started on his first job of crime since his release, deserted by his "pal," he pitched into a West Twenty-second Street basement dead from two bullets that had drilled through his body.

It was 3 o'clock in the morning and the lights of the G. & J. Restaurant, Eighth Avenue and Twenty-second Street, were shining feebly. Five sleepy patrons were lined up against the counter. Arthur Gores, counterman, was cutting a pumpkin pie at the extreme end of the counter. Joseph Karpodines, one of the three proprietors, was back of the partition screening the "short-order" gas range.

A taxicab pulled up to the curb. Two men alighted. One passed into the restaurant, leaving his companion at the door. The third member of the band sat at the wheel. Hand in his right side overcoat pocket, the entering man walked over to the counter near the cash register.

"Hands up, everybody!" said the man, moving his revolver in a slow half-circle to take in all.

Everybody obeyed and the man reached over and rang the bell, opening the register. As he dipped a hand in and grasped the $27 in the three tills Karpodines looked through the small opening through which the orders are handed. He took in the scene at a glance. A year and a half ago the restaurant was held up and $70 taken. Since then Karpodines had carried a .32-calibre revolver.

Fired Through Opening.

Karpodines fired twice through the opening. Although the range was short, the restaurant man missed in his excitement. The man at the till dropped the money and fled. He rushed to the curb, but the lookout was safely into the taxicab and a frightened driver was crowding the machine for all it could make in a wild flight.

Deserted and desperate, Clark paused for a second. Then he ran for Twenty-second Street. Two block away Policemen Graubert and Riggs of the West Thirtieth Street Station had heard the shots. They looked up the avenue and saw Karpodines, firing wildly, in pursuit. Overtaking him they heard his story told in a few gasps and they darted into Twenty-second Street.

Graubert is a member of the department's Riot Battalion. He is a crack pistol shot. Riggs also is an expert marksman. As they spotted the fugitive they saw Policeman Kiernan turning into the street, far down at Seventh Avenue. Graubert and Riggs opened fire on the fleeing man.

He faltered, staggered, then ran uncertainly to the sidewalk. He headed toward the low iron railing around the basement of 259 West Twenty-second Street. By a coincidence Karpodines lives there. Clark leaned slowly against the rail. Then he collapsed gradually and pitched to the three stone steps leading to the basement areaway. He rolled slowly to the bottom and was motionless.

Found Fugitive Dead.

Because of the peculiarly slow movements of the man the two policemen, suspecting a ruse, approached cautiously. They found him inert, however, and when they got him to the sidewalk found him dead.

Karpodines had returned to his restaurant and when Policeman George B. Reid questioned him found, according to the police, that he had no permit to carry his weapon. Karpodines was arrested on the charge of violating the Sullivan law.

Detectives at first did not know the identity of the dead man. Searching his pockets, they said, they found a letter addressed to John Foley, 74451, Ossining, N. Y. The missive discussed various prisoners at Sing Sing. Later Clark's father identified him. The police said that Clark was arrested on Jan. 19, 1921, on a grand larceny charge, but was discharged. His police headquarters record, they added, disclosed that on Oct. 2 of the same year he was rearrested. This time he was charged with unlawful entry and was sent to the reformatory by Judge John F. McIntyre in General Sessions.

The police said that Clark was arrested in Boston on June 4, 1923, charged with being a suspicious person, but there was no record of the disposition of that charge. On July 13, 1923, under the alias of John Murray, he was sentenced to Sing Sing prison by Judge Morris Koenig for from one and one-half to two and one-half years for attempted felonious assault.

1 KILLED, 1 HURT BY TROLLEY

Men Struck as They Cross Street at East Rutherford.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N. J., Nov. 5.—One man was killed and another was probably mortally hurt when they were struck by a trolley car on Paterson Avenue, East Rutherford, early today. The dead man was William Cole of 660 Fifth Street, North Bergen. The injured man is Fred Eger, of the same address. Eger is in the Hackensack Hospital, still unconscious.

Witnesses said the men had been repairing an automobile in the roadway and were about to cross the street when the trolley suddenly bore down on them. Carl Sciopa of Carlstadt, the motorman, was released by the police pending an investigation. Witnesses said he was not to blame for the accident.

EPILEPTICS UNDERGO TEST.

172 of 900 Patients Found Susceptible to Scarlet Fever.

SKILLMAN, N. J., Nov. 4.—Administration of the Dick test to the 900 inmates of the State Village for Epileptics here disclosed that 172, or 15 per cent. are susceptible to scarlet fever, Superintendent Davis F. Weeks announced today. Dr. Weeks said that doses of the scarlet fever serum would be given to the 172 to immunize them. The percentage of susceptibles is said to be normal.

CROWD'S CRIES HALT DEATH LEAP AT FIRE

TWO FAMILIES NEAR DEATH

Inquiry Leads to Detention of Suspect—Mourners Put Out Tenement Blaze.

Two families narrowly escaped death yesterday when fire swept through three of the five floors at 81 West Fiftieth Street, driving residents in adjoining houses to the street. Firemen fighting the stubborn blaze were handicapped by a peculiarly heavy black smoke.

The shouts of more than 1,000 persons on the platforms of the Sixth Avenue elevated station and in the streets stopped a man as he was about to jump from a window, eighty-five feet above the street, until the arrival of ladders. The reserves of the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station were called when the crowd tied up operation of the Sixth Avenue surface line.

An elderly man, who said he was Anthony Jeddo, or Jello, was held by the police. He was detained at the request of Fire Marshal Brophy pending an investigation of the cause of the fire. He was seen to stagger out of the smoke belching from the front door immediately after the fire started.

A passing errand boy saw smoke coming from the front door. He ran over to Andrew J. Gilbraid, who was sitting in his taxicab at Sixth Avenue and Fiftieth Street. Gilbraid turned in an alarm and then hurried to the house, which extends up Sixth Avenue a third of the distance to Fifty-first Street.

The fire, starting in a closet under the second floor stairway, spread with rapidity. It leaped up the well of the stairway and mushroomed at the top. Dense clouds of smoke spread choking darkness through the upper floors. On the top floor, still in bed, were the families of William Hayes and Fred Williams. Aroused by shouts, Hayes carried his wife to the fire escape on the Sixth Avenue side of the house. He then went back and guided his three children, William Jr., James and Madeline to safety. His task was simple compared with that of his neighbor, Williams, whose children, Mary, Tessie and Gladys, ranging from 13 years to 16 months, by this time were feeling the effects of the smoke. Williams, carrying Gladys, appeared at a window leading to a fire escape, but was forced back.

James McDonald, head waiter at the Calumet Club, 911 West Forty-ninth Street, saw Williams's difficulties, and hurried up through the smoke to the fire escape. He carried the baby to the street and Williams managed to follow with the other children.

McDonald, a bachelor salesman, on the third floor, was ill in bed. The shouts of the crowd aroused him, and he managed to get to the window of his apartment, weak and dizzy from the smoke. He hung over the ledge of his window, seemingly ready to leap or fall. While the crowd was shouting to Stinglass to hold on, firemen under Battalion Chief Dennis Curtin arrived. An eighty-five-foot extension ladder was rushed up the side of the house and firemen carried the man to the street.

Firemen made short work of the blaze and then, because of its nature, the Fire Marshal began an investigation. Otto Reissky, proprietor of the Broadway Custom Shirt Shop, on the second floor of the building, told the Fire Marshal, according to the police, that fifteen minutes before the fire was discovered he had seen Jeddo or Jello on the second floor, near the closet where the fire started.

Quick action by a party of mourners at the bier of Rosario Pierno on the second floor of the five-story tenement at 240 Mulberry Street prevented what might have been a serious blaze at noon yesterday. A candle on a table fired the bedclothes in an adjoining apartment.

Pierno died Monday night, and about twenty persons were gathered around his bier in the rear apartment. The front apartment is occupied by Vincent Gilarco, his wife and their daughter, 6 years old. Pierno was a brother of Mrs. Gilarco. The short circuit occurred in a wire extending from an electric light socket to a small red lamp kept burning at a shrine above the child's bed.

The girl was passing through the room when she saw the cord suddenly sputter and drop burning bits of insulation on the bedclothes, which instantly caught fire. She notified her father, who summoned the mourners. A bucket brigade was formed and the blaze quickly extinguished. Meanwhile some one sent in a call for fire headquarters. The blaze was out when the firemen arrived.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA NAME AMBASSADORS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—The French Government consented tonight to receive M. Krassin as the Soviet Ambassador to France and at the same time it definitely announced that Jean Herbette, former foreign editor of the Temps, would be sent as France's Ambassador at Moscow. These nominations were discussed and the consent of each Government was exchanged this evening at the interview between M. Herriot and M. Rakowsky at the Quai d'Orsay.

M. Rakowsky arrived in Paris from London this morning, but he was not received by Premier Herriot until late in the day.

M. Rakowsky, while waiting in the Premier's salon, had as his companion Fethy Bey, President of the Turkish Chamber of Deputies, who has just returned from Brussels and also was waiting to see M. Herriot.

The interview between Herriot and Rakowsky lasted half an hour, and its result was a surprise to every one, as it was thought that Rakowsky himself would be made the diplomatic representative of the Soviets here. There is no doubt, however, that Krassin's nomination is satisfactory to the French people, as he, more than any other Bolshevik, is known for his moderation.

M. Rakowsky is returning to London tomorrow, but will visit Paris again in preparation for the financial and economic conference, which will begin about Jan. 10.

There is a report in Paris tonight that a bomb was discovered this morning at the Russian Embassy by servants and that at the same time a letter was received by Rakowsky warning him that wherever he settled, the building, with his staff, would be blown up. The story, while credited in the Russian colony, was news to the police, although it is declared that the bomb was sent to the prefecture.

PLAN WORD DUEL IN BERLIN.

Hedin and Ossendowski, Asiatic Explorers, to Settle Row by Debate.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4.—A unique scientific duel between Sir Sven Anders Hedin of Sweden, well known through his discoveries in Tibet and Trans-Himalaya, and Ferdinand Ossendowski, explorer and author of books on Asia, will be staged in Berlin in the near future.

Dr. Hedin publicly denounced statements in Ossendowski's books as deliberate falsehoods and fantastic fabrications and challenged him to a public debate. The author, who is now in Egypt, accepted the challenge and agreed with his opponent upon Berlin as their meeting place. The date has not yet been set.

Paris Burglars Loot Flat Of Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Returning to her Paris apartment today after spending the Summer in Switzerland, the Tyrol and Italy, Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey discovered that the place had been looted by burglars.

Furs said to have cost more than $12,000 and several other objects of value were among the property taken.

This is the second theft within a year of which Mrs. Corey has been the victim. On the previous occasion, when she lost a pearl necklace, she prosecuted her chauffeur, who had hidden two of the pearls in her automobile.

3 KILLED BY AUTOS; 2 POLICEMEN HURT

GIRL OF 8 IS RUN DOWN

Three Injured in Crash With Trolley—Boy Victim of Accident Dies in Hospital.

Two children and a woman were killed, two policemen hurt, one seriously, and several persons were injured in automobiles accidents in the city yesterday.

Mrs. Emma Schomlank of 358 Hilltop Avenue, Leonia, N. J., was killed, and her husband Menasseh, and their son Arthur, 11, were injured, when an automobile in which they were riding collided with a motor truck owned by the Standard Oil Company, at Cooper Street and Evergreen Avenue, Brooklyn.

The automobile was pushed upon the sidewalk and into the plate glass window of a grocery. Mrs. Schomlank was crushed to death. Her husband received body injuries and the child lacerations on the head, face and hands.

The truck was driven by Arthur Jordan of 148 North Eighth Street, Brooklyn. He was taken to the Ralph Avenue Police Station to be questioned. Police said they believe the accident was caused by a misunderstanding of signals.

Drs. Levy and Millio of Bushwick Hospital treated the man and boy, both of whom were taken to the hospital in ambulances. The body of Mrs. Schomlank was removed to the Kings County morgue.

Jane Albricht, 8 years old, of 415 East 139th Street, the Bronx, was run over and killed by a truck driven by Nabo Piccinini of 517 East 183d Street, the Bronx. The child was struck while crossing the street at Willis Avenue and 139th Street. Piccinini was arrested.

Edward Newman, 6 years old, was run down and killed by a motor truck operated by a male negro while playing in a vacant lot near his home at 465 Bliss Street, Long Island City. The truck is said to have been driven by Bernard J. Fax of 114 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, Queens. Fax took the boy to St. John's Hospital in Long Island City, where he was pronounced dead of a fractured skull.

Riding his motorcycle at Nagle Avenue and Academy Street, Inwood, last night, Patrolman John Monahan collided with the rear of an automobile and was seriously injured. Isidor Horowitz of 1,915 Kelly Street, the Bronx, owner and driver of the car, was locked up in the Washington Heights station, charged with felonious assault. The injured patrolman was taken to Jewish Memorial Hospital.

Horowitz, accompanied by his wife, their daughter and son and Samuel Diamond of 1,689 Clark Street, were going west on Academy Street when the accident happened.

Patrolman Francis K. Gunther, 37 years old, attached to the Wadsworth Avenue Station and living at 413 East 147th Street, was knocked unconscious when he collided with an automobile driven by William Hennessey of 9 Pinehurst Avenue, at 204th Street and Sherman Avenue. Gunther was chasing an automobile speeder.

Three persons were hurt, two of them seriously, when an automobile in which they were riding struck and overturned by a Gravesend trolley car at Fort Hamilton Parkway and Gravesend Avenue, Brooklyn.

The automobile was driven by Charles Pasiglia of Bergenfield, N. J. In the back seat were his wife and Handen Moody, a friend, also of Bergenfield. Witnesses told the police that the automobile raced the trolley car and tried to cross in front of it. Pasiglia received cuts and lacerations on the head and hands. His wife and Moody received bodily injuries. They were taken to the Kings County Hospital in an ambulance. The automobile was demolished. There were only a few passengers in the trolley car. They were shaken up, but not hurt.

Wallace Bettes, 12, of Montclair, died during the night in Mountainside Hospital of a fractured skull received on Monday when he was struck by an automobile driven by John Murphy, 18, who had no driver's license.

Three boys were injured, one of them seriously, in Montclair, N. J., when a motor truck on which they were standing a ride got out of control of its driver and crashed into a standing trolley car on the Bloomfield Avenue incline on Orange Mountain. The boys are Joseph Vribula, 15, of 220 Morris Avenue, Newark; John Grebey, 14, of 231 Bruce Street, Newark, and Paul Palenik, 120 Elm Place, Irvington.

NORFLEET SAVES HIS HOME.

Texas Nemesis of Grafters Who Lost $45,000 Procures Quick Loan.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 4.—Frank Norfleet, ranchman and Deputy Sheriff at Hale Centre, who lost one fortune to confidence men and spent another in chasing them to earth, has saved his home from a creditor. A loan, made yesterday, resulted in lifting the mortgage just as a foreclosure suit was to be filed.

Norfleet, carrying $45,000 in cash to a Fort Worth bank, fell in with fake stock salesmen and market players in 1919. Tipped off by them, he saw small investments soar to large sums and then was persuaded to risk his entire fortune. The fake market wires ticked, his stock fell and the bogus salesmen and investment agents fled with the $45,000.

Placing a mortgage on his home, Norfleet took up the chase. One he caught in Florida, another in Utah, another in California, another in Washington. He traveled 18,000 miles in three years. All of the "salesmen" have been convicted and either are in prison or are dead.

CHILD DISCOVERS A FIRE.

Warns 8 Families, and All Flee Building in Brooklyn.

Eight families living in a four-story brick dwelling at 448 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, last night reached the street in safety when Margaret Diamond, 12 years old, alone in her home on the top floor, smelled smoke coming through the dumbwaiter shaft and gave the alarm. Two alarms were sounded. The fire was extinguished after more than $10,000 damage had been done.

The origin of the fire was not determined. It is believed, according to the police, to have started in the dumbwaiter shaft in the cellar. The cellar is used as a perfume manufactory.

RADIO SHOW DRAWS SCHOOLBOY ARMY

Hundreds of schoolboys took advantage of the holiday yesterday to lead their fathers to the radio exposition at Grand Central Palace. They went from booth to booth, viewing the latest designs of radio sets and gathering descriptive literature. One exhibitor furnished paper bags which many of the boys filled with pamphlets.

One father, whose boy apparently had visions of hearing all the broadcasters in the country, said: "I promised my boy if he would stop biting his nails I would buy him a radio set. He has fulfilled his part of the bargain, so now it is up to me."

A new member of the neutrodyne group was introduced at the show yesterday. It was the American Radio Research Corporation, the final licensee of the Hazeltine Corporation to get into production. The new neutrodyne departs from the standard construction of this type of receiver. Although five tubes are employed, only one tube is used as a radiofrequency amplifier, with the neutrodyne principle of magnetic and capacity coupling neutralization. The remaining tubes are employed as detector and three stages of audiofrequency amplification. Most neutrodyne sets use two radiofrequency amplifiers, a detector and only two stages of audiofrequency amplification. The advantage of the new arrangement is that there are only two tuning dials, instead of three.

The Amrad Corporation, Medford Hillside, Mass., was one of the first of fourteen manufacturers to obtain a neutrodyne license. Its arrival in production completes the full manufacturing facilities of the fourteen authorized concerns now engaged in construction of neutrodyne receivers.

There are not as many parts exhibited at this show as in previous years, and manufacturers point out that the cost of complete sets is much lower and there is an increasing demand for the finished product. Leading manufacturers of complete receivers and battery concerns reported yesterday that they have been forced to increase production and put on extra workers to meet the demand. This is reported to be especially true in connection with storage "B" batteries.

The entire third floor of the Palace was turned into a dance hall last night. Music was furnished by an orchestra directed by Vincent Lopez, and Eddie Cantor was master of revels. The proceeds will go to the Actors' Fund of America and the Roxy Radio Fund.

WAHABI ARMY MASSES FOR ATTACK ON JEDDAH

King of Hedjaz Decides to Defend City—British Official Moves for Peace.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 4 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Warfare between the Wahabis and King Ali of the Hedjaz is expected to be resumed in the next few days around Jeddah, according to advices from there. The Wahabi forces are said to be preparing for a new offensive and King Ali is reorganizing his army and receiving reinforcements through Akaba. It is said that he will defend the city.

John Philby, British political adviser to the Transjordanian Government, who left London on a secret mission three weeks ago, has arrived in Jeddah, according to information received here. It is stated that the purpose of his mission is to start peace negotiations between Ibn Saoud, leader of the Wahabis, and King Ali. Philby, who is considered an authority on Arab matters, visited Ibn Saoud's capital in 1918. He headed a Wahabi mission to England two years ago, one member being Feisal, the son of Ibn Saoud.

Sheik Achmed, the leader of the Senussi, has arrived in Damascus on his way to meet Ibn Saoud, with whom, it is reported, he will confer on the question of the Caliphate. Sheik Achmed is closely associated with the Angora Government.

FLORIDA CURBS SCHEMES.

Development Board Maintains Stock Promotion Censorship.

Satisfactory headway in curbing the activities of salesmen of wildcat stocks and promoters of dubious investment schemes in the State of Florida, it is reported by the Florida Development Board, is resulting from the most recently adopted tactics in the board's campaign to protect citizens and visitors from this evil.

Neither warnings to the public nor legal prosecutions having appreciably lessened the amount of cash taken out of the State annually by the sale of worthless stocks, the Florida Development Board created a Stock and Industrial Promotion Censorship Committee to deal with such concerns. It is empowered to investigate suspects and where deemed advisable institute court proceedings, but depends on publicity concerning its findings as its principal weapon.

Since appointed the committee has not found it necessary to pass upon a single case, but a number of promoters have ceased activities upon being asked to furnish complete statements for the information of the committee. Most of the cases came to the attention of the Florida Development Board from Chambers of Commerce Secretaries or other board members who had received suspiciously glowing prospectuses, which were forwarded by them to the central office in Jacksonville.

The promoters then were asked to give more definite information about their scheme, its resources and the men back of it; but instead of this being forthcoming, those particular opportunities to get rich quick hastily faded out of sight.

The banks of the State are also beginning to make use of this service. One prominent banker passed on for investigation an investment project which had been submitted to a client of his, the facts discovered leading to the conclusion that the proposition was a long gamble and the chances of ever getting back money put into it very poor.

Although the committee continues to urge citizens to consult their bankers before making any investments, it counts on its own activities to eventually convince unscrupulous promoters that Florida is no longer a happy hunting ground for them to prey upon.

Paraguay Signs Peace Protocol.

GENEVA, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—The Protocol for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes, drafted by the Assembly of the League of Nations at its last session, has been signed by Paraguay, it was announced at League headquarters today. More than a dozen States have now signed the protocol, but thus far it has been officially ratified only by Czechoslovakia.

More Tax Payments Made Public Here; Third District Office Open on Holiday

With an audit to be completed the office of the Third Internal Revenue District, at 250 West Fifty-seventh Street, remained open yesterday, and the Government records of income tax payments continued to be available for public inspection.

While Collector Charles W. Anderson did not come to the office, members of the clerical staff were there. One was detailed to the work of supervising the opening of the tax books, but the only inquiries came from newspaper men. The books were placed at the disposal of the press representatives. They disclosed only the name and address of the individual, the amount of tax and such payments as had been made, whether in full or in instalments.

The Third District office was the only one to remain open. Both the office of the Second District in the Custom House and that of the First District in Brooklyn were closed.

Additional payments disclosed in the Third District were as follows:

FILES SUIT TO TEST PUBLICITY ON TAXES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—A test case to determine the legality of the publication of income tax returns was filed today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court by Gorham Hubbard, 933 Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair are named defendants and are charged with having violated constitutional amendments by having permitted and threatening to permit the publication of such returns.

Attorneys Frank N. Fay of Boston and Clinton Robb of Washington set forth the allegation, on behalf of Mr. Hubbard, that "the provisions of Section 257, Paragraphs A and B, of the act of June 2, 1924 (1924 Income Tax law), making said tax returns public records and permitting and requiring such publication, and other provisions of law to the same effect, if any there be, are unconstitutional and void, the Constitution of the United States and amendments thereto conferring no powers upon the Congress thus to invade the right of privacy" of the citizens.

Mr. Hubbard also declares that the publication or threatened publication constitutes an unreasonable search and seizure and damaged him.

While the Court is asked only to prevent the threatened publication of income tax returns at Boston, the case will affect the publication of returns in every other district. The plaintiff does not mention any newspaper or any person as having published any returns.

INDIGESTION ONLY AILMENT OF ESKIMO

TELLS OF MEAT DEBAUCHES

Says It Is Nothing for a Boy of 15 to Devour Five-Pound Steak.

After living with Eskimos in the primitive Eskimo way for most of a year and a half in order to record every phase of Eskimo life during the year, Earl Rossman of New York City returned to this city on Friday with 30,000 feet of films, including pictures of the aurora borealis taken by color process.

Eskimo medicine is of the simplest kind, according to the photographer and explorer, consisting simply of the eating of raw meat as a cure for anything that goes wrong.

"The Eskimos never have anything wrong with their health except occasional indigestion from tremendous fits of overeating," he said. "When they have a lot of meat they eat it up as fast as they can. It is nothing for a fifteen-year-old boy to down a five-pound steak at a sitting.

"They eat nothing but fish and meat. They are never afflicted with any of the diseases of civilization that are commonly traced to meat-eating. Cancer is unknown. Many of them live to great ages and they are exempt from sickness, with the one exception of discomfort from gorging. Vegetables and fruits are, of course, unknown.

Found Arctic Friendly.

"I found the Arctic the friendly Arctic that is pictured by Stefansson. I had never been there before and had no training for it, but I was able, by living with the Eskimos and living their lives, to keep healthy and hearty. The secret of living in any strange place is to live as the natives do."

Rossman confirmed the discovery of Stefansson that raw meat is a cure for scurvy by putting himself on a raw meat diet when he found himself growing weak by living on canned foods.

"I was soon strengthened and in good shape by eating raw meat," he said. "It contains vitamines against scurvy, as shown by Stefansson, and the Eskimos know by experience that it is the thing for them when they are not feeling quite fit. I found the Eskimo diet fairly palatable. It consisted of raw whale skin, known as muck-tuck and tasting like sour cocoanut; walrus, seal, polar bear, ptarmigan and caribou.

"In still air I found the weather at 50 below zero not worse than a cold day in New York, but at 30 below with a strong wind the chill was intense and no amount of clothing could keep you warm out of doors. But by studying the Eskimo methods of building shelters you can live all right in the Arctic."

Failed to Reach Wrangell.

Mr. Rossman devoted himself exclusively to the study of the Eskimos between Point Lay and Point Barrow, the northernmost point of Alaska. For a considerable part of the time he occupied Amundsen's cabin at Wainwright. He attempted one voyage to Wrangell Island, but was turned back by the ice.

"Wrangell Island undoubtedly has great strategic importance. It has a future as an air base in dirigible travel over the North Pole. I have no doubt that eventually there will be great air traffic over the top of the earth because of the short cut that can be made in this way between certain cities of this country and of Europe. Wrangell Island is wonderfully situated in this respect.

"Another thing that was impressed on me was the need of a Government radio station at Point Barrow. This would be of the greatest importance for shipping entering the Arctic and would encourage development in that part of the world. One of the factors in this development will be oil, which has been found in vast quantities east of Point Barrow. Members of the Geological Survey were mapping the oil region while I was there and they told me that it constituted an oil field of tremendous importance."

NEW TRADE TREATY.

Canada Signs Favored-Nation Compact With Netherlands.

Canada has concluded a trade treaty with the Netherlands Government which arranges for the favored nation treatment between the two countries. The treaty has been signed by the Minister of Trade and Commerce on behalf of Canada and by the Consul General of the Netherlands in Canada on behalf of that country. Merely the approval of the Parliaments of both countries is needed to make the treaty operative.

The trade between Canada and the Netherlands in the last fiscal year amounted to nearly $15,000,000. Exports of wheat alone to the Netherlands from the Dominion amounted to $4,844,965 in value and of wheat flour $1,267,418. Other grains were exported to the Netherlands to the value of approximately $750,000. Exports of soft coal from Canada amounted to $473,678 in the fiscal year, condensed milk to $402,315, automobiles to $240,493, and lard to $154,028. Other commodities which Canada exports to the Netherlands in appreciable quantities are canned salmon, dried apples, oatmeal, sugar, asbestos, oil cakes, meats, garden tools and small harvesting machinery. Concerning this trade and the new treaty, the Canadian Pacific Railway says:

"Canada's imports from the Netherlands amount to about five and a half million dollars, or a little more than one-third of the total trade transacted. The chief articles of import are cocoa, butter, gin, bulbs, nursery stock, electric lamps, carbolic or heavy oil, incandescent lamp bulbs, zinc and toys.

"The Netherlands trade treaty is the latest step taken by Canada in a vigorous trade aggression which has marked recent years and follows similar treaties concluded with France, Italy, Belgium and Spain, while a similar preferential treatment agreement is expected to be shortly concluded with Australia.

"This trade expansion has been an outstanding feature of Canada's post-war development, and rapidly the Dominion has extended her business until she is exporting her goods to one hundred countries while importing from seventy-seven. Furthermore, she has concluded such favorable trade arrangements with so many of them that the Dominion probably carries on her business today on more advantageous terms than most countries and therefore offers the greatest inducement to manufacturers in other lands to locate in her domain and use Canadian export facilities."

Marquis Wheat in the Argentine.

The members of the Canadian Seed Growers Association are highly elated at the success that has been attained in the introduction of marquis wheat in South America. This wheat was developed at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa and is now the leading variety grown in Canada and the United States. Last year a carload of marquis wheat was shipped to Buenos Aires, but owing to adverse weather conditions it arrived late for seeding. Notwithstanding this fact the grain was sown and was most successfully harvested at the end of December, giving forty-seven bags to the hectare, with a specific weight of 61 pounds. This success in South America would appear to indicate that a wide field is open for marquis wheat in countries to the south as well as others, and the Canadian seed grain growers are preparing to supply the demand.

What is your impression of Alaska?

EVERYBODY has some impression of Alaska. Some think of gold. Some think of snow. Some think of coal. Some think of lovely girls with Indian nurses, of House Peters, blue revolvers, dog sleds, and mounted police.

Most of these impressions are confused and inaccurate.

It doesn't hurt you to have people uncertain about Alaska. But it doesn't do you any good to have people as hazy about your business as they are about Uncle Sam's great northwest territory.

The way to get people to think the same thing is to tell them the same thing.

If you knew the forty different ideas that forty different prospective customers probably have about your firm and your goods, you would drag a printer out of bed to help you set them right.

You would, if you knew the printer could do it. The printer can. It was printing that taught you the multiplication table. This same force that taught you that six times six is thirty-six can teach your customers and prospects the right answer to questions that come up about you, your firm, your goods, and your work.

Direct advertising is not a thing to do because you have to, or because someone has told you that it pays. It is something to do with the definite purpose of getting ideas that are in your mind into the minds of people you want to sell to.

Talk to your printer about what you are trying to do. Talk about what you want to say and the best way to say it.

Use booklets, folders, illustrated letters, house organs, broadsides as a way to say something. You can say anything with ink and paper. Say the right thing and say it to the right people.

better paper ∞ better printing

The simple way to prepare effective direct advertising is described in a series of books published by S. D. Warren Company. These books are known as the "More Business Series." You can obtain them as they are issued, without cost to you, from any distributer of Warren's Standard Printing Papers.

Delivering manufactured goods—handling inbound shipments—interplant short hauls—these are a few of the strenuous tasks performed almost daily for years by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company's sixteen Pierce-Arrow trucks.

This company recently said, "First truck put in service in October 1912, and has been in constant service ever since. We feel safe in saying that this truck will operate efficiently and economically for a long time to come.... We operated this one 4½ years without an overhaul . . . . Our second truck placed in operation in October, 1913, has a record equally as good."

"The mileage of our two oldest Pierce-Arrow trucks averages 7,500 miles per annum. The average cost per ton during the past year on our trucks operating in St. Louis is extremely low."

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

The Philadelphia Orchestra.

Nicholas Medtner, who might be called a "neo-classic" Russian composer and whose music is as yet little known in this country, made his first appearance in New York in the double capacity of composer and virtuoso when he played his piano concerto in C minor with the Philadelphia Orchestra, Leopold Stokowski, conductor, last night in Carnegie Hall. By some Mr. Medtner has been called a "Russian Brahms." He is, evidently, a very serious musician, a virtuoso of brilliant equipment and a man who does not write in a slap-dash manner to secure public approval. He has avoided the ballet and opera house and has composed up to the present time principally piano works and songs. Mr. Medtner is now 45 years old. The concerto heard last night, his most pretentious score, was written in 1918 and was first produced in Moscow, the composer's birthplace, by that most beneficent friend of Russian composers, Serge Kussevitsky.

This concerto is in one lengthy movement. It is essentially classic in conception—in its form which has, in condensation, the qualities of the symphony; in its treatment of keys, which, interestingly varied and tinged with modern color, is nevertheless on long-established lines; in its whole development and feeling. Lisszt wrote one-movement concertos—especially that in A major—which have, for all their symphonic devices, an inherently rhapsodic and unsymmetric spirit; while Medtner's concerto, as unmistakably, is a work of classic mold.

At a first hearing the C minor concerto impresses more by the combination of brilliancy and substance in the writing than as a work of arresting originality of invention. The piano writing is expert, ingenious and highly effective; the combinations of piano figures with orchestral colors and accentuations are hardly less so. There is not only "linear" and contrapuntal treatment of material, but also a rhythmic development which assumes more and more interest as the work comes to its conclusion.

Mr. Medtner played with the conviction of the composer, with ample physical and technical power, with dazzling virtuosity. In the statement of themes, in the singing of lyrical passages on the key-board, in all that was required for purposes of exposition he was the master. His rhythm carried orchestra and audience with it. A poorer work would have been made successful by such tactics. The composer-interpreter was repeatedly called back to the stage.

The program opened with the most dramatic overture ever written—Beethoven's "Leonore, No. 3," and such was the spirit of music and performance that the orchestra was brought to its feet to acknowledge the applause. It continued in classical vien with Mozart's E flat symphony and came to an end with the pulsing, barbaric dances from Borodin's "Prince Igor." Conducting these dances Mr. Stokowski made the most of the wildness and the lordly stride of the music. Appropriately, where Borodin supplied the palette, he laid on colors and sonorities, and spared not. Only one other Russian, and he in literature and not in music, equalled Borodin in the expression of the spirit of the winds and the steppes. He was Gogol, in "Taras Bulba"—a work to which, even more than "Igor," Borodin owed an opera.

As is the rule at the concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra, the audience packed the hall and demonstrations of enthusiasm were long and loud.

"LA BOHEME" ON BROADWAY

Metropolitan Also in "Marta" in Brooklyn—Next Week's Operas.

Metropolitan stars, following their season's gala opening, were heard in opera in two boroughs last night, when the company's Brooklyn series began with "Marta," sung at the Academy by Alda, Howard, Gigli and Didur. The home stage on Broadway offered a special holiday performance of "La Bohème," with Bori, Hunter, Fleta, De Luca, Picco and Rothier.

Operas next week will include "Lohengrin" on Monday; with Jeritza and Laubenthal; Wednesday, "Andrea Chenier," Easton and Gigli; Thursday, revival of "Tales of Hoffmann," with Bori and others already announced; Friday matinee, "Fedora," Jeritza and Martinelli; Friday evening, "Mefistofele," Chaliapin, Alda and Gigli; Saturday matinee, "Meistersinger," Rethberg, Laubenthal and Whitehill, and Saturday night, Nov. 15, "Rigoletto," Mario, Fleta and De Luca.

Balokovic, Violinist, Heard Again.

Zlatko Balokovic, whose introduction as a violinist last Spring in a marathon of sixteen recitals made his name known to many and his merits at least to those technically concerned, chose election day for his return in a fairly attended matinee yesterday at Carnegie Hall. He was assisted by Miriam Allen in Mozart's concerrto in D and a modern "First Sonata" in D minor by John Ireland. Mr. Balokovic's romantic style and stirring tone further appeared in Herbert Hughes's "Irish Air" for G string, Manojlovic's "The War Widow's Lament" and pieces by Smetana, De Bruce, Moszkowski and Naches.

"A Steam Roller" Here Monday.

"A Steam Roller," a new play by Laurence Eyre, will open at the Princess Theatre next Monday night, Nov. 10, with Janet Beecher and Bruce McRae starred. The cast further includes Olive Wyndham, Ernest Cossart, Thais Magrane, Catherine Proctor, Helen Chandler, Fairfax Burgher and others; and the piece is under the management of George Baker.

MISS CHRANE WINS SUIT.

Gets Award of $7,500 Damages From Ex-Representative Herrick.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—A jury in Circuit Court today awarded $7,500 damages to Miss Ethelyn Chrane in her suit against former Representative Manuel Herrick of Oklahoma because of statements he made which, she charged, had reflected upon her character. She was formerly his stenographer.

The statements were made in a declaration by Mr. Herrick filed in support of a suit he had brought against Miss Chrane for $50,000 damages for alleged breach of promise to marry him. Trial of the latter suit will proceed at once before a new jury panel.

Drowned Man Found in Bay.

The body of an unidentified man was found in New York Bay off Governors Island yesterday and has been taken to the Manhattan Morgue. The man was apparently about 45 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in height, weighed about 170 pounds and was dressed in a dark suit, white shirt, dark collar and tie, white underwear and tan shoes.

BILLIE BURKE GIVES DELIGHT IN NEW ROLE

"Annie Dear," a Rich Musical Comedy With Fantasy, Played by a Splendid Company.

ANNIE DEAR, a musical comedy in two acts. Book, music and lyrics by Clare Kummer; dances and additional numbers by Sigmund Romberg and Clifford Gray. Staged by Edward Royce; produced by Florenz Ziegfeld. At the Times Square Theatre.

Muriel Darling	Marjorie Peterson
Alec	Spencer Bentley
Lottie	May Vokes
Wenceslaus Wickham	Edward Allen
James Ludgate	Spencer Charters
George Wimbledon	Ernest Truex
Titcomb	John Byam
Twilly	Bobby Watson
Ethel Deane	Phyllis Cleveland
Wilbur Jennings	Alexander Gray
Gwen Morley	Mary Lawler
Alfred Weatherby	Jack Whiting
Mr. Gosling	Frank Kingdon
John Ransom	Marion Green
Harry Murchison	Gavin Gordon
Annabelle Leigh	Billie Burke

The prodigal Mr. Ziegfeld has bestowed another of his rich and lustrous productions upon the town, and the rejoicing in Forty-second Street last night was accordingly considerable. This time he has made a musical comedy out of Clare Kummer's "Good Gracious Annabelle," of pleasant memory, and he has further helped it by giving it Billie Burke and a generally sterling company. The name of the new offering is "Annie Dear," and it is to be seen at the Times Square Theatre.

Miss Kummer's musical version of her own comedy has been imminent for several seasons, but it remained for Mr. Ziegfeld to give it a production such as the author probably never dreamed of. From the standpoint of musical comedy the results are first-rate, but any one who goes to the Times Square Theatre in the expectation of seeing anything of Miss Kummer's comedy will go in vain. Its graceful but slender humors come only occasionally to the surface, and early in the final act they disappear entirely. It was here that Mr. Ziegfeld decided to be quite frank about it, and the piece is brought to a close by a woodland fantasy that has nothing to do with the case, tra la.

It is in its leading players that "Annie Dear" is particularly fortunate. Miss Burke proved to be altogether delightful in the leading rôle, and her voice, while not robust, was of pleasant quality. With the opportunities provided by musical comedy, she was never more lovely to look upon. It is Ernest Truex who turns up in the Edwin Nicander rôle, and he is always highly amusing with no more than slender aid from the librettist. Moreover, he has not forgotten his musical comedy days, and he sings and dances his single number in finished style. Then, too, there was Marion Green, singing, it seemed, even better than he ever has before. And there was also May Vokes in her old part—and, regrettably, not in the least amusing.

The fantasy of the final act is a costumer's holiday—one of those things in which the creatures of the wood come to life in the persons of chorus girls. It is, in fact, so comprehensive a whimsy that everything from French pastry to flowers and thunder may be seen stalking the stage. But it was all quite charming, and it afforded an opportunity for some astonishing dancing by a team named Easter and Hazelton.

Miss Kummer's score fails pleasantly upon the ear, and so do the occasional interpolated numbers by Sigmund Romberg. If the gentle haphazardies of the book do not seem to be quite the stuff that riotous musical comedies are made of, there is always entertainment to be had by looking at Mr. Ziegfeld's silks and satins, and by observing Miss Burke, Mr. Truex and Mr. Green.

Tractor Bucks Like Bronco, Kills Man and Causes Suit

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 4.—A farm tractor, designated as a "killer" in a petition filed here by Thomas D. O'Connor, forms the basis for a suit for $789 entered in Circuit Court against the Pleasantville Motor Company. The petition cites that the tractor bucks like a bronco and turns over without warning, as a result of which one man has been killed and several others badly bruised.

O'Connor alleges the company promised to repair the tractor, took it away and then slipped it quietly back into his barn. He asserts the only difference noticeable in its operation since adjustment is that it is a bit more balky.

THREE MUSICIANS ARRIVE.

Hofmann, Rosenthal and Hubermann Gave a Concert on the Majestic.

Three noted musicians arrived from Europe yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic to make concert tours through the United States. Josef Hofmann, pianist, who was brought up on the east side in New York City, said that he had played in London in the Spring and Fall, had given several concerts in Paris and spent the hot months, July and August, at his home on Lake Geneva, Switzerland. He added that he had perfected his device for recording piano music on music rolls and would demonstrate it in this city during the season.

Moritz Rosenthal, the pianist, said that he had been to St. Moritz and Bad Gastein, in Austria, for the Summer, and had given concerts in Vienna, Cologne, Warsaw and other cities in Poland. He said that he had been working upon several new preludes during the Summer. He will leave in a few days for the Pacific Coast.

A Polish artist on board the Majestic was Bronislaw Hubermann, the violinist, who said that he had been on a six months' concert through Europe.

The three virtuosos gave a concert in the lounge on Sunday evening, which resulted in a collection amounting to nearly $600 for the benefit of the Seamen's Widows and Orphans Fund in New York.

Reception to Firmin Gemier.

A reception in honor of Firmin Gemier, director of the French National Theatre of the Odéon, whose organization begins a brief season at Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street Theatre next Monday night, was held in the rooms of the French Institute of the United States, 599 Fifth Avenue, yesterday afternoon. A large crowd of distinguished social, literary and theatrical celebrities was present in honor of the French director.

Addresses were delivered by Mc-Dougall Hawkes, Chairman of the Institute's Board of Trustees; Gaston Liebert and M. Gemier. French songs were sung by Miss Hortense Dorvalle, accompanied by Remo Taverna.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"New Brooms," by Frank Craven, will come to New York on Monday night, Nov. 17, at a theatre yet to be announced. The cast will include Robert McWade, Blythe Daly, Robert Keith and Jack Devereaux.

"Moon Magic," by Rita Welman, is announced for production by Lewis and Gordon.

The Grand Street Follies" will end its run at the Neighborhood Playhouse on Sunday night, Nov. 16. The first play of the new season, "The Little Clay Cart," will open late in November. It will be followed by "Exiles," by James Joyce.

3 KILLED, 2 WOUNDED IN ELECTION SHOOTINGS

Election Judge Is Slain in Tennessee—Voter Shot in Chicago as Result of a Union Feud.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—One man was shot and killed and another probably fatally wounded in a revolver fight near a polling place today. Early police reports indicated that the shooting was connected with factional trouble of a teamsters' union.

Anton Rudzinski, the man killed, had found a line of men ahead of him and, fearing he would be late at work, started to leave. Then the shooting occurred.

The shots were fired from a black automobile. The police learned that several men shortly before had appeared at the polling place and asked for Michael Hastings, said to be Democratic precinct captain.

It was said Hastings objected to accompanying the men who had called him and turned away and the shooting started.

Reports of abductions of political workers and threatened encounters with revolvers came from two West Side precincts soon after the Rudinski shooting and police squads were rushed to the two polling places.

JACKSON, Tenn., Nov. 4.—G. W. Bartholomew, election judge at Middleburg, and his son, J. D. Bartholomew, are reported to have been killed and W. W. Rogers wounded today.

Dan G. Powers, defeated in the August primary as Republican candidate for Magistrate in Henderson County, is said to have fled after the shooting.

100 BOATS ARE BURNED.

More than 100 rowing shells were destroyed when the boathouse of the Lone Star Boat Club at 153d Street and the Harlem River caught fire shortly after midnight. The boathouse was one of the oldest structures of its kind on the banks of the Harlem River, having been built more than a quarter of a century ago.

Andrew Lindoken, a fireman of Engine Company 41, was cut about the hands. After his injuries had been dressed by Dr. Arches, the Fire Department physician, he was sent to the Harlem Hospital.

Rumania's New Land Bill.

The collection of laws restricting the rights of foreigners in Rumania has now been increased by the addition of a new bill enacting that rural landed property can only be inherited by Rumanian citizens. Should a Rumanian landowner die and leave his property to a foreigner the latter will be obliged to live in the country and acquire Rumanian citizenship, in default of which the property will be sold by auction under the control of a Government official and the proceeds will be passed to the foreign inheritor after deduction of death dues and other taxes, says the European Commercial of Vienna. Only rural property or such town property as is used for agricultural or market gardening purposes is affected by this decree.

WAR ON FIELD MICE IS KEPT UP

Department of Agriculture Is Ready to Cooperate in Any Effective Method of Extermination.

The mouse may be weak, timid and cowering, as described by Robert Burns, but to the farmer he is more to be dreaded than the biggest thing with four feet, or wings, which hunt unlawfully upon his property. All other living things with four feet may be controlled with greater ease than the mouse, because they are bigger and hunt more courageously in the open fields and orchards. The hunting bird is often a fair mark with a shotgun and when one of them is killed it serves as a warning to all others of that breed.

But a mouse is very small and is without sense or courage. He gropes in deep cover, dig little holes near a tree and, having reached the submerged trunk, begins patient gnawing of the bark. He goes around the tree, eating as he goes, and when a ring of bark is removed, leaving a clear way for the sap to run out and the frost to strike in, he goes away to another tree and begins all over again the work of destruction.

sporadic forays of these make upon the mice is rapidly overcome by the rapid breeding qualities of the little rodent. The greatest damage done to the trees by mice is in the Winter when the ground is covered with snow and all of the enemies of the mice are fast asleep beneath five feet of rock and earth, or beyond reach because of the thickness of the snow." In a publication describing the damage done by mice in the woods and fields, just issued by the Department of Agriculture, methods of killing them are set forth. But first the publication tells why they should be warred upon and exterminated, if ways can be found to bring this about. Of the damage done, the publication says:

5,000 Trees Girdled.

"One record of 5,000 trees girdled in a large Kansas orchard is noteworthy, as all of this injury was done before the middle of December, during a mild, open Winter, with an abundance of grain and grass present. Again, during the dry season in the Fall of 1920, orchardists in California were greatly troubled by meadow mice, the loss in one orange grove being 1,300 trees. Such examples indicate the need of protection against mice at all seasons."

It is asserted by James Silver, who prepared the publication for the Government, that thousands of valuable trees, both young and mature, are killed every year throughout the United States through the depredations of field mice. It is alleged that the damage wrought by the mice to pasturage, forage, grain and other crops, and to tubers, small fruits, flowering plants and shrubbery, amounts to millions of dollars a year.

Mr. Silver says that the kinds of crops damaged by mice are practically without limit and that "Little discrimination is shown by the mice in attacking fruit trees, although it seems probable that a mild preference is shown for apple trees and an antipathy for the bark of cherry trees. Recent reports from Connecticut tell of the destruction by field mice of nearly 60 per cent. of an orchard of 9-year-old apple trees; the killing of 2,000 of the 3,000 pear trees in another orchard; and the total destruction of a plantation of 300 young peach trees. Shade and forest trees also are often damaged.

"An investigation of the damage by these mice in a New York State park revealed serious injury to young hardwood trees and the complete girdling of over 1,000 six-year-old Scotch pines in a five-acre block."

It is explained that to make an accurate estimate of the average annual loss to the nation from field mice is not possible "but undoubtedly it runs into millions of dollars annually." How this idea of the large loss was obtained, Mr. Silver says:

Losses in New England.

"A number of years ago, through the agency of fruit-tree growing contests in Maine, records of a large number of young fruit trees revealed an annual mortality of 15 per cent., half of which was estimated to have been caused by the work of mice. A survey of orchards in Connecticut provided the basis for an estimate of the loss of nearly $500,000 to orchardists through operations of field mice during the severe Winter of 1919-20. Following this mouse plague, the Massachusetts Extension Service sent out a questionnaire to the fruit growers of the State, the returns from which showed a loss of $125,000 in orchard trees. In the Valley of Virginia, following unusually severe injury by mice, an inspection of orchards in 1918 disclosed losses in excess of $200,000 in a single county."

Many ways of warring upon the pests are described by Mr. Silver running all the way from poison, traps and paints and smears to washes and wire screens. He says:

"The most common form of repellant is an undiluted lime-sulphur solution. While very useful, its effectiveness is short lived and it must be renewed several times during the course of the average Winter. The addition of a pound of glue to a gallon of the concentrated lime-sulphur will increase the adhesive and persistent qualities."

The more mice, Mr. Silver says, the greater the number of their enemies, which appears to be nature's remedy for an oversupply of anything. Of the living things that serve to keep the mice beneath the point when they would drive out humanity, according to the pamphlet, are, besides owls and hawks, shrikes, cranes, herons, ibises, crows, magpies and road-runners. Among the mammals that feed upon the little pests are foxes, badgers, raccoons, opossums, skunks, minks, martens, weasels and shrews. In concluding his pamphlet Mr. Silver says:

"When field mice become so excessively abundant as to menace the fruit trees and crops of a whole community, concerted effort of all the residents is required to control the situation and possibly to avert a disastrous plague of mice.

"A serious outbreak of mice in 1922 in the famous fruit-growing sections of the State of Washington was promptly checked through a cooperative poisoning campaign organized under the supervision of specialists of the Biological Survey working in cooperation with the Extension Service of the State College of Washington. Twenty-two thousand pounds of poisoned baits were prepared and distributed with telling effect by 150 orchardists in one county alone. The United States Department of Agriculture stands ready to assist as far as possible in the organization of such undertakings."

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5.—Henry A. Gate, Vice President and traveling representative of a New York jewelry firm, reported to the police shortly after midnight that gems valued at approximately $200,000 had been stolen from his room in a local hotel.

The police said that it probably was the largest theft of the kind ever reported in the South.

HOLDING UP THE MIRROR.

Sage of Battery Park Comments "on the Sights" There.

"Sure, an' it's a mirror the average person is needin'," said Mara Farraday, "Sage of Battery Park," informing a few companions at the park's sole meeting hall, the Soda Shoppe, the other day.

"Only just now, as I was comin' here, I seen a incident that's a parable to my remarks. From one of the steamship offices a woman come out, dressed in the gaudiest purple I ever seen, with a skirt that was so short her picture would look like a clippin' from The Police Gazette. Her hat was so broken and crumpled that it made her look like a drowned cat.

"That sent me into spasms of laughter. Then, I hears a cackle of glee at my elbow, an' who does I see but the funniest guy in the city, a exact picture of a vaudeville actor, with a broken nose, a derby with a hole in the top an' a suit that would've won him a prize at a mask ball.

"I almost took a fit when what does this guy do on seein' the dame, but pipe up, 'Now, ain't that a scream?' Over it grunts a yes between haw-haws, and then beats it.

"That got me. There was a guy, laughin' till the tears come into his eyes, at a sight which he thought was funny. I wonder what would happen if he ever seen himself. I s'pose he'd go into hi-sterics or sumpthin'. But he'd never acknowledge that it was him.

"After listenin' to the comments that were made on his speech by his comrades, the Sage departed. Then the meeting broke up, the audience discussing the short but pointed address as a congregation discusses a sermon after services. The Sage had put his message across as no parson ever could.

REPTILIAN NESTING HABITS.

How Those of the Crocodile and the Alligator Differ.

The mounted crocodile and alligator specimens at the American Museum of Natural History are made more interesting by a study of the nesting habits of these creatures, the young of which are raised in strange nurseries.

The female crocodile digs a hole in the sand which is larger in circumference at the bottom than at the top. This interior is built in the shape of a mound at the centre and when the eggs, twenty or thirty in number, are laid, they roll down about the edges of the trench. The mother then proceeds to fill the hole with sand and leaves the eggs therw to incubate. The process of incubation covers about twelve weeks, and when the young crocodile is ready to emerge from its shell, it makes a squeaking noise and uses the sharp point on its snout to cut a hole in the end of the egg through which it creeps forth. The mother then clears the sand from the nest to allow the young ones to creep down to the near-by water, where they are able to care for themselves.

ZEV BEATS GOSHAWK IN PIMLICO SERIAL

Running in Old-Time Form, the Son of The Finn Wins by Length and a Half.

ARBITRATION IS VICTOR

Special to The New York Times.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 4.—Zev won the first of the Pimlico serial weight-for-age races here today like a once-great champion should. For long enough to beat Gifford A. Cochran's swift-running Goshawk, Major August Belmont's Lucky Play and Mrs. Katherine Hitt's Fee to Peep, he was the Zev of old, the brown whirlwind that showed his heels to the best of them a year ago. He shouldered his scale weight of 130 pounds and came from behind to wear Goshawk down and win by a length and half and going away.

Zev's victory was the most popular of the day with the big holiday crowd, which had made him an odds-on favorite with a steady play that kept the iron men clicking from the time they opened until they closed.

The winner's share of the purse was $2,066, which doesn't mean as much to a horse that has won around $300,000 as it does to a selling plater, but adds just that much more to a record total, nevertheless.

In the last five starts Zev has been in front at the finish exactly five times, three of them coming on successive racing days at Latonia. It is evident that Trainer Sam Hildreth hopes to sweep the three serial races with the brown horse and if Zev's recent form is any criterion he will make the opposition do some lively stepping to beat him even at the longer distances of the next two races.

Zev Is Off First.

Zev won the third of the series a year ago and Goshawk, the placed horse today, also ran second to Bunting in the first of the contests twelve months ago. The second race of the present series will be run next Saturday and the third and final one a week from Thursday.

Zev was on tiptoe when Starter Jim Milton released the webbing and was first to show in front in the field of four, but Laverne Fator took him in hand immediately and Pony McAtee rushed Goshawk out to make the pace. The Whisk Broom colt had his speed and soon opened up a lead of three lengths. Fator did not allow the Rancocas star to drop too far back, however, and as the son of The Finn struck his stride he gradually cut the pacemaker's advantage until at the turn he was only a little more than a length back.

Goshawk still was moving along nicely as they straightened out for the run to the wire, but McAtee, glancing back over his shoulder, saw the brown horse closing on him and he lost no time in going to the whip. Fator also roused Zev with a single cut of the lash and then sat down to hand ride the favorite to the finish.

Step by step and stride by stride Zev wore the faltering leader down, and when he looked Fator in the eye a sixteenth out Goshawk was done. He folded up and Zev came on to score handily. The crowd gave the winning horse and rider a fine reception when they returned to the judges' stand. Zev paid $2.70 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels and ran the six furlongs in 1:12 flat over a fast track.

Not all the favorites fared so well as Zev—not even his stablemates Bruna and Cypress, the choices in the maiden two-year-old race, which opened the program. The winner was Mrs. H. Acker's Pettibocker, at $6.90 to $1, or $15.80 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

Another surprise winner was Samuel Ross's Arbitration, which nosed out the heavily played favorite, Noah, in the third. A $2 ticket on Arbitration was worth just $41.80 after the pari-mutuel board went up. Eddie Barnes held the Ross gelding under restraint until the stretch was reached, where he sent him up around the leaders and got him home by the scantest of margins in a whipping finish.

Master Hand is Victor.

As was no more than right on election day a son of Ballot earned brackets when P. H. Sims's inconstatent Master Hand ran to his best form and galloped off with the closing number. The place went to Valor, another outsider, and the improving Red Wine was third. This one was away slowly, but was going fastest of that at the finish. He could have done better with a better break.

Vicaire won the Mount Washington Steeplechase at two miles for the Rai Carr-Simon Ralherty entry, with A. C. Bostwick's Chuckle second and Vox Populi 2d, third. The entry was favored and paid $1.90 for $1.

EPINARD WILL SAIL FOR FRANCE TODAY

Wertheimer Colt Will Occupy Old Quarters on F Deck of the Berengaria.

Epinard, Pierre Wertheimer's French colt, was taken on board the Cunarder Berengaria yesterday forenoon at Pier 54, North River, to begin his journey back to France and placed in the quarters on the F deck that he occupied on the voyage over. The Berengaria will sail at noon today.

Four other horses were shipped on the liner to be stable companions of Epinard on the voyage. There was no trouble in getting the French four-year-old to walk up the gangway, as Peter, the Airedale terrier, his constant companion, trotted up ahead of the horse and kept turning and looking up at his equine chum to show that all was well.

Three of the longshoremen on the lower pier started to tease Peter and fool around Epinard until the terrier turned on them and bit them each in the leg. The ship's surgeon who cauterized the wounds said that they were not serious. The dog had torn their trousers with his sharp teeth and drawn blood sufficiently to warn the men to keep away from the race horse while Peter was about. Dr. Doherty, the senior surgeon of the Berengaria, said that it was wonderful to watch the affection between the Airedale terrier and the colt.

"When Epinard came on board at Southampton, on the voyage out," Dr. Doherty continued, "the horse was sulky and would not touch his food on the way over to Cherbourg. When we arrived at the French port Peter came on board, as the dog had not been allowed to go to England because of the Board of Trade regulations. Directly Peter went into the loose box and barked round the feet of his chum Epinard raised his head and neighed with joy, and then began eating up his chopped carrots and other choice things provided for him with evident enjoyment. They were inseparable on the voyage."

Dr. Doherty said that Chief Steward William Ballyn has ordered carrots, of a special kind grown in New Jersey, for Epinard to eat on the voyage home.

GAMBLE CAPTURES BLEMTON STAKES

PHILLIPS HURT IN FALL

Jockey Picked Up Unconscious After Being Thrown From Griffwood in Steeplechase.

William Ziegler Jr.'s chestnut filly Gamble, by Sir Martin—Guesswork, captured the Blemton Stakes, a dash of seven furlongs for two-year-olds, the featured number on the final day of the two-day meeting of the United Hunts Racing Association at Belmont Park yesterday afternoon. Carrying 109 pounds and coupled with her stable companion as the 7 to 10 favorite, the filly ran the distance in 1:23 4-5, with Buxton in the saddle. The race was worth $1,920 to the owner of the winner. The latter also won a piece of plate and an additional $250 gained by Mirador, which ran third.

There was a serious accident in the running of the Cherry Malotte Steeplechase over the two-mile course. At the Liverpool jump in front of the clubhouse the first time around the Greentree Stable's South Tipp came down and Walter H. Bowes's Griffwood fell over him. S. Burns on South Tipp quickly got to his feet, escaping with a shaking up.

W. Phillips, who had the leg up on Griffwood, was less fortunate. He was thrown heavily and the old gelding rolled over him. He was picked up unconscious and taken to the jockeys' house. There he was given a hasty examination by Dr. John A. Voorhies, who ordered his immediate removal to the Mary Immaculate Hospital in Jamaica.

At a late hour last night Phillips's condition was reported good. The injured rider had regained consciousness and it was expected that an X-ray would be taken this morning to determine whether there was concussion of the brain.

Added Starters Run.

There were two added starters in the Blemton Stakes, D. C. Landegs sending in Irish Marine and the Greentree Stable taking a chance with Jolly Roger, making a field of six. They were off to a good start, Hunt sending F. Penn Smith Jr.'s The Spa out into the lead. Buxton held Gamble well placed back of the pace, took her around the leader on the turn for home, and in the drive for the wire outgamed Irish Marine. After making the early pace The Spa stopped to finish out of the money. Mirador was outrun at the start, closed a big gap and was up to take the short end when The Spa quit. Final times for the miles were 0:24 2-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:12 4-5, 1:25 4-5.

Twelve were scratched out of the second half of the double event for hunters over the brush course of about two and a half miles, leaving half a dozen to go to the post. Mount Defiance, Richard Whitney's old bay gelding, repeated his victory of Saturday in the first part, running out in front all the way to win easily by five lengths from the Hunting Valley farm's doubtlet. Dr. Mr. A. J. Davis rated Mount Defiance out in front from the fall of the flag. On the last turn Doublet came up with a menace and outjumped the leader at the final obstacle. But Doublet was a very tired horse and Mount Defiance held him safely in the run in on the flat. The race was run in 5:16, the winner being the odds-on favorite, backed to 4 to 5. Mount Defiance carries a top weight of 165 pounds.

The Cherry Malotte Steeplechase, named for Mrs. Payne Whitney's noted steeplechase mare, was an easy victory for R. C. Wimmill's old gelding Surf, which repeated his victory of Saturday. After South Tipp and Griffwood fell at the Liverpool Pierce took Surf to the front and opened a big lead, coming home ten lengths in front of L. B. Kiefer's Fredden Rock. E. M. Marsh's Daniel Boone took third money. Surf and Fredden Rock were coupled in the betting and were the favorites at a closing of 3 to 5.

Cee's Otal Home First.

The Turf and Field Purse, a dash of five and a half furlongs for the juveniles, brought eight to the post, with W. R. Cee's Otal the 4-to-5 favorite. The gelded son of Polymelian and Moonrise got away well, but was outrun down the backstretch and around the turn. In the stretch Calahan got him going and he finished with a tremendous rush, coming from sixth position to beat Edwin Hall Field's Time Lock by a neck, with the Greentree Stable's Cup o' Tea a length back.

In the gallop of a mile and a sixteenth for three-year-olds and upward the Log Cabin Stable's Resolution and Fly By ran one-two in a field of four. Fly By, with Marinelli up, set the pace to the turn for home, with P. Housman's Lockerbie lapped on the filly on the outside. On the turn Fly By went wide, carrying Lockerbie out. Ponce saved ground by slipping Resolution through on the rail and the three-year-old son of Pennant and Yankee Girl came away to win easily. Fly By stood off Lockerbie's stretch challenge to take the place by a neck. The race was run in 1:46 1-5.

FOURTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; the Cherry Malotte Steeplechase; purse $1,000; about two miles. Surf, 150 pounds (Pierce), 5-10, out, first; Fredden Rock, 147 (O'Connor), 1-5, out, second; Daniel Boone, 145 (Jackson), 4-1, third. Time—3:54. Elmer Johnson, Bob Redfield, South Tipp and Griffwood also ran.

FIFTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; allowances; purse $500; one mile and one-sixteenth. Resolution, 112 pounds (Ponce), 9-20, out, out, first; Fly By, 105 (Marinelli), out, out, second; Lockerbie, 117 (Callahan), out, third. Time—1:46 1-5. Idle Toy also ran.

SIXTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $500; one mile. Venus, 107 pounds (Thorndike), 8-1, 5-2, even, first; Osage, 111 (Marinelli), 1-2, out, second; Sophy, 107 (Ponce), out, third. Time—1:41 Cork Elm, The Nomad and Hermoden also ran.

ERASMUS HALL WINS FROM MANUAL, 26-6

18,000 See Wolff Score 19 Points for Blue and Buff Eleven at Ebbets Field.

Led by Allie Wolff, the strong Erasmus Hall High School football team yesterday vanquished Manual Training H. S. at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, by a score of 26 to 6, in a game witnessed by a crowd of about 18,000 followers of scholastic football. The Buff and Blue eleven, spurred on by the spectacular playing of Wolff, who scored nineteen of the team's points, rallied around its star halfback and in a steady offensive hammered its way to victory over the strong line of Manual Training in one of the most interesting games of Brooklyn's scholastic season.

For two periods the Manual Training lads held their goal line safe. A safety by Duguid, in the first quarter, and a field goal by Wolff from the 15-yard line at a time in the second period when Manual Training's defense stopped the Buff and Blue at the Manual 8-yard line, represented the extent of Erasmus Hall's scoring.

A spectacular run of fifty yards by Wolff in the third period gave Erasmus Hall its first touchdown and practically insured the Buff and Blue a victory. Shorty after this exciting dash Wolff again crossed the Blue and Gold goal line when, after Erasmus Hall had advanced to the Manual Training 15-yard line, the Buff and Blue halfback dashed around right end and stumbled past the restraining hands of Manual players to another touchdown.

The other Erasmus Hall touchdown came in the final period, when Weise recovered a Blue and Gold fumble and raced twelve yards for the score. On all three touchdowns Wolff kicked successfully for the extra points.

Manual Training's touchdown came in the final period, when Duguid, the team's fullback, raced sixty yards for a score.

WESLEYAN REGULARS SCORE

Get Three Touchdowns in Drill Against Scrub Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 4.—Coach Martin sent the Wesleyan regulars in against the second team and scrub eleven this afternoon. There was half an hour or more of hard scrimmage, in which the varsity scored three touchdowns.

The backfield, with Howard Cook, McCline and Umpleby, showed up well. Boyd did the place-kicking and Howard did some good punting. The men are a little tired, but they are rounding into good shape for the Williams game.

RUTGERS-LAFAYETTE GAME AT PRINCETON

HOME FIELD IS TOO SMALL

New Brunswick Officials Were Turning Down 1,500 a Day—Governor Silzer to Attend.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 4.—Princeton came to the rescue of Rutgers University today in a manner unusual in college athletic relations when Rutgers found itself faced with the necessity of turning away upward of five thousand Alumni and friends who wanted tickets for the Rutgers-Lafayette game Saturday. After there had been a complete sell-out of every available admission to little Neilson Field here, the Princeton authorities offered their gigantic Palmer Stadium at Princeton, seventeen miles away, with no charge for rental.

The offer was made possible, as the Tigers are playing Harvard at Cambridge this week. Incidentally, the first football game ever played was between Princeton and Rutgers Nov. 6, 1869, fifty-five years ago this week, at New Brunswick.

Saturday's game will be regarded as a home affair for Rutgers, and the Scarlet rooters will occupy the Princeton side of the field. Arrangements were completed this afternoon for the complete exchange of tickets. Graduate Manager William P. Garrison, who decided to accept the offer of Graduate Treasurer John Murray of Princeton after conferences with Graduate Manager D. Leroy Reeves of Lafayette, Acting President Walter T. Marvin of Rutgers and several trustees, announced tonight that the time of the game had been shifted from 2 to 2:15 o'clock.

1,500 a Day Turned Down.

Applications at the rate of 1,500 a day at the Rutgers athletic offices were being turned down during the past week. Not only are both teams among the leaders in the East, with Rutgers having yet to taste defeat, but Saturday is Charter Day here, an occasion for the home coming of many of the old grads. Governor George S. Silzer of New Jersey, and several hundred present and former members of the State Legislature also will be here inspecting Rutgers Saturday morning.

Special train service to Princeton was hurriedly arranged this afternoon. Immediately after the luncheon in Ballantine Gymnasium here Saturday noon for the Governor and party, a special train will leave New Brunswick at 1:23 o'clock. Extra coaches will be added to the two regular trains leaving the Pennsylvania Station at 11:15 and 12:10 to pick up passengers in Newark, Elizabeth and New Brunswick. Extra coaches also will be attached to regular trains from Philadelphia and Trenton.

No Confusion Expected.

The ticket exchange was effected with practically no confusion. Except for less than 200 pasteboards, none of the thousands had been mailed out when the decision was reached to shift the game. New tickets were printed locally and were put in the mails tonight. The small number of tickets which had been distributed will be honored as rush seats on the Lafayette side. All new sales are being made to entitle holders to certain sections, but without individual seat numbers.

Head Coach Wallace of Rutgers will take his squad to the Palmer Stadium to practice Thursday and probably Friday afternoons. The Lafayette team, however, will not leave Easton until early Saturday morning.

DARTMOUTH ELEVEN RESTS.

Second Team Will Start Against Boston University Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 4.—Jesse Hawley will start his second team against Boston University on Saturday. The varsity again was allowed to remain away from the gridiron today while the attention of Assistant Coach Cannell and the rest of the staff was devoted to the substitutes. The regulars will be on hand in case Boston shows unusual strength.

Most of the substitutes have seen action against Yale, Harvard and Brown and each of them is giving one of the regulars a battle for his position. Fallon started at quarter against Harvard and in the Yale game Reeder made a thirty-yard run and showed himself a capable defensive understudy for Oberlander. Sage starred against Brown. Maloney is the best punter on the squad and a greater defensive end.

TWO PENN STARS ARE OUT.

Thomas and Laird Will Not Be Able to Face Georgetown.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—Thomas, quarterback, and Laird, halfback, will ss on the bench when Penn plays Georgetown on Franklin Field Saturday, Dr. Light, the team physician, announced today after examination of the two Red and Blue regulars. Thomas is limping badly as a result of injuries he received early in the Lafayette game last Saturday, an examination of his left knee showing that the ligaments are torn. Laird will be out until Penn meets State, as he is suffering from a broken collarbone.

Either Al Leth of Brooklyn or Andy Thompson will start against Georgetown at quarterback on Saturday. Leth called signals for the second team's scrimmage with the freshmen today.

DOBIE PERFECTS OFFENSE.

Drills Cornell Eleven in Backfield Interference.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Taking advantage of the excellent weather, Coach Gil Dobie put the Cornell varsity through the first scrimmage of the week today, using the varsity field, which was in fine condition. The Red eleven was kept on the offensive, Dobie specializing in perfecting backfield interference.

Molinet, the sophomore halfback star, appeared at the drill with a bandage over his right eye, suffering from a cut received in the Columbia game, but he ran through signals and will be able to get into the hard work tomorrow. Wade, Leaty, Whetstone and Patterson made up the varsity backfield today, but Wester and Friend also got into action. There were no changes in the line.

Brix is to Manage Hausner.

Jack Hausner, Brooklyn featherweight, has signed a contract to box under the management of Lou Brix for two years, it was announced yesterday by Brix. Brix will confine Hausner's activities to the featherweight class. Hausner will engage in his first bout under Brix's management at the Commonwealth Sporting Club on Nov. 15, when he is scheduled to oppose Johnny Drew.

Ohio State to Honor Athletes Who Took Part in Olympics

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 4.—At the Indiana-Ohio State football game here Saturday tribute will be paid the six Buckeye athletes who have borne the Scarlet and Gray abroad in the Olympics of 1912 and 1924. They are Wilkoff, middle-distance runner, captain of the 1912 varsity track team; Cooke, sprinter and broad jumper; Payne, middle-distance and steeplechase runner; Guthrie, hurdler; Harry Steel and Perry Marttor, wrestlers. Wilkoff and Cook took part in the 1912 Olympics and the others in this year's games.

O'CALLAGHAN LOST TO STEVENS TEAM

Leg Injury Will Keep Red and Gray Captain Out for Remainder of Season.

Harold A. O'Callaghan, football Captain of the Stevens Institute of Technology, will be out for the rest of the season due to a wrenched knee and pulled tendon of the right leg, was announced yesterday. The injury was first sustained more than three weeks ago in the Haverford game and was renewed on Saturday when O'Callaghan was downed on the first play by Stevens against Delaware.

The leg was in such bad shape after returning from Haverford that he was kept on the sidelines during the Hamilton and Swarthmore games, but was permitted to work out with the teams three days before the match with Delaware. During the final practice sessions for this game the Red and Gray leader appeared to be in good shape, but one blow was enough to put the leg out of working order for some time to come.

O'Callaghan's loss will be felt by the Stevens team, as two of the hardest games of the schedule remain to be played. Massachusetts Aggies and Rensselaer both will play on Castle Point Field, Troy Engineers are considered by the Stevens boys as their greatest rivals.

W. VA. IN LONG WORKOUT.

Dr. Spears Holds Scrimmage to Decide Line-up Against Colgate.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 4.—The West Virginia football squad engaged in a "survival of the fittest" battle on the Stadium field here this afternoon when Dr. Spears decided that contenders for varsity berths be allowed to make their fight in their own way. He divided the varsity squad and for fifty-five minutes players on the rival teams fought for a chance to start against Colgate here Saturday.

Veterans and sophomore candidates played opposite each other during the scrimmage, which resulted in a victory for the eleven having Ekberg, C. Lewis, Julian, Murrin and Nardacci in its backfield. Bruder, Stinedicker, Hardy and O. Morrison attacked a line that included Oliker, Straight, McHenry, Hill and other regulars, but were stopped by enemy forwards, C. Murrin and Rohrbaugh, ends; Davis and Jennewine, tackles; Mahan and Pinkney, guards, and Byer, centre.

After the long practice game Dr. Spears sent the regulars against the scrubs in a dummy scrimmage and followed with a long signal drill. It was an unusually long session and tomorrow several other changes may be made as a result of today's skirmish.

ARMY HAS LONG DRILL.

McEwan Stresses the Forward Pass —Trapnell Scores Touchdown.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Head Coach McEwan gave the entire Army squad a long work-out today for the Florida game Saturday. All the varsity players who were nursing bruises as a result of the Yale game are back in shape.

The practice included light scrimmaging for the big team as well as a lengthy forward-pass drill. The B squad was pitted against the varsity in the aerial work while the coaches were trying out this branch of its offensive. Trapnell ran to a touchdown on a forward pass from Yeomans, covering thirty yards on the dash for the B team's goal line.

The fumbling in the Army's back field last Saturday was the excuse for an extended period of fundamentals in handling the ball today, drop-kicking, punting and down-the-field work for the ends and tackles were featured. Trapnell, Wilson, Gillmore, Wood and Yeomans were all used in the varsity back field. On the line the tackles were alternated with Schmidt, Westphalinger, Griffith, Saunders and Mack all getting into the play. Army anticipates no easy time with Florida next Saturday, as it is said to have a stronger eleven than the one the Army defeated 20 to 0 last season.

NAVY GETS NEW BACK.

Coaches Put Henderson on Varsity —Open Game is Stressed.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 4.—The Navy coaches have begun to reinforce their backfield detachment, after the severe losses recently incurred by faculty action. Henderson, champion middleweight boxer, has attracted attention by his good work on the first class team, and today he was moved to the varsity squad, being given a chance at once in scrimmage. He acquitted himself very creditably. Condra, who did some good work on the plebe eleven last year, was also used in the varsity backfield with Hamilton and H. Caldwell.

Hearst and Forsberg, who have been on the hospital list for some time, were both doing light work this afternoon.

Practice this afternoon indicated the use of a more open game than previously, and there are indications that considerable skill in its delivery is being acquired. There is reason to believe that Shapley and Flippin, veteran backs, banned by faculty ruling at present, will be back in the game for the Army contest.

The only change in the line this afternoon was that Lambert was at left tackle in place of Wickhorst. The latter played the whole of the Penn State game Saturday.

CURTIN READY FOR MARTIN.

Bantamweights to Clash in Rink Feature Tomorrow Night.

A slugging match is expected tomorrow night at the Rink Sporting Club, Brooklyn, when Eddie (Gannonball) Martin, Brooklyn's contender for the bantamweight title, faces Irish Johnny Curtin, Jersey City veteran, in the principal bout, scheduled for twelve rounds. The contest is reported to have aroused unusual interest among Brooklyn boxing followers who have established Martin a favorite over the rugged lad from Jersey City.

Matchmaker Andy Neiderreiter has arranged three six-round bouts and a four-round contest to precede the main event. In the six-round contests the principals will be Irving Shapiro vs. Jimmy Haskill, Charley Feraci vs. Jack Lester and Tommy Jordan vs. Johnny Willets. The rivals in the four-round preliminary will be Lou Petrosaill and Joe Lackaloch.

HARVARD COACHES MAKE LINE CHANGE

STAFFORD AT QUARTERBACK

Is Almost Certain to Start Against Princeton Saturday, Taking Place of Cheek.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4.—There was a significant change made in the lineup of the Harvard varsity eleven this afternoon. This was the placing of Ernie Gamache at end in place of Phil Chase. Gamache started against Boston University, but Chase was at end yesterday.

The coaches have been very much impressed with Gamache's speed down the field, his tackling and his rare ability to sense the opponent's plays. He has not had much experience, but his natural ability has helped him a lot. When he was at centre he was faster than the ends and was a surer tackler. Besides, he is the type of end Harvard needs in interference for running plays.

Jake Stafford continued at quarter and as Cheek again remained on the sidelines, the choice of Stafford as Harvard's general for the Princeton game seems certain. Phil Theopold also was at left guard again and is likely to remain there. The drill today was entirely on straight football, there being no forward passing at all. Much time was taken in placing the backs and linemen on the interference assignments on the routine of plays which are being worked out for the Princeton game.

Joe McGlone ran the first team of substitutes this afternoon, Spalding not being on the field. Chase played on the substitutes' line while Hoague was at guard with Holder at centre. The team as it will begin Saturday's game will average about 186 pounds, the back field average and the line average being approximately the same.

Tomorrow night there will be a mass meeting for the students at the Harvard Union and at the meeting the team will be on the platform and coaches Fisher and Withington probably will be the speakers. There has been little or no betting on the game, but Harvard, hereabouts at least, is a 10 to 9 favorite.

FORDHAM TEAM GETS ANOTHER DAY'S REST

Gargan Will Start Drive Today for Western Maryland Game—To Scrimmage Tomorrow.

Another day of rest for the Fordham University football squad was ordered by Head Coach Frank Gargan yesterday. This is the first time that the Maroon players, who scored a decisive victory over the New York University eleven at the Yankee Stadium last Saturday, have enjoyed two days of rest in succession this season, but Gargan feels that his men are in splendidd condition and that the lay-off will prove beneficial.

The Fordham squad will spring back into action again this afternoon. A long but light workout, consisting of a blackboard talk, a session in fundamentals and a signal drill, is planned by Gargan for today. A long scrimmage will be held tomorrow in preparation for the game with Western Maryland, to be played at Fordham Field on Saturday. This will be the only hard workout of the present week.

According to Trainer Jake Weber, all of the regular players will be in good condition by Saturday. It is doubtful, however, whether Paul Brennan, captain and star centre, and Joe Manning, star back, will play. Although both men will be ready to get into action if needed, Gargan will probably decide to save them for the more important games that are to follow.

The coaches have expressed themselves as more than pleased with the defensive work of the team and the interference furnished by the line on the attack. The line has shown itself capable of repelling most attempts at advancing through or around it and the secondary defense has been successful in breaking up the forward pass attack of the opposing teams.

During the remaining days of the present week the Fordham coaches intend to devote much of their efforts to the development of the long forward passing game. Although the Maroon's aerial attack netted it two touchdowns in the game with N. Y. U., the forward pass did not come up to the standard of the team's other methods of attack. From midfield last Saturday Fordham was unable to employ the overhead game with any marked degree of success.

It is likely that Coach Gargan's team will use the forward pass attack to a considerable extent in the game with Western Maryland on Saturday. The Maroon mentor hopes to have this style of attack developed to a high degree for the games with Catholic University and Georgetown, later in the season. The contest with Catholic University will be played at Fordham Field on Nov. 22, while that with Georgetown will be staged at the Polo Grounds a week later. This will be the final game to be played at the home of the Giants this year. In the meantime, in addition to meeting Western Maryland on Saturday, the Maroon eleven will clash with the C. C. N. Y. team a week from Saturday.

NOTRE DAME WORKING HARD

With three victories recorded in the last three big games, Notre Dame will center on the next two, the first against Wisconsin on Saturday at Madison, Wis., and the second against Nebraska at South Bend, Ind., one week from Saturday. Notre Dame is not underrating Wisconsin, but it is known that Coach Rockne will point his team for the Nebraska game. The Cornhuskers have won the last two games from Notre Dame, and last year especially did the unexpected when they defeated Notre Dame after Rockne's men had conquered Princeton and the Army.

Adam Walsh, the captain, who was injured so badly in the Army game that he has been out of action since, is expected to play part of the game against Wisconsin, but he will be saved for the clash with Nebraska. Stuhldreher, quarterback, who was hurt in the last three minutes of play against Princeton, will not be used before the Nebraska game. Rockne, it was said by a friend of his here yesterday, realizes that all the prestige gained in Notre Dame's sensational performances in the East, can be lessened through another reverse at the hands of Nebraska, inasmuch as Illinois already has registered a triumph over the Cornhuskers.

It now looks almost certain that Notre Dame will face two Eastern opponents again next year, with the Army as a fixture and with the University of Pennsylvania game almost clinched. Notre Dame would prove a popular attraction with Penn as it has a big following in Philadelphia. The fact that the Penn officials may agree to the home-and-home arrangement is the one factor that may go a long way toward clinching a two-year agreement between Penn and Notre Dame.

PRINCETON STRIVES TO BETTER DEFENSE

HOWARD BACK IN LINE-UP

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4.—Defensive drill against the Harvard plays was the order of the Tigers today, with especial emphasis being laid on stopping the hidden ball tricks which have played so large a part in the repertoire of the Crimson for the last ten years. The Tiger scouts have reported that Harvard has a hard running back field and that Princeton must size the plays up quickly, and get in on them before they are developed if it hopes to stop the attack of the Cambridge eleven.

Red Howard, whose two years' experience against Harvard makes him invaluable to the line, was back at right guard in Davis's place and probably will start Saturday. Ed McMillan also relieved Bartell at centre, but in spite of his advantages in weight and strength, it is hardly likely that he will beat out the little sophomore snapper-back, who has played excellent football all Fall.

Last year Harvard owed its victory to a pinch drop-kicker, Pfaffman, and Princeton is preparing to turn the tables if the game turns out to be close. Sam Ewing is being groomed for the rôle of specialist and his kicking all week has been remarkable. Today, with a scrub line rushing him, he had no trouple in putting the ball over consistently from the 40-yard line.

The backfield still seems doubtful, with the most likely combination the one which has been the first string outfit all Fall, with Dinsmore, Gidson, Caldwell and Slagle. Tom Dignan's kicking is enabling him to give Charley Caldwell a battle, as his running and defensive value are only slightly below that of the veteran. Joe Prendergast also is still in the running, and is practically sure to be in for a period or two.

The Tigers have a wealth of capable backs this Fall, and Roper has a large number of possible combinations which can go in. He probably will substitute freely during the first quarter and then keep in the men who seem to have most succes against the Harvard defense.

Plans are under way for a wholesale migration to Boston on the part of the undergraduate body and alumni. The Harvard Club of Boston has invited all Princeton alumni to attend a joint dinner and smoker which they are holding Friday night, and the invitation will undoubtedly be accepted by a large number of Princeton men. President Hibben will be one of the speakers, while there also will be remarks from such Princeton stalwarts as Big Bill Edwards, Ken Clark and Lam Heyniger.

COLUMBIA VARSITY IDLE.

Regulars Get Second Day of Rest as B and C Teams Hold Drill.

Football practice lasted two and a half hours at Baker Field yesterday, but there was none for Columbia's first varsity eleven, which was granted a holiday for the second afternoon in succession. The regulars got leave for the day from the football reservation, but the B and C teams labored strenuously in preparation for the N. Y. U. game Saturday, in which they will probably play the major rôle.

Coach Paul C. Withington and his staff took the second and third teams through a comprehensive drill, which included about everything in the game of football. Fundamentals came first, then a dummy scrimmage of an hour, and finally a long and thorough signal drill, whereat Paul Brennan, captain and star centre, and Joe Manning, star back, will play. Although both men will be ready to get into action if needed, Gargan will probably decide to save them for the more important games that are to follow.

The coaches have expressed themselves as more than pleased with the defensive work of the team and the interference furnished by the line on the attack. The line has shown itself capable of repelling most attempts at advancing through or around it and the secondary defense has been successful in breaking up the forward pass attack of the opposing teams.

During the remaining days of the present week the Fordham coaches intend to devote much of their efforts to the development of the long forward passing game. Although the Maroon's aerial attack netted it two touchdowns in the game with N. Y. U., the forward pass did not come up to the standard of the team's other methods of attack. From midfield last Saturday Fordham was unable to employ the overhead game with any marked degree of success.

It is likely that Coach Gargan's team will use the forward pass attack to a considerable extent in the game with Western Maryland on Saturday. The Maroon mentor hopes to have this style of attack developed to a high degree for the games with Catholic University and Georgetown, later in the season. The contest with Catholic University will be played at Fordham Field on Nov. 22, while that with Georgetown will be staged at the Polo Grounds a week later. This will be the final game to be played at the home of the Giants this year. In the meantime, in addition to meeting Western Maryland on Saturday, the Maroon eleven will clash with the C. C. N. Y. team a week from Saturday.

BROWN AND MILTON TO BOX.

Flyweights Will Meet in 15-Round Bout at Pioneer A. C. Friday.

Arrangements for the boxing show of the Pioneer A. C., to be held Friday night, were completed yesterday by Matchmaker Frank Bartley. The main bout, scheduled for fifteen rounds, will witness Al Brown, hard-hitting negro flyweight, whose latest triumph was a one-round knockout victory over Frankie Ash of England, in action against Tommy Milton, sturdy little east side flyweight. A ten-round semi-final will be between Izzy Schwartz, east side flyweight, and Eddie Flank of Harlem. Johnny Gannon, east side bantamweight, and Frankie Serra of the west side will clash in a six-round bout. In a four-round preliminary the principals will be Jack McFarland and Antonio Lago.

PERFETTI TO BOX FELDER.

MORRIS TO BOX CLITTY.

Carl Morris, New Jersey's representative in the junior lightweight class, will seek to establish himself as a formidable contender for the title now held by Steve (Kid) Sullivan at the Commonwealth Sporting Club Saturday night, when he faces Joe Clitty of the Bronx in one of three ten-round bouts arranged by Matchmaker Jess McMahon. Morris boasts of a record of thirty-nine knockout victories in a total of fifty-four ring engagements and is confident he will increase his total when he faces Clitty. Larry Estridge, Harlem's negro middleweight star, and Mike Morley of Hartford are scheduled to battle in the main bout of ten rounds. The third ten-round engagement will be between Chief Halloran and Fred Mace.

Five Boxers Banned by Board For Six Months in New Jersey

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 4.—Five boxers were suspended from participating in New Jersey bouts for a period of six months by the State Boxing Commission today. Notice of the suspension has been sent by Boxing Commissioner Clayton A. K. Bugbee to all club managers and inspectors.

The suspended boxers are Ray Powell, Carl Nagle, Philadelphia; Johnny (Kid) Lewis, Izzy Schwartz and Felix Friedman, New York.

BIG TEN ELEVENS HIT FAST STRIDE

Illinois, Chicago and Others Work Hard for Games Saturday That May Decide Title.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Western Conference title aspirations ranged from buoyant hope to black despair as six teams began working for Saturday's championship games and the four others for non-Conference opponents.

Most optimistic of title contenders is Illinois, conqueror of Michigan and Iowa, and Chicago, victor over Purdue and Indiana tied with Ohio State. Chicago has been pointing for the Illini here Saturday ever since the season began. Secret practice devoted to defensive plays calculated to stop Red Grange, Illini ace, and his mates, Britton, Hall, McIlwain and Captain Rokusek, was the order of Coach Stagg of the Maroons. Coach Zuppke has prepared for the grimmest opposition for the remainder of the season.

Scarcely less hopeful of ultimate success is Ohio State, undefeated but tied in two championship contests, as it arranges for its first meeting with Indiana since 1917. The Hoosiers, twice beaten, hope only to reduce the Buckeyes to their own station among the Conference trailers.

Northwestern and Michigan, both defeated once, have some hope of elevating themselves in the title scramble. The Purple, back in the list of Conference winners after a two-years lay-off, is determined to stay there, while Michigan hopes that continued victories might put her back in the title running, provided the leaders suffer defeats.

Coach Rockne of the non-Conference Notre Dame squad had several battered regulars and substitutes as a result of the Georgia Tech game as he started forming his battle lines for Wisconsin. Stuhldreher, quarterback, will be out of the Badger tilt with his injuries. Wisconsin started its second week's training after a lay-off Saturday.

Minnesota, Iowa and Purdue, virtually out of Conference title consideration, planned only perfunctory practice for Ames, Butler and Depauw, respectively, while they kept in mind coming Conference contests.

ROMERO BOXES TONIGHT.

To Meet Montgomery in Feature Heavyweight Bout at Garden.

A dozen heavyweights will compete tonight in the ring of Madison Square Garden in the first heavyweight tournament of the season under the promotion of Tex Rickard. A bout between Quintin Romero, Chilean boxer, and Sully Montgomery, Fort Worth (Texas) aspirant for honors in the ring's heaviest class, will be the feature attraction. This struggle is scheduled for six rounds and is expected to determine Romero's qualifications for a match next month in the Garden against Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight champion. Considerable local interest is being shown in Montgomery, a former Centre College football star, who comes here under the management of Frank Churchill, heralded as a promising heavyweight prospect.

Leo Gates of Harlem and Jim Slimmer, Millville, N. J., heavyweight, are scheduled for a six-round battle. In another six-round encounter Al Rood, Jersey City heavyweight, will face George Erntink. Dan Lieber and Bob Wallis will clash in a four-round bout. In the opening preliminary of four rounds Alex Sclair will engage Charley McKenna.

MANDELL IN GARDEN BOUT.

Will Clash With Jack Bernstein Friday Night.

Lightweights and junior featherweights will furnish the action Friday night in the two feather twelve-round bouts at Madison Square Garden. The principal clash will bring together Jack Bernstein, Yonkers contender for Benny Leonard's title, and Sammy Mandell, Rockford, Ill., boxer whose cleverness and speed have earned him a position among the contenders for lightweight title honors.

This match will eliminate one of the principals from consideration in the lightweight elimination tournament proposed for the purpose of developing a contender for Leonard. Midget Smith, Harlem boxer, and Joe Ryder of Brooklyn, will clash in the other twelve-round bout. Solly Seeman, east side boxer who has been engaging in ring battles on the Pacific Coast with success, will make his first local ring appearance in two years in a special bout against Charley Feraci, New Orleans junior lightweight, who is a stable mate of Sid Terris. In the other bouts Tony Palmer will oppose Murray Elkins for six rounds, and Charley Rosen will engage Izzy Cooper for four rounds.

CYCLE MARKS THREATENED.

New Type of Wheel in France Expected to Shatter Old Records.

Sports writers in Paris are more than a little alarmed over the fact that a new type of racing bicycle has been invented and they hope that efforts to perfect the machine will fail. It is reported that the new wheel is much lighter than the average now in use but is strong and has enough weight to hold the track even at great speed. The plan back of inventing the new wheel is to break more world's speed records, and it is because of this that sports writers in France are disturbed.

One points out that with the building of new tracks the surfaces have been so constructed that the slightly better than average rider can equal old world's records and that the leading cyclists can break standing marks with ease, although they are not nearly as capable performers as were the riders who set the original marks. And now it is feared that with a faster track to ride on and a faster bicycle to pedal riders of less than average ability will be breaking world's records that have stood for years and years.

A critics in the Echo des Sports asks, "When will it all end? The results of the recent races on the new Montlehry track emphasize the fact that the bicycles and the tracks of today are faster than were those of old. We have no riders today, or at least very few, who measure up to the standard of bygone years, yet we are constantly getting new records. There must be an end some place. Let us hope that it soon is found. Cycling is too good a sport to be mistreated in this fashion. Let us hope that riders will depend more upon their inherent ability to set records than seeking a track that in no fear that they cannot help riding to world's records."

JONES AGAIN SHIFTS LINE-UP OF VARSITY

TEAM SHOWS NEW STRENGTH

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—Lineup changes amounting to a moderate shake-up today marked the opening of scrimmage practice for the week by the Yale eleven. Root, who has been used intermittently at tackle, went to right guard, where Wortham and Eckart have alternated all the Fall.

Root, who weighs 190 pounds, rose from the scrub squad this Fall by rapid stages and has divided the right tackle assignment with Butterworth, who appeared to have won the position. Root's qualification will be tested against the University of Maryland Saturday. Opposing teams have gained more ground through the Eli guards this Fall than any other, the total aggregating nearly 1,300 yards in four games.

Another shift today was the substitution of Kline for Cottle at left halfback, but it was understood that this was made to allow Cottle to rest. Cottle watched the practice but did not get into the signal drill.

Wadsworth was used at fullback in place of Allen, who was sent back to the second team with Bench. The coaches continued Bunnell at quarterback and he, Kline and Wadsworth divided the three touchdowns, which were registered equally with one apiece. The varsity displayed exceptionally strong and fast scoring power. Bingham was injured today, Potter replacing him at left end. Potter himself has just returned to the squad after a month's absence. Bingham's return to the line-up for the practice game with the freshmen tomorrow was promised.

Scott, another player who was injured last week, was able to get back into the line-up, replacing Wadsworth, who went to halfback today. Yale's attacking program today consisted entirely of line plunges, and it is apparently Yale's campaigning plan to develop an attack minus the aerial game. This afternoon a second eleven included: Hart and Osborne, ends; Richards and Vanderpitt, tackles; Brown and Wortham, guards; Burt, centre; Bench, quarterback; Failing and Lindley, halfbacks, and Allen, fullback.

VICENTINI FACES TEST.

Will Meet Hard Opponent in Vogel Monday Night.

A capacity crowd is expected to witness the lightweight battle between Luis Vicentini, Chilean boxer, and Sammy Vogel of Harlem, which will be held at the Lenox Sports Club on Monday night. Matchmaker Silvey Burns announced yesterday that he had received many advance requests for tickets to the scrap from his friends and acquaintances in the boxing world and pointed to this as indicating an unusual interest in the coming bout.

The bout is regarded as a trying test for Vincentini, in view of the fact that the Chilean is matched for a bout against Sid Terris, East Side lightweight championship prospect, to be held in Madison Square Garden on Nov. 28. In the event that Vogel, with his cleverness and boxing ability, defeats the hard-hitting Vicentini, the Chilean, under a clause in the Garden contract, would automatically forfeit his claim to the bout with Terris.

Harry London, Harlem boxer who is engaged on a "come-back," will tackle Marty Silvers of Brooklyn, in the eight-round semi-final bout. A six-round bout will be between Johnny Llano of Harlem and Frankie Hyland of the East Side. Dominick Petrone and Harry Herrons are scheduled for another six-round match. The opening preliminary of four rounds will bring together Bobby Green and Eddie Oliver.

Siki Will Box Roscoe Friday.

Battling Siki, Senegalese light-heavyweight who at one time held the world's title, is scheduled to return to the ring Friday night, when he will meet Battling Roscoe in a ten-round bout at Gene Donohue's Arena in Passaic.

WANDERERS BEAT BOSTON F. C., 3-1

FIRST DEFEAT FOR LOSERS

For the first time this season the all-star soccer team of the Boston Football Club met with defeat, 3 goals to 1, at Hawthorne Field in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon when the Brooklyn Wanderers took the measure of the leaders before a crowd of 6,000 and increased their own total in the league table to 16 points, only two below Boston.

The Wanderers were leading at half-time by 2-0. Again the visitors took their turn imediately after the restart, but, for the greater part of the second period, the score remained at 2-1 in favor of the home team. It required fast work on the part of the Brooklyn defense to hold the forward line of Boston in check. The Wanderers went through for their third goal seven minutes from the end.

Boston still leads the field with a total of 18 points, followed by Fall River and Indiana Flooring, each with 17, and the Brooklyn Wanderers with 16.

Boston attacked at the start with the wind at their backs. Hogg, Brooklyn's centre, got possession and made a good try for goal, his drive being intercepted by McIntyre in the nick of time. The Wanderers then took a hand in earnest. Morris coming down on the right at top speed. His splendid pass went straight to Hosie, who accepted the chance beautifully. Hosie turned the ball into the net for the first tally after just six minutes of play.

Boston became desperate and again the burden fell upon the home defense. Hammill, the Irish international, figured prominently for the attacking side. Two corners were forced, but Smith, Brooklyn's goal keeper, cleared both handsomely. The veteran Fleming, once famous Bethlehem star, in his accustomed place at outside right, sent in a high dropping shot, which Smith tipped over the bar.

Stevens, Boston's centre, had a look-in, but handled the ball, yielding a foul. Boston renewed their fierce onslaught, Hammill once more standing out in the halfback division. Twisting his ankle, he was out of the game for three minutes. Just then Morris of Brooklyn connected with the ball, passed it to Hogg and the Wanderers' second goal went into the net.

Although two goals to the good, things began to look bad for Brooklyn when Boston scored off a penalty. Referee Walder of Philadelphia allowed a foul against Morris and McArthur's drive into the goal mouth caused a lively scrimmage. Hume handled the ball and the penalty resulted, McArthur taking the kick and converting.

Moore of Brooklyn, racing with McNab, Boston's outside right, who had the ball, upset the Scotch international. The latter, upon picking himself up, lost his temper and made a lunge at Moore. The crowd near the side lines then took a hand, but the police quickly quelled an incipient riot. McNab was allowed to play on, a foul being given his side.

Boston came pretty close to another penalty, when Hume fouled J. Ballantyne. A free kick by McArthur was blocked. Right after that Hogg was hurt colliding with McArthur, but did not leave the game. Hume permitted a corner, which brought on a dangerous attack by Boston. Two fine stops by Smith were necessary to clear. Hammill drove to one side.

A foul against Shortt gave Boston a free kick almost equivalent to a corner. The New Englanders were pressing with determination. Again the Wanderers were on the aggressive, with Hogg and Yule in the forefront, forcing a corner on the left. Seven minutes from the end another corner came to the Wanderers. Morris kicked out to Shortt, who passed to Hogg and Hogg netted the ball for Brooklyn's third and last goal.

The line-up:

Indiana Flooring Victor.

Defeating the New York Giants by the close score of 1 goal to 0 at the Indiana-New York Oval before a crowd of 3,000 yesterday, the soccer players of the Indiana Flooring Company tied Fall River for second place in the American League. The play was nip and tuck all the way, with honors as nearly even as possible.

After fifteen minutes of play Millar netted the ball for the Giants, but the point was disallowed by Referee McCabe. Five minutes later Carlson shot the tally which decided the issue, off a pass by Duggan on the right. Fall River and Indiana, with 17 points each, are trailing Boston by 1 point.

The line-up:

Montclair A. C. Loses.

SILVERS SEEKING BOUTS.

Plans Active Campaign in Junior Lightweight Division.

Determined to obtain a match for Joey Silvers, east side junior lightweight, against Kid Sullivan, the class champion, Nat Rogers, manager of Silvers, is planning an intensive indoor campaign for his boxer. In his desire to force Silvers to the front, Rogers plans to seek matches for his protégé against Sid Terris, Sammy Mandell, Eddie (Kid) Wagner, Johnny Leonard and Tony Vacarelli. In the event that any of these names are unavailable Rogers plans to seek bouts for Silvers against Luis Vincentini, Pal Moran, Rocky Kansas or other lightweights who can be signed.

Tilyou Will Box Wells.

Jack Tilyou of the home outfit will oppose Billy Wells of the 212th Anti-Aircraft Regiment in the feature twelve-round bout at the 102d Medical Regiment Armory tomorrow night. Two six-round bouts will be between Ray Donahue and Henry Brooks and Patsy Lalonde and Johnny Sisco.

$25,000 to Be Distributed Among Billiard League Stars

A total of $25,200 in cash prizes will be distributed among the players in the National Championship Three Cushion and Pocket Billiard League this season, according to the figures released by the officials of the two leagues. The winner of the championship in each league will receive a cash prize of $2,500, while the runner-up position will be worth $1,800 to each player. For third place each player will get $1,200 and the fourth man in each league will receive $1,000. The other players will be rewarded according to the place they gain in the league standing at the close of the season. The championship also will be worth an additional $3,000 to each winner, to be paid in weekly instalments.

CANNEFAX TO PLAY DENTON HERE TODAY

Three-Cushion Champion Will Meet Former Titleholder in Games at the Strand.

Robert Cannefax, the world's three-cushion champion, will take part in his second engagement at home when he meets Tiff Denton of Kansas City, former champion, in two games at the Strand Academy today. The first game will be played this afternoon and the second tonight. It will mark the first appearance of the season for Denton in New York. He will take part in four games against Cannefax on his second swing around the circuit. Denton has been playing excellent three-cushions thus far this year and is in third place in the league standing and is making a determined effort to regain his lost title. Cannefax also is in good stroke and some close games are expected.

Cannefax, who has been here since Monday, having returned from a successful trip West, said yesterday that he would make no statement relative to a match with Hoppe for at least two or three days. He made it clear that he was ready to play Hoppe, but repeated that in this case he would retain the right to dictate the terms.

"As the champion and the player challenged, I want the right to dictate terms to Hoppe," said Cannefax. "I will have no more at stake than the balkline champion, and for that reason feel that I am entitled to make the terms. I shall insist on Hoppe posting a large forfeit, which is the best evidence of sincerity, and once he has fulfilled that part of his challenge then I shall proceed to announce what I consider the real terms for the match. I learned that Hoppe will be back from his tour early next week, and if he means business he can talk with me before he starts for the Coast to meet Young Jake Schaefer."

Albert G. Cutler, the national junior 18.2 balkline champion, is expected to cover the forfeit posted by David McAndless, the challenger, for a championship match. McAndless accompanied his challenge of last week with the customary $200 forfeit and insisted that the match be played within the regulation thirty days after the completion of the last championship match. It is known that Cutler is seeking a delay of a few weeks, but his request is likely to be refused.

Charles Seaback of Boston will make his metropolitan début in the National Championship Pocket Billiard League when he opens a six-game series at Lawler Brothers' Academy, Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue, against Charles Harmon tomorrow afternoon. Seaback will take part in his second match next week, opening a six-game series against Joseph Concannon at the Recreation Academy in Brooklyn on Monday afternoon.

B. E. Bensinger, President of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, who has been here for more than a week, will return to Chicago today. He said that plans had not been completed as yet for the international balkline tournament, but he expected that a definite announcement would be made shortly. It was learned that seven, and possibly eight, players would compete in the next tournament, which will be held in Chicago in either February or March. There will be at least three American players listed in the field, with Willie Hoppe, champion; Young Jake Schaefer, former champion, and Welker Cochran favored to play.

There is a chance that Edouard Horemans, Belgian 36.2-balkline champion, and Erich Hagenlacher, champion of Germany will meet in a balkline match here. At present Horemans is making a tour of the Middle West, while Hagenlacher has been giving exhibitions in this city and in Philadelphia. Hagenlacher has been displaying excellent form and is expected to give Horemans a real battle in the event they come together. With Hoppe and Schaefer clashing on the Coast the latter part of this month and the first of next, and with Hagenlacher meeting Horemans, it will give the balkline followers their first chance this season to size up the play of the various balkline headliners.

SWEDISH YACHTS POPULAR.

Two International Classes Gain Favor in Other Countries.

When the International Measurement Conference at London in 1919 adopted two essentially national French and Swedish yachting classes as international there were many yachtsmen in England who were skeptical as to their international development, especially in the case of the two Swedish classes, which were particularly suited to the smooth waters and the hard breezes of the Swedish skargarden. The rule had developed a type of boat which ran to inordinate length and carried relatively a diminutive sail plan.

"In the latest boats of this type the base of the sail plan is, in certain cases, little more than half the length of the hull over all," says the London Morning Telegraph. "Now, at the end of the fifth year of existence of the international classes adopted at the international conference, the forty square metre sail area Swedish class is suddenly springing into international favor, and especially in Italy, which one would think the most unlikely country of all to display interest in such a class.

"Weather conditions in the Mediterranean are largely responsible for this. Most of the six-metre boats built up to the beginning of this season are what we could consider very light-weather craft; since the Olympic yacht races opinions have changed, and the majority of new metre boats building are designed for hard weather. "Owners who race practically exclusively in Italian waters saw excellent possibilities of sport and speed in the forty square metre class, and there are already three of them afloat. The latest one, appropriately christened Benito Mussolini, has been exceedingly successful in racing. There is talk, it appears, of organizing team races between teams of two or three Italian, Swedish, and Finnish forty square metre yachts next year."

OTHER BILLIARD RESULTS.

Sam Garfunkel defeated William Adams last night in their sixth game of the Class A three-cushion billiard tournament at Doyle's Academy by a score of 50 to 21 in forty-five innings. Garfunkel had a high run of 6. Adams's best cluster was 4.

Phillip Meise scored a close victory over Leo Braum last night in the handicap straight rail tournament at the Fourteenth Street Academy. The score was 200 to 190. Meise completed his string in fifty-seven innings and had a high run of 21. Braum's high run was 19.

Tadao Suganuma triumphed in two games of 18.2 balkline billiards at Julian's Fourteenth Street Academy yesterday. In his first contest in the afternoon Suganuma defeated Jack Del Rio by a score of 225 to 33 in seven innings, making a high run of 102. Suganuma, in the night game, in which his opponent was M. Benjamin, by a score of 100 to 14 in fifteen innings, made a high run of 15.

TABERSKI VICTOR IN TWO MATCHES

Triumphs Over Rudolph, 100 to 5 and 100 to 84, in Pocket Billiard League.

Frank Taberski scored two victories for New York yesterday over Irwin Rudolph of Chicago in the National Pocket Billiard League tournament at the Fourteenth Street Academy. In the afternoon Taberski overwhelmed Rudolph in hollow fashion, winning by the one-sided score of 100 to 5 in ten innings. Taberski, in an exhibition of brilliant playing, returned several sizable runs, but had his best turn at the table when he clicked off forty points without missing. He completed his century with an unfinished run of twenty-seven points.

In the evening match, however, things were not so easy for the local player. Taberski won this game by the score of 100 to 84 in thirty-one innings, but was forced through an uphill battle in the early part of the game. Until the thirteenth inning Rudolph led his rival, but after that stage of the game Taberski advanced steadily in the score and gradually pulled away from the Chicagoan. Rudolph had the highest run of the game, clicking off thirty-three points in his best turn at the table. Taberski's best run was 22.

DATE SET FOR BOYS' MEET.

Interscholastic Indoor Event to Be Held Here on Jan. 10.

The eleventh annual interscholastic indoor track and field meet of the De La Salle Institute will be held at the 102d Engineers Regiment Armory on Jan. 10. Entry blanks for the meet have been distributed among the various local schools. The program consists of seventeen events, open to public and private high schools and parochial schools of the city.

Thirteen competitions, consisting of seven senior events, two for juniors and two novice contests, have been included on the program to be conducted under the rules of the Athletic Association of Private Schools and the Public Schools Athletic League. Four other competitions, including two parochial school relay championships, will be conducted under the rules of the Catholic Schools Athletic League. Entries for the meet will close on Jan. 3 with John J. McHugh at P. S. A. L. headquarters.

BURNS CAPTURES SHOOT.

Takes High Scratch Prize With 93 at Larchmont Y. C. Traps.

With a card of 93 out of a possible 100 targets, A. L. Burns won the high scratch prize in the election day shoot over the traps of the Larchmont Yacht Club yesterday.

The high handicap prize went to J. D. Woods, who returned a card of 87, 18—105. Eleven gunners competed. The scores:

CUKOR WINS AT TRAPS.

Weather conditions were hardly ideal for the opening shoot of the trapshooting season of the Marine and Field Club yesterday. A bad wind swept across Gravesend Bay, whirling the bluerocks into difficult shooting angles. As a result, the scores were not particularly high.

The best work was done by J. Cukor, who won the high scratch prize with a card of 88 out of a possible 100 targets. The high handicap prize was taken by L. H. Scorty. He finished with a 93. Then came O. Koppler with 91, followed by R. Hen with 88. Twenty-two gunners took part in the shoot.

The scores:

WEINSTEIN TENNIS VICTOR.

Beats Bassford in Exhibition at Briarcliff Lodge.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, Nov. 4.—Irving Weinstein of California defeated Harry Bassford in an exhibition tennis match at Briarcliff Lodge here today by scores of 6—4, 3—6, 7—5. The match was hard fought throughout, with the Western player carrying off the honors in the deciding set chiefly on the strength of his powerful forehand drives which featured the play.

LAWRENCE TAKES HIGH GUN PRIZE

Captures Scratch Event at the N. Y. A. C. Election Day Shoot With 98 Score.

T. H. Lawrence won the special 100 "bird" election day shoot over the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. He took the high scratch prize with a card of 98. There was a tie for the second high scratch trophy between F. A. Siebert and J. P. Donovan. In the first round of the traps each broke 94 targets. On the shoot-off, Siebert took the cup.

There was a large number of gunners tied for the high handicap prizes with full scores of 100 targets each. After several shoot-offs, the trophy was taken by J. B. Sinclair.

The scores:

Public Utility Securities

SINCE the earliest days of the public utility industry, we have been underwriters and distributors of conservative securities of this type.

Our clientele interested in public utility securities is, we believe, second to none, both in point of numbers and in volume of purchasing power.

This evidence of the important position which we have occupied in the development of what has come to be one of the leading industries of this country should inspire the confidence of investors in our recommendations.

Our "Investment Suggestion" will be furnished on request. Write for Circular No. 1515.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

All American Business Suspended Over Election Day—Sterling Inactive at London.

All financial and commercial markets in the United States were closed over election day. The London foreign exchange market was open, but the sterling rate hardly moved. The idea still seemed to prevail that New York's attitude toward the sterling market might be determined by Wall Street's feeling over yesterday's election results.

Today's New York markets may throw some light on the question how far political uncertainties have effect, both in Stock Exchange prices and in general trade, the influence which might otherwise have been exerted by the great harvests, the recuperation of the farming West, the easy money market and the prosperous showing of the railways. But whatever today's movement on the stock market shall be, we are likely enough to find some slowness in the appearance of convincing signs of a situation changed entirely through removal of electoral doubts and obscurities. With trade particularly, nothing like an overnight reversal of form is ever possible. It will be in a stretch of weeks that we shall finally learn whether "forward orders" from merchants are to return in quantity; whether the farm community will be a buyer on the old-time scale with so much of his 1924 income diverted to settlement of debt; whether the caution both of producers and consumers was altogether a matter of political uncertainty, or was based on a policy of prudence born of the experiences of 1920 and the reiterated warnings of 1923.

Yet, on the very eve of election, important evidence of the country's real prosperity has been laid before us. The car-loading statement, published yesterday and covering the week ended Oct. 25, again surpassed all records of American railway traffic, the total rising 10,000 cars above this year's best previous performance and 14,882 above the high mark of 1923. Once more, also, it was merchandise and miscellaneous loadings which conspicuously surpassed all precedent. This pointed to results in the immediate future, just as the complete September returns of net railway earnings, with the largest monthly total since the armistice, pointed to the immediate past.

Monday's lowest price of wheat for December delivery, $1.38½ a bushel, representing a decline of 6¼ cents within a week and of 14¼ cents from the season's high price of Oct. 16, has caused some uneasy inquiry as to whether the estimates of foreign requirements may not have been exaggerated and whether a continuous downward reaction may not be in store. Experienced grain trade people will probably answer these questions in the negative. They will admit that the Commerce Department's report on last week's wheat exports shows a decrease of 5,878,000 bushels from the preceding week, a shrinkage of 52 per cent. But this they are likely to ascribe to two considerations—first, the fact that the high-record shipments of other recent weeks have provided for Europe's immediate necessities during its own short-crop season; second, the fact that the shrewd Liverpool grain importer called off his orders for prompt shipment, in line with his habitual policy, as soon as the Chicago market showed signs of a "runaway rise" in prices. Most well-informed people will probably also make the point that foreign orders for delivery in other later months, which are continuing in very large volume, may easily insure both stability of prices and subsequent renewed increase in grain exports.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Stock Market's Future.

Irrespective of what the stock market may do today or tomorrow or next week, in response to immediate political and financial developments, there are many people in the financial district, who keep close tab on the general situation throughout the country who believe that a firm foundation has been laid during the Summer and Autumn for very considerably higher stock prices between this day and Spring. They point to the chief cornerstones of this foundation as offering an excellent opportunity for further building, and list them as easy money, improved international trade, increased forward business in basic lines in this country, seasonal demand incident to the holidays and very greatly improved agricultural conditions in practically every part of the country.

Looking Backward.

Improved conditions of the railroads make it necessary to look further and further backward to find records to compare with those now being made. A case in point was the September earnings of the roads, totaling $116,000,000, which were the largest since July, 1918. Another was the prediction by the head of the Illinois Central that the 1923 earnings of that property, from present indications, would be sufficiently large to exceed any year since 1916. Just what the combined October railway earnings will be is a highly interesting question. Judging from the record made in September, it is likely that they will be sufficiently large to make comparisons with 1918 again necessary.

Wheat's Rise and English Politics.

The subject of rising agricultural prices in America and of their effect on American politics has been much discussed; but in the last few days there has been noted by New York bankers an even further-flung influence of this phenomenon. Not a few are known to attribute in part the fall of Labor in England to the rising wheat price in America. According to this deduction, which was made by English bankers, Labor won its first control of the English Parliament largely through promises of lower prices in England, cheaper bread and the curing of many economic ills. Things went smoothly until last June, when the American wheat price started its spectacular upswing, and with this advance prices of breadstuffs in Britain also began to rise. The British electorate then began to question how this was coming about, and although Labor orators made an effort to show that Labor policies were not directly responsible, the electorate failed to be spellbound, and registered its resentment by seating again the British Conservative Party. In general, England has raised good crops this season, in the face of Continental shortage and high prices.

In the Iron and Steel Markets.

The failure of the steel earnings generally to measure up with those of last year has created a question as to how large the expected recovery in the demand for iron and steel may be in the remaining months. The fact remains, however, that no one actually in the business is looking for a "runaway" market, and that very few, if any, on the outside expect more than a "moderate recovery." Those who stress this view cite the existing supplies, which they say are too large in comparison with the demand to promise anything more than this. Regarding the extent of the volume of orders which many believe to have been postponed "until after election," there is more doubt than as to the rate of operations in the immediate future. The next few weeks are expected to clear up this question of delayed buying in a way that will make more accurate the estimates.

Our Improving Foreign Trade.

Reference to the growth of our export trade in August and September, following a rather steady decline over the first seven months of the year, must occasion optimism for the total year's results. That there is every indication for the further improvement not only of our export trade but of our import trade as well, in the closing months of 1924 is generally accepted by experts, who point out that an expanding demand for our products in Europe and an increased foreign production pretty well distributed internationally as those markets recover must inevitably, for a certain period at least, redound in our favor. The recent expansion in our exports has brought the year's total to date about $184,000,000 above the same period of last year, or 6 per cent.

Railway Legislation Next.

Railway executives who have been prepared to answer any arguments against their interests in the recent Presidential election will at once shift their attention to the next session of Congress. They are expecting, so it was said yesterday, that some vital legislation may be brought before this session. Of greatest interest will be the Howell-Barkley bill, which the railroads will vigorously oppose. It is not expected that the executives will advance any of their own legislation at this session, but rather that they will take a defensive attitude as they did a year ago, and make an attempt to retain what they now consider constructive measures. By the time the executives gather in New York the latter part of this month for their semi-annual meeting it is expected that a definite program for the legislative policy will have been completed.

Savings Deposits in Germany.

When the German paper mark was collapsing last year, holders of paper money in Germany were at their wits' end as to what they should do. A few were advised to convert their paper money into German securities, and some did at considerable saving to themselves, as most of the German bonds came later to have some slight value, whereas the paper money went completely down the toboggan to nothing at all. But recently a decision has been handed down in Germany, according to reports received in New York, indicating that not all of the German holders of paper marks are to suffer. Under this decision the German Government has arranged to provide for the restitution on a fractional basis of the German savings deposits held prior to the war, when the mark had a gold value.

Railroads as Preferred Borrowers.

An interesting change has taken place in recent months in the attitude of American banks and investors toward railroad companies which, it has been expected, would presently come into the market for new loans. In early Spring, when the Baltimore & Ohio and the Northern Pacific, among others, were considered as potential borrowers, considerable apprehension was felt. But the full success of the Baltimore & Ohio financing project, coupled with later evidences of returning confidence felt by investors in railroad securities, served as a tonic for the whole railroad bond market. And now, it was observed by a commercial banker who was one of the comparatively few "bulls" on railroad securities nine months ago, the majority of Wall Street's leading houses are looking around in the hope of finding some railroad business that they can do.

Redeemable for sinking fund upon any interest payment date upon thirty days' notice at 105 and accrued interest to and including November 1, 1929, and one-half of one per cent less each succeeding year up to but not including November 1, 1939, on which date and thereafter the bonds shall be redeemable at par and accrued interest. Redeemable as a whole on any interest payment date upon thirty days' notice at 102½ and accrued interest.

Interest payable without deduction for that portion of any Federal Income Tax not in excess of two per cent. The Pennsylvania and Connecticut four mills tax, Maryland four and one-half mills tax, District of Columbia five mills tax, the Massachusetts income tax not to exceed six and one-half per cent, and the Michigan five mills exemption tax, upon timely and proper application, refunded to resident holders.

THE NATIONAL BANK OF THE REPUBLIC, CHICAGO, TRUSTEE

Location The Transportation Building occupies the site known as 600-630 South Dearborn Street, at the southwest corner of Dearborn and Harrison Streets, in the central downtown business section of Chicago. The building fronts on three important thoroughfares, is within a radius of three blocks of the Post Office and Federal Building, some of the most important railway passenger stations and adjacent to the financial and shopping centers. It is located within a block of the proposed new Dearborn Station which, when completed, will be the most extensive and important railway terminus in the City of Chicago. Transportation facilities are unexcelled.

Building The Transportation Building is of modern fireproof construction twenty-two stories in height. With street frontage on the north, east and west and with all offices having an outside exposure excellent light is provided. The building is over 96 per cent occupied and among its two hundred tenants are the United States Government, the State of Illinois, practically all of the large Transportation Associations of the Country, and a number of important Railroad Systems. It is equipped with fourteen high speed passenger elevators and all other conveniences.

Security These bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a first closed mortgage on the leasehold estates comprising 18,584 square feet, together with the building erected thereon. The total property value has been independently appraised by competent authorities at not less than $5,000,000 or over 180 per cent of the maximum principal amount of this issue of bonds. The leases to the ground estates provide for an annual rental of $61,375, contain favorable and advantageous terms and extend, without right of revaluation, beyond 1996.

Earnings The gross annual income of the property, as audited, based on existing leases, is $670,744.84. Operating expenses including taxes, maintenance and also ground rentals of $61,375 for the year ended September 30, 1924, were $317,383.72. Net income on the above basis, available for the payment of interest is $353,361.12, or approximately twice the maximum annual interest requirements on this issue of bonds.

Sinking Fund The mortgage securing these bonds will provide for a sinking fund payable monthly to the Trustee, beginning May 1, 1925.

The operation of this Sinking Fund, through purchase in the open market or by redemption, will retire the entire issue on or before maturity.

Mortgage Provisions The Trust Deed provides that upon demand all leases shall be assigned to and deposited with the Trustee and the rentals thereof shall thereafter be collected and disbursed by the Trustee. The Trust Deed also provides for deposit with the Trustee monthly in advance an amount equal to one-twelfth of the annual interest and sinking fund requirements.

Legality to be approved by Messrs. Chapman, Cutler & Parker, Chicago. Appraisals by Messrs. Clark and Trainer and Messrs. Oliver & Company, Chicago. Audits by Messrs. Haskins and Sells, Chicago. These bonds are offered when, as and if issued, approved by counsel and received by us.

STERLING AWAITED OUR ELECTION NEWS

LONDON STOCKS BOOMING

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Very little was done in the foreign exchange market here today. This inactivity was due largely to a desire to await the outcome of the American Presidential election, which, in this market's view, may have important reactions elsewhere according to its influence upon American sentiment. Sterling weakened to $4.53 15-16, with little doing in the absence of New York advices, but the closing cable transfer rate was firmer at $4.84 3-16, against $4.84¼ yesterday.

French francs finished at 68.75, against 68.68 yesterday; Belgian at 64.45, against 64.25; Italian lire at 104.35, against 104.20. Neutral currencies scarcely moved.

The stock markets keep wonderfully buoyant throughout. Business is expanding, with the public taking a larger speculative interest, especially in steel, textile and rubber shares. Sentiment has been powerfully aided by Baldwin's remarkable victory at the election, but the present rise security values is, in most peoples' opinion, discounting too quickly anything that is likely to happen in the way of trade revival in the near future.

Money became much tighter yesterday, there being no maturities of Treasury bills and an instalment of £4,000,000 becoming payable on the German loan. Discounts also were slightly firmer in sympathy, but the London County Council placed £2,000,000 "yearling bills" at an average discount of £1 11-32 per cent., and this rate was regarded as exceptionally low in view of the probability of a rise in money rates during currency of these bills, which are supposed to have been secured by buyers outside the discount market.

New capital issues are rapidly mounting up. Our Southern Railway Company is offering £2,000,000 5 per cent. preference stock at 99½, and a heavy demand for this issue is expected. Numerous industrial offerings are also impending, but the only important foreign loan likely to appear within the next few weeks is the Greek refugee loan under the auspices of the League of Nations.

Larger Argentine Wheat Sowings.

The first official estimate of wheat planting in Argentina, issued by the Argentine Government, states that 7,100,000 hectares of land had been planted to wheat for the crop of 1924-25, as compared with 6,594,994 hectares, representing the average annual sowings in the ten years from 1914 to 1924, inclusive.

THE WESTERN BOND MARKET

Chicago Reserve Bank Reports Rising Demand for Foreign Loans.

There has been a considerable revival of interest in the Middle West in foreign loan issues, the Chicago Reserve Bank reports. This is "exemplified by the successful flotation of the German loan the second week of October. Institutions continue large buyers of short-term paper with a high degree of marketability, although some dealers report a shifting from short to long term securities on the part of some of the banks. There appears to be a scarcity of good bonds in almost every class, according to dealers reporting direct to this bank.

"This condition also prevails in the market for high-grade first mortgage real estate bonds, sales being handicapped on account of the dearth of bonds. The tendency is toward lower interest rates for this class of bonds, one large house reporting that by the end of October there will be no bonds yielding 6% per cent. on its shelves, and that in the future the yield will be 6 per cent."

WATER WORKS EARNINGS.

American Company Reports a Reduction of $422,919 in Year's Net.

A reduction in net earnings for the twelve months ended Sept. 30 of $422,919, after reserves for renewals and replacements, compared with the preceding fiscal year was reported yesterday by the American Water Works and Electric Company. Net earnings were $5,660,405, equivalent after preferred dividends to $10.28 a share on both the 100,000 shares of common and the 100,000 shares of participating preferred outstanding, against $12.84 a share on the same amount of stock in the previous year.

The reduction in net earnings was said to have been largely the result of an increase of $1,968,361 in interest, amortization and preferred dividend charges of subsidiary companies.

Since the inauguration of the customer-ownership policy by the American Water Works and Electric Company more than $24,000,000 par value of subsidiaries' preferred stocks have been sold by the various operating companies.

TO FINANCE TRUCK SALES.

White Motor Company Forms a Securities Corporation.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 4.—The White Motor Securities Corporation, a new subsidiary of the White Motor Company, has been formed to finance instalment sales of White trucks. The new company will have an authorized capital of $5,000,000 (50,000 shares) of preferred and 25,000 shares of no par common stock. The preferred stock will be 7 per cent. cumulative non-voting, callable at 105, and guaranteed as to principal and dividends by the White Motor Company.

Only $2,500,000 of this stock will be issued now. It will be offered at par to the stockholders of the White Motor Company of record Nov. 12.

World's Smaller Corn Crop.

According to the Department of Agriculture's weekly bulletin, the corn crop of the world appears to be much smaller than last year, the forecasts for seven countries reporting being 17.2 per cent. less than the production of these countries last year. The United States and Canada indicate decreases of about 500,000,000 bushels each, and Italy and Hungary indicate increases.

Very Large Transvaal Gold Output.

Gold output in the Transvaal for the nine months which ended with September amounted to 7,142,826 fine ounces, as compared with 6,776,730 in 1923 and 4,696,763 in 1922. The production in the nine months exceeded that of any year since the beginning of the war.

LOCATION
The properties of the Corporation consist of two adjoining brick and limestone store and office buildings erected several years ago, located at Nos. 927, 929, 931 and 933 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, in the heart of one of the most important commercial and retail centers of the section. The Flatbush Savings Bank, Peoples Trust Co., and the Flatbush Theatre and other important commercial institutions, are in the immediate vicinity.
The Flatbush Central Market, the largest department market in the east, occupies a substantial part of the company's property at 933 Flatbush Avenue. The average number of transactions run from 70,000 to 75,000 monthly.
POPULATION
1900, 1,116,582 1910, 1,634,351 1920, 2,018,356 1924, 2,196,923
The population of the Flatbush section of the city, where these properties are located, increased from about 200,000 four years ago, to over 400,000 at the present time.
Land values have correspondingly increased especially in the Flatbush section where the properties are located. The average commercial lot, of 20 foot front, has increased in value from $16,000 to over $75,000 in the past ten years.
SECURITY
This loan will be secured by an absolute First Closed Mortgage on the land and improvements fronting on Flatbush Avenue and Snyder Avenue, above described, including the $75,000 addition about to be erected. Preliminary appraisals indicate a value in excess of $750,000. Final valuations are now being made by several independent appraisers. A portion of the proceeds of this issue will be used in the construction of the addition to be erected with frontage on Snyder Avenue.
EARNINGS
The income from this property, including that to be derived from an addition about to be erected at a cost of $75,000, is conservatively estimated at $100,000, with operating expenses, including taxes, of $15,000, leaving net rental income of $85,000, which is over 2¼ times maximum interest charges.

THE NEW FRENCH TAXES.

Proposed Imposts Chiefly on Wealth to Meet the Budget Deficit.

New taxes proposed by the French Finance Minister in order to meet the 2,602,000,000 francs public deficit of 1924 are as follows: (1) A tax of .05 francs per 1,000 francs on monetary exchange transactions; (2) a tax of 1 franc per 1,000 francs on the total amount of premiums received by insurance companies, and (3) a tax on increased values realized by the sale of property and good-will acquired since 1919, the amount of the tax to increase progressively.

The Ministry has stated that these taxes would affect only accumulated wealth. It proposed at the same time abolition of the "business turnover tax" on wheat and flour and the abandonment of the salt duty.

TRADE SYNOPSIS SHOWS RECOVERY IN OCTOBER

Reserve Bank Classifies More Industries as 'Good,' Less as 'Poor.'

The month-end synopsis of conditions in thirty-six separate lines of trade, compiled by the Philadelphia Reserve Bank, makes a better showing than in any month of the present year since April. Trades in which demand is classified as good at the end of October are two in number, against one at the end of September and August, and none in July, June or May. Demand is classified as better than "fairly good" in twenty-one lines of business, as against eight in September, eight in August and one in July.

The classification "fair" is applied to thirteen lines of industry, as against twenty-six a month ago, twenty-nine two months ago and twenty-one three months ago. Under the classification "poor" or "poor to fair" there is no line of trade entered in the end of October report. Four lines of business were thus scheduled at the end of September, six in August and sixteen in July.

Stocks of merchandise on hand are stated to be moderate in twenty-nine lines of industry, fairly light in four and heavy in none.

Goods in Merchants' Hands.

Retail stocks of merchandise in the Chicago district, as reported by the Chicago Reserve Bank, increased more than usual during September, but continued to be slightly smaller than a year ago.

Fruit—and 5,000,000 pounds of nails

SOME one who likes figures has estimated that 5,000,000 pounds of nails are required to box the annual fruit crop of three large fruit producing States.

The oranges you enjoy at breakfast, for instance, grew in groves from 1,500 to 3,000 miles away.

Every day The Bank of America handles a large number of bill of lading drafts covering fruit shipments from various parts of the country to the Manhattan and Brooklyn wholesale districts.

Send for your copy of "The New York Market for Citrus Fruits." It is an interesting survey of one branch of the huge Metropolitan produce business.

On Thursday Nights at 8:20—Tune in On WEAF

At this time you will hear an informative talk on some phase of finance, industry or economics, under the auspices of The Bank of America.

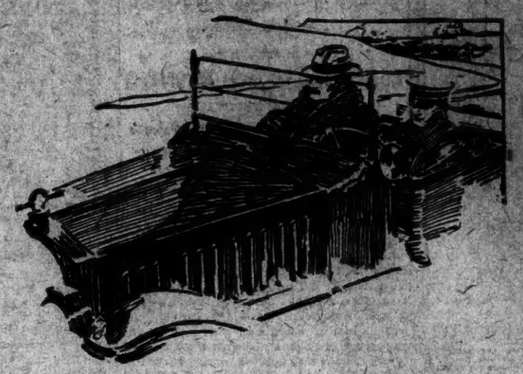
How to protect your family

1. If you die without a will, your property will be liquidated and distributed according to the laws of the State; your family will be involved in the intricacies of court procedure at the very time when such details are most distressing; and their inheritance may become the prey of inexperienced or unscrupulous persons.
2. Only by a will can you designate to whom your property shall go, preserve any part of it, such as real estate or a business interest, in existing form, and yourself appoint a capable executor to settle your estate.
3. But if your estate is distributed outright, who will guide your wife or other beneficiaries in the investment of principal so that it will be conserved and a steady income be assured? Records show that the average estate lasts only seven years.
4. By your will, you may not only insure safety of principal and income for your beneficiaries, but also may relieve them of the trouble and worry involved in the management of investments or real estate.
5. This can be accomplished by the creation of a trust fund by which you turn property over to a trustee to hold and manage for a beneficiary to whom the trustee makes fixed income payments.
6. This form of protection more and more is being employed by far-sighted business men to protect a widow against designing adventurers or her own inexperience; to assure separate income to a married daughter; to preserve a son's inheritance until he has arrived at the years of discretion; or to insure capable management for a business.
7. The Equitable is in the business of settling estates and conserving inheritances. We have been entrusted with some of the largest estates in New York; we welcome the duty of conserving modest estates. We can settle your estate and protect your family faithfully, wisely and economically.

Our booklet, "How to Protect your Estate and your Family," will be mailed upon request. But you are invited to come directly to any of our offices and talk with a trust officer—without obligation and in entire confidence.



No man has the right to feel at peace with the world until he has made a will.

Financing British Imports of American Cotton

AMERICAN cotton imported annually by British spinners is normally valued upward of $275,000,000. So important a movement of raw material, concentrated in a few weeks of the Autumn, requires banking resources of magnitude and seasoned facilities for rapid handling of business.

For nearly 90 years the Union Bank of Manchester Limited has financed the cotton imports of great Lancashire spinning interests. A unit of the vast organization of Barclays Bank Limited, which commands resources in excess of two billion dollars, this bank offers its broad services to American exporters through their own home banks.

MEANING OF RECORD TRAFFIC MOVEMENT

MEASURE OF ACTIVE TRADE

What Is Included Under "Miscellaneous" and "Less-Than-Carload" Classification of Loadings.

The traffic movement of merchandise and less-than-carload-lot freight and miscellaneous freight in the week ended Oct. 18 set another high record for all time. With the increase in business in these two classifications of freight, usually accepted as a measure of the volume of general business, students of the industrial situation are more and more at a loss in explaining reports from many sections of the country to the effect that the boom in business, indicated by these car loadings, is not being recorded.

Loadings of these two classes of freight totaled 647,580 cars or more than 50 per cent. of the total loadings of 1,102,000 which was the highest on record. The large movement of this class of freight, and the movement of farm products to market account for the new high record in traffic movement because the shipments of coal, iron and coke are below those of the same period of 1923.

Classes of Freight.

Railway executives have been called on to give a definition of the freight which comes under the heading of merchandise and miscellaneous. In answering, they state that if there is any indicator of general business conditions it should be these two groups of freight.

Merchandise and less-than-carload freight, according to one representative of the car service division of the American Railway Association, include the freight that is generally handled through the local freight offices. That is, the freight which is taken to the freight offices and loaded into cars there rather than being loaded directly into cars at the manufacturing plants. As a result, it is more or less miscellaneous. For the most part it consists of less-than-carload lots of freight, but now and then the merchandise shipments are made in carload lots. In this classification is grouped the output of the smaller mills and factories and the little shops that cannot afford switching tracks of their own. For this very reason these manufacturing institutions are among the last to get going in times of good business, and therefore a large increase in the volume should reflect improvement.

Under the miscellaneous classification comes all of the carload lot freight not included under one of the other following subdivisions: Grain and grain products, forest products, livestock, coke, coal and ores. These loadings include all of the large loadings of dry goods, of automobiles, a considerable part of groceries in wholesale quantities, and much of the other merchandise which is for immediate use. For this reason the railroad executives hold that along with merchandise loadings the movement of miscellaneous traffic is a good indicator of business conditions.

Last Week's High Record.

For the week of Oct. 18 the loads of miscellaneous freight totaled 418,234 cars. This was an increase of 12,798 compared with the previous record. It was 18,017 more than the preceding week, and 26,757 more than in the corresponding week of last year. The increase is large in comparison with 1922 where it shows an increase of 62,188 cars.

Taken separately, the loadings of merchandise and less-than-carload lot freight amounted to 255,806 cars, or 3,511 less than the preceding week. They were, however, 2,835 more than the same week of last year, and 25,191 greater than the corresponding week two years ago.

Oct. 18	674,040	Oct. 27	641,357
Oct. 11	659,334	Oct. 20	648,618
Oct. 13	647,580	Oct. 6	647,580
Sept. 27	663,894	Sept. 29	646,185
Sept. 20	655,346	Sept. 15	629,378
Sept. 13	648,021

The maximum loadings of merchandise and miscellaneous freight during 1923 were made in the week of Oct. 13, when 647,580 cars were loaded. The high record for 1924 is 27,000 cars larger than that of 1923.

Notice to Holders of NEW YORK SHIPBUILDING CORPORATION FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY-YEAR FIVE PER CENT. SINKING FUND GOLD BONDS

Dated November 1, 1916. Due November 1, 1946.

Pursuant to Section 4 of Article Four of the Mortgage of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation to The Union Trust Company, of Pittsburgh, Trustee, dated November 1, 1916, securing its First Mortgage Thirty-Year Five Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, the undersigned Trustee hereby gives notice that the bonds of such issue will be purchased by the Trustee for the Sinking Fund provided in said mortgage, to an amount sufficient to exhaust one hundred eighty-seven thousand five hundred dollars ($187,500), being the moneys now held by it in such Sinking Fund. The Trustee hereby invites from the bondholders offers for the sale to it on November 24, 1924, of such bonds. As provided in said Mortgage, such offers shall in each case be for all or any part of the bonds so offered. The lowest offers to the aggregate amount not exceeding an amount sufficient as nearly as may be to exhaust such moneys now held in the Sinking Fund will be accepted, provided that the price or prices accepted will in no event exceed, in addition to accrued interest, one hundred two and one-half per centum (102½%).

As soon as may be, or on or after November 17, 1924, the undersigned Trustee will notify bondholders whose offers are accepted, so that delivery of the bonds covered by such acceptances may be made to the Trustee at its office in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on December 24, 1924.

All offers must be in writing, be enclosed in sealed envelopes, state the number or numbers of the bonds offered, and name the price or prices at which the same are offered.

All offers must be received at the office of the Trustee on or before noon of November 17, 1924.

ELECTION DAY FINDS TRADE STILL SLOW

Western Business Has Recovered Only Gradually, in Face of Auspicious Harvest.

"FORWARD ORDERS" LIGHT

Reserve Bank Makes Point of Large Repayments of Long-Standing Debt in Farm Communities.

The record of general business and industrial activity in the Middle West during the past thirty days, according to the November bulletin of the St. Louis Reserve Bank, is one of improvement, partially seasonal and pursuing an extremely conservative and gradual course. "Distribution of commodities continues large, as indicated by freight loadings, debits to bank accounts, and specific reports of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, but nowhere is there apparent a rush to buy, and purchases represent principally goods actually needed for current consumption. As was the case during the similar period immediately preceding, the improvement does not embrace all lines, and some sections are evidently more prosperous than others. Generally, however, gains outnumbered losses and taken as a whole the situation is more satisfactory, with the improvement well enough defined to sustain the recent optimism.

"Ordering of merchandise for future delivery increased slightly as compared with the preceding month, but in most of the lines investigated the volume is behind that of previous years. A rather universal comment of wholesale merchants is that even in purchasing for prompt shipment there have been frequent lulls and considerable irregularity. This manifestation is ascribed to weather conditions and uncertainty relative to prices of finished goods, caused by fluctuations in the markets for raw materials.

"The latter explanation applies especially to textiles and food products, with needs still to be supplied and the present high level of buying considered, this is looked upon as a temporary delay which a few weeks of cold weather could easily dispose of.

"Conditions in the agricultural sections showed added improvement. Harvesting of late crops has progressed under favorable weather and marketing of farm products continues on an extensive scale. According to the Department of Agriculture, the composite condition of all crops in States wholly or partly within the district (100 equals 10-year average) was 92.3 per cent. on Oct. 1, which compares with 92.2 per cent. on Sept. 1. Since the first of this month weather conditions have been auspicious for the development of crops not yet harvested, growth of pastures and the accomplishment of all kinds of farm work. Farmers have had time to take stock and estimate more closely how they have come out on the year's activities. As noted in the preceding issue, of this report, they are liquidating the arrears of their indebtedness, replacing equipment and purchasing necessities.

"Prices of cereals fluctuated broadly during the period under review, but with the upward trend continuing, and new high records on the present crop being established. Wheat, corn and hog values reached the highest levels recorded since 1921.

"Continued marketing of agricultural products on a large scale is reflected in heavy payments to country merchants, who in turn are settling with the wholesalers and jobbers and reducing their commitments at the banks. In the larger centres banks report that their mercantile customers are paying up, and the demand for new loans from that source is limited.

"The generally moderate stocks of merchandise being carried, and the relatively light volume of future buying are given as additional reasons for the smaller demand for credit from commercial interests. Deposits of the commercial banks continue the recent high levels, a number of large institutions reporting the largest volume in recent years."

LOEW'S GROSS $42,937,268.

Net of $2,949,052 for Year Transferred to Surplus.

Loew's Incorporated and subsidiaries, in their combined operating statement made public yesterday for the year ended Aug. 31, show gross income of $42,937,268, including theatre receipts, rentals and sales of films and accessories, &c. Expenses aggregated $37,575,129, leaving an operating profit before depreciation and Federal taxes of $5,362,139. After depreciation and Federal taxes, which are estimated, earnings were $3,086,435. After dividends on subsidiary's stock outstanding (Metro-Goldwyn preferred), there was a net profit transferable to surplus of $2,949,052. The operating statement this year includes all enterprises owned or managed by Loew's, Inc.

Current and working assets as of Aug. 31 appeared as $13,057,116, of which $2,139,895 was in cash. Total assets were $49,913,111. The accumulated surplus as of Aug. 31, 1924, was $3,788,978.

STEEL BUILDERS SEEK CODE

American Institute Convention to Discuss Standard Practice.

An enlarged program designed to bring about further uniformity in the structural steel industry will be one of the chief topics for consideration of the American Institute of Steel Construction which will hold its annual convention at French Lick, Ind., Nov 13-15. A code of standard practice will be urged, with the object of clearing away any misunderstanding that in the past may have existed between buyer and seller, engineer, architect and owner.

Since the use of structural steel came into existence about thirty-five years ago there has developed an industry engaged in the fabrication and erection of this material which at the present time is furnishing, it is said, over $300,000,000 worth of fabricated structural steel to the public annually. The Institute represents the industry between the rolling mills and the public.

BRITISH COMPANY PROFITS.

Well Above 1923 in Each Completed Quarter of Present Year.

A summary of net profits after payment of interest reported by the large industrial companies of Great Britain shows that in the third quarter of the present year such profits exceeded the same period of 1923 by 2.3 per cent. In the second quarter the increase was 2 per cent., in the first quarter 8.7 per cent.

Analysis of the distribution of profits of these companies shows that out of such surplus earnings of the third quarter 59.4 per cent. was paid out in dividends on common stocks and 18.2 in dividends on preference stocks, while 22.4 was carried to reserves.

Cattle Markets at Chicago.

Hogs were taken freely by shippers at prices steady to 15c higher. The top was $10.15 and average $9.25, the latter being 70 cents under a week ago. Shippers took hold freely and have bought 38,000 the past two days, or about double for the same time last week. Today's arrivals were 24,000, or 4,000 under the estimate. There were 20,000 left over at the last, with 18,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Heavyweight steers met a better demand, with the top $10.85, while choice yearlings sold at $12.60 and handy weight steers at $12.75. Arrivals of 12,000 here and at the seven markets for two days are about 50 per cent. under a week ago. Arrivals of 8,000 sheep and lambs brought in more buyers and prices advanced 15 to 25 cents for lambs, with a top of $14.20 and average of $13.75. Top on sheep was $8, or 50 cents over a week ago.

WINNIPEG WHEAT UP.

Sharp Rise in All Grains, Wheat Gaining 3 Pence.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The unexpected happened in the grain markets today. With all the American markets closed for the Presidential election, Liverpool started the trade here and in Winnipeg by opening higher and advancing to a finish 3 to 3½d higher, with corn up ¾d from Monday's close. The market there and at Winnipeg was said to have been sold out on the break of late and become oversold.

With limited selling pressure, good buying by exporters, shippers, and by Chicago cash houses and foreigners who took all grains fairly, there was a sharp advance. November wheat in Winnipeg showed 7 cents over the low on Monday. The finish was within ¼ to ⅝ cents of the top, with net gains of 4½ to 4⅝ cents for the day. November and December leading. November wheat closed $1.50½, December $1.47⅝ and May $1.51¾.

Rye was in active demand with the close 3 to 3½ cents higher, November selling $1.14, December $1.15¾ and May $1.20¼.

Barley closed 2 to 2½ cents higher and flax 2¼ higher. No. 1 Northern wheat in Winnipeg was $1.53¾ with No. 2 at $1.47⅝, and feed at 93⅝ cents, the latter being sixty cents under No. 1 Northern.

'REVALUING' GERMAN CAPITAL

Basis of Transition From Paper Mark Statements to Gold.

The formal report by Lloyds and National Provincial Foreign Bank from Cologne discusses the reports that German joint stock companies, in converting their capital valuation from the paper mark basis to the gold mark basis, have adopted ratios ranging all the way from 200 to 1 to 400 to 1. The report goes on to say: "Whether these figures can be relied upon or whether they are only based on rumor it is difficult to say. It will only be possible to form an opinion at the end of the year, when the gold balances of all joint stock companies, which at present number about 15,000, will have been published, and until then everything is mere supposition.

"It must not be forgotten that German commerce and industry, which was able to liquidate its debts during the period of inflation, has now, since the stabilization of the mark, incurred new liabilities, and will continue to do so."

DIVIDENDS.

THE NEW YORK, CHICAGO AND ST. LOUIS RAILROAD COMPANY.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors on October 30, 1924, the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼% on the Preferred Stock, Series A, and a dividend of 1½% on the Common Stock were declared, payable on January 2, 1925, to stockholders of record November 15, 1924, for the third quarterly period of the year 1924, being for the three months ending December 31, 1924.

ITALY AND WHEAT MARKET.

Estimated Import Needs Larger That 1923 Smaller Than 1922.

Italian import requirements of wheat during the coming season are estimated by the United States Department of Agriculture as between 75,000,000 and 100,000,000 bushels. During 1922, when the Italian wheat crop amounted to 162,000,000 bushels, Italy had to import 112,000,000 bushels to supplement domestic production, and in 1923, when the domestic crop amounted to 235,000,000 bushels, only about 73,000,000 bushels.

This year's crop is placed at 171,000,000 bushels, a reduction of 50,000,000 bushels from the 1923 yield.

SALESMEN.

Does an income of from $30-$90 per week interest you?

These are the bona fide earnings of our salesmen during the past month, and most of them are new men recently added to our sales organization.

This company is now conducting an aggressive advertising campaign among the consumers of electric current and offers a real opportunity to a number of earnest, intelligent, energetic young men to engage in the Electrical Appliance Business.

Our men receive a thorough training in practical selling and are given real help in obtaining business which enables them to earn substantial commissions right from the start.

The company sells a large variety of useful Electrical Appliances that are in constant demand all the year round, and the opportunity for building up a personal clientele is unlimited.

Come in and have a real talk about our business with Mr. Stadstad, 24 West 23d St., between 10 A. M. and 3 P. M. on Monday or Wednesday.

THE UNITED ELECTRIC LIGHT & POWER CO.

SALESMEN.

The Brooklyn Edison Company is offering to Commission Salesmen an opportunity to secure first-class selling positions. To the right kind of men the work is continous and therefore permanent.

Practically no other business furnishes such high-grade selling conditions. Only customers, those already using Company's service, are called upon and difficulty of working up live prospects is therefore almost eliminated. As the Company keeps in regular touch with its customers at all times a great many real leads are secured from day to day and these are distributed to the salesmen. Customers like to take advantage of the Company's easy terms.

These and other features make this a real opportunity with money making possibilities for the right kind of salesmen. Commissions will be paid promptly. Applicants will be selected on a basis of integrity and personality rather than selling experience.

If you would like to be considered for one of these positions you are invited to call on Mr. Galbo, 11 Bond Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., this afternoon, at 2 o'clock, or this evening at 7 o'clock.

SALESMEN.

We wish to add 6 more live wires to our sales force. This is a large woolen concern with tailoring department, making fine made-to-measure suits and overcoats and selling direct "from sheep's back to wearer" at wholesale prices. Our unique method and tremendous inducements insure immediate success; commissions paid daily in advance; $75-$100 per week easily earned; leads developed by us; customers receive real custom tailoring service; 90% of customers repeat; you can build up a satisfied clientele that insures a regular steady income; come prepared to give good reference; an unusual opportunity. See Mr. Jacobs, Shelburn Woolen Co., 636 Broadway, corner Bleecker.

SALESMEN.

We are sorry we cannot tell you personally of the huge sums our men are earning regularly every week; you owe it to yourself to call for a few minutes and investigate; you can't lose, and the few minutes you spend will be the beginning of an extremely bright future; the work is an introductory sale of official source records, backed by the largest military organization of the world; demonstrator takes you out and keeps showing you until you can "put it over" yourself; should you prefer territory outside city, will advance expenses when you are familiar with proposition; if you are over 25 you are cordially invited to call, 10 to 12, 2 to 4.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The northeastern low pressure area has moved rapidly northeastward to the Canadian Maritime Provinces. The disturbance on the extreme North Pacific Coast Monday night has remained practically stationary, but with increased intensity. An offshoot from this disturbance has developed over the Northern Rocky Mountain region, being central Tuesday night over Wyoming. Pressure is high over the lake region, the South Atlantic States, on the Middle Pacific Coast and over Alberta. During the last twenty-four hours rains have occurred in the Middle and North Pacific States and the Northern Plateau region, the extreme Northern Rocky Mountain region and at scattered points in the Canadian Northwest. It has become somewhat warmer in the Middle and South Atlantic States and decidedly cooler over the Northern Rocky Mountain and Northern Plateau regions. Elsewhere changes have been unimportant.

The outlook is for fair weather Wednesday and increasing cloudiness on Thursday, with rains in the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region, the North Atlantic and in portions of the Middle Atlantic States, while in the South the weather will be fair. It will be warmer Wednesday in the lower lake region and on Thursday in the Middle and North Atlantic States. Cool weather will overspread the Ohio Valley and lower lake region on Thursday.

NUNS WRENCH KNIFE FROM ANGRY CHEF

HOLD HIM FOR THE POLICE

Charles Hanson, a brawny chef employed at Madonna House, the home of the Sisters of the Christian Doctrine, 173 Cherry Street, was disarmed of a 12-inch carving knife yesterday by three of the sisters, who held him to the floor until the arrival of the police.

By their courage Sisters Margaret, Josephine and Emily probably saved the life of Otto Fence, superintendent of the home, with whom Hanson had quarreled.

The nuns were just sitting down to breakfast in an adjoining room when the sounds of the quarrel reached them. For a short time they continued their meal, but as the noise grew greater they hurried into the kitchen to quiet the dispute.

As they entered they saw the infuriated Hanson, knife in hand, making toward Fence. Without a second's delay the three sisters flung themselves upon Hanson. Their assault took the chef by surprise, and before he recovered they had wrenched the weapon from his hand and borne him to the floor. While they held him tightly another member of the order ran into the street.

She found Policeman Enrico Ferrari of the Clinton Street Station. Ferrari hurried back to the Madonna House and found Hanson, all his temper gone, docilely prostrated on the floor and the nuns, with all the flurry of their attack gone, coolly standing guard.

Arraigned before Magistrate Albert H. Vitale in the Essex Market Court, Hanson pleaded not guilty to the charge of felonious assault and was held in $2,000 bail for a hearing today. The sisters are expected to testify at the hearing. No statement could be obtained at the convent concerning the cause of the quarrel.

CHOIR SINGER AS BURGLAR.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Francis Winfield Hart, 24 years old, a singer in a church choir and living in the apartment of his pastor, was arrested by police here today and accused of a long series of "jimmy" robberies, which have been keeping the northwest section of the city on edge.

Police say Hart admitted perpetration of a dozen robberies, and they also said loot estimated to be worth $15,000 was found in his room.

The Rev. Meade B. MacBryde, in whose home Hart lived, said the latter, after a disagreement a month ago with his parents, had sought his assistance and that he had taken him under his own roof, and had meanwhile interested himself in obtaining work for him.
